Sensational Spy Papers Bared

Described As Global Dynamite

12 Documents Made Public

WASHINGTON — (AP)— Secret U. S. government papers obtained 10 years ago by an admitted communist agent contained international dynamite, it was disclosed yesterday.

Twelve of some hundreds of papers uncovered by the House committee on un-American activities in its investigation of a communist spy network were made public by the committee with state department approval. The papers were from confidential state department files.

One of the dozen was among the secret information which had been recorded on microfilm.

This film was found on the farm of Whittaker Chambers, a self-admitted former communist, last week in a hollowed-out pumpkin.

Chambers has accused Alger Hiss, former state department official, and others of passing some of the secret documents to him. This has been denied by Hiss.

A New York federal grand jury, which also has been looking into the extent of the communist espionage, is going to have a look at the microfilms.

Transfer of the films from the safes of the committee on un-American activities to those of the grand jury was authorized Saturday.

The 12 documents made public by the committee would have been "extremely valuable" to any foreign governments which got them back in 1938, diplomatic authorities said.

The documents show that Hitler might have known some of Britain's secret naval plans 18 months before he actually plunged the continent into war by invading Poland.

One secret message from a U. S. diplomat to his government, portrayed Austria's vain efforts to avoid being engulfed by Hitler and described him as 'a madman with a mission."

Another told of Japan's increasing belligerence; of the one-time belief by a British official that support of Chiang Kai-Shek would be detrimental to British interests in the orient.

These were all things that if brought into the limelight at the time might have had marked repercussions on the international picture at a time when the United States was far from ready for war.

Yet only 12 of the "leaked" papers have been published, whether the others will be revealed still is problematical. Some still are labeled top secret.

Rep. Nixon (R-Calif.) of the un-American activities committee will deliver the microfilms personally to the New York grand jury.

And while there, he will take up with the jury and with department of justice officials the question of when the committee can question some major witnesses.

French Score British Action

PARIS —(AP)— France bluntly blamed Britain last night for one of the snags on which European recovery planning is stuck.

A foreign office statement said Britain is trying to dominate western European trading "in order to make the pound sterling a rare money."

In London, a treasury spokesman expressed surprise at the French statement and declined to comment except to say it "will receive careful consideration."

Roses Sent; Scent Runs To Dollars

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Mrs. Franklin Alter likes the scent of roses—but not 16 dozen of them sent collect.

Mrs. Alter reported Saturday that in the last 24 hours four different florists have delivered four dozen roses each to her and in each case they came C. O. D. One of the florists said a woman telephoned and ordered the flowers for Mrs. Alter and designated that they be sent collect.

Mrs. Alter was busy calling other florists yesterday afternoon to tell them she is not in the market for flowers if they receive similar orders.

Job Rumors Buzzing at Courthouse

Democrats Sure Of Most Posts

By GEORGE COMINOS

Although newly-elected Democratic officials aren't saying much, there will be a lot of new faces in state and county jobs in the Mansfield area after Jan. 1.

Rumors of who the lucky jobseekers will be are a dime a dozen in courthouse circles. But the officials who will have the "say" haven't made any announcements.

One thing is sure. The new jobholders will be Democrats, since the Dems won the state and county administrations Nov. 2.

Ralph Lutz, county Democratic executive chairman, said a meeting of the county executive committee will be called within the next two weeks to make endorsements for some of the posts now held by Republicans.

Lutz said he had at least a score of applications for state highway jobs and auto license registrar posts in the county.

Plenty of jobs are likely to be open in the state highway department offices in Mansfield and Ashland and in the sheriff's, county commissioners', and county relief departments.

3 MENTIONED

Mentioned as possible candidates for the commissioners' clerk's job are Deputy Sheriff P. S. Carroll, who formerly held the post; Lee Henry, a deputy in the recorder's office, and Sheriff Frank E. Robinson who will leave office as sheriff Jan. 1.

While the sheriff's office will remain under Democratic control

Jailed Romeo Gets Love In Double Dose

BERLIN —(AP)— Life for Edward J. Lada, blockade-busting Romeo, was complicated Saturday by two loves in one jail.

Two Juliets visited the former paratrooper in the Army stockade, each claiming he hitchhiked from Paris to Berlin past Soviet guards for her.

Lada, facing a charge of illegal entry into Germany, had quite a time greeting both of them.

First he saw Ruth Riecki, mother of his two-year-old daughter, Nancy, in one of the visiting rooms. They spoke briefly and he fondled the baby with considerable fatherly affection.

Then Lada was allowed to go across the corridor to another visiting room. There he embraced 21-year-old Ursula Schmidt, blonde actress, who got out of bed in spite of pleurisy to visit him.

Miss Schmidt called Lada "Chick" and he called her "Bootsie." When they parted, they kissed but she put her foot down on any pictures of such overt affection. However, she said and he smiled approvingly:

"You just can't do anything about love. And we love each other."

Pupils Plan Yule Treats

Will Prepare Gift Baskets

There will be at least four score families in Mansfield who will have a more plentiful and happier Christmas because Senior high school students have taken the Yuletide spirit into their hearts and turned it into a practical, gift-giving project.

The activity is known as the "Christmas Basket" project. But what goes into those baskets is even more important than the name of the annual Yuletide contribution.

Beginning Monday morning, all sorts of food will start pouring into the halls. There will be cans of food, packages of food, jars of fruit, and nearly every other kind of non-perishable food that can be found on the city's grocery shelves. The perishable food must wait until Friday. By Friday noon the halls at Senior high will look like huge and appetizing grocery stores.

The "Christmas Basket" project is in its 13th year. Originated by Miss Ruth Dunham, Latin teacher at the high school, the project has gained momentum with each Yuletide season.

That "lift" each year consists not only of food but also of money. Cash gifts contributed by pupils and interested Mansfielders are tucked into the cache of food in each big basket to buy the fresh chicken or roast beef for the Christmas dinner. Baskets are given out the last day of school preceding Christmas, making necessary this arrangement for the final dinner item.

Records kept of the annual "Christmas Basket" project show that over a period of 11 years, 1,100 baskets were distributed. Students are hoping the average of 100 can be duplicated this year.

AGED PRIEST DIES

Brighten a Christmas

Dreary Holiday Ahead for 2 Girls

For those people who want to play Santa Claus to a less-fortunate family, the list of cases being compiled now by the News-Journal and the Salvation Army for the "Brighten-a-Christmas" program can offer families ranging from just one or two persons to parents with eight and 10 children.

Marilyn is a 14-year-old girl whose father is dead and her mother is confined to a mental institution. She has no other relatives and is living in a foster home. There will be the necessary items of clothing for her, and sufficient food, but little in the way of Christmas gifts.

Pauline is another young girl who lives in a foster home, but she has relatives. Seven brothers and sisters are in the Children's Home, a sister in a boarding home, and a brother confined to a state hospital. Her mother, too, is in a state hospital, but her father is dead. Her Christmas will include no items which could be classed above the realm of necessities.

A Mansfield couple with seven children ranging in age from two to 14 will have sufficient food, but when there are so many children, the fatheh has little money left from his weekly pay check for Christmas gifts, and none for toys.

One Mansfield mother, recently widowed through her husband's accidental death, has been assured a lavish Christmas dinner through the generosity of a social organization, but the space beneath the Christmas tree, if there is a tree, will be pretty bare. Money for toys or clothing isn't available.

OUTLOOK BLEAK

Caring for an aged mother, as well as two young grandchildren whose parents are dead, so completely fills the day for one Mansfield woman that she hasn't time to make plans for Christmas. But then, why make out a Christmas gift list when there is barely

Lake Ship, Crew Saved

MUSKEGON, Mich.—A sturdy coast guard cutter won a hairbreadth race against time last night to save a stricken Naval Reserve ship and its crew of ten.

Knifing through an icy gale on Lake Michigan, the Cutter Woodbine took the U. S. S. Brant in tow before the waves could dash the disabled craft onto Michigan's darkened coast.

It was a nip and tuck rescue operation. The wallowing Brant, training ship for the Muskegon Naval Reserve, was less than a mile from the beach and drifting in fast when the Woodbine appeared.

Working fast, coast guards tossed a line aboard the vessel and took her in tow toward safe harbor in Muskegon. This had been her original destination when the ship left Manitowoc, Wis., after being in dry dock.

Its engines dead, its batteries and radio gone, the Brant was the object of an all-out fight against the storm.

Council Faces Pay Problem

Special Meeting Seen Necessary

By SHELDON BINN

City council faces the necessity of meeting in special session before the end of the year to iron out the police and firemen's pay muddle.

Even if the pay increase problem hadn't bobbed up, council would have to appropriate additional funds to meet salaries for the last half of December.

Council can appropriate only enough money to pay the old wage schedule or it can add enough to provide for the police and firemen's increases voted Nov. 2 by the public.

Actually, their first hurdle must be cleared by Service-Safety Director Earl T. Garrison. He must decide whether the first half of December payroll should be paid under the old or the new schedule.

If he fails to revise the payroll or if council fails to appropriate the needed money if he does revise it, then the next move would be up to the police and firemen.

COULD ASK ORDER

The legal move would be to ask the county court for a writ of mandamus to require city officials to carry out the will of the voters.

Garrison then would be ordered to draw up a payroll under the provisions of the new ordinance and council would be required to appropriate the needed money to meet the payroll.

Council would have two alternatives. It would have to obey the law or repeal or amend the initiated ordinance as to wage scale or number of employes.

If the legislators repeal or amend the new wage ordinance

Students Get Long Rest

The 6,700 pupils of Mansfield's elementary schools and the 52 at Country Day school, will start their annual Christmas vacation next Friday when school is dismissed for a two-week holiday.

The Richland county schools will vary their dismissal dates. St. Peter's parochial school will close for the holidays on Wednesday, Dec. 22.

All will resume classes on Monday, Jan. 3.

For city schools it will be a 16-day holiday from classes, Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller said yesterday.

Boyd Robinson, superintendent of county schols, said some schools would close next Friday, but others will not dismiss for the Christmas holiday until Dec. 22.

In the county, schools must be in session 180 days. As long as their school year equals that length, teachers may regulate the holiday sessions, although all classes will be resumed on Jan. 3.

At the Country Day school the annual holiday season will be highlighted next Thursday by the annual tea for parents and school friends. It will start at 2 p. m. and the children will serve tea to their elders.

World Group Seeks Truce In Holy Land

PARIS—(AP)—After creating a three-nation Palestine conciliation commission last night, the United Nations ran into a Soviet filibuster this (Sunday) morning which delayed plans for final adjournment of the Paris meeting.

The 58-nation assembly named the United States, France and Turkey as members of the Palestine commission which will attempt to bring permanent peace to the Holy Land. It then took up the Korean question and ran into Russian delay-tactics.

The Slav bloc is fighting a majority plan which would continue the U. N.'s Korean commission and recommend approval of the government of the Republic of Korea.

At 2 a. m., Dr. Herbert V. Evatt of Australia, president of the assembly, called off the lengthy meeting until 3 p. m. (9 a. m. EST) this afternoon.

After the Palestine commission was established, the Israeli delegation reiterated its willingness to negotiate directly with the Arabs but attacked the commission membership as "one-sided." An Arab delegate told newsmen the Arab states generally were satisfied with the commission membership.

The final vote on the conciliation plan jointly sponsored by the United States and Britain was 35 to 15 with eight absentions. It was taken as a tense crowd overflowed the theater of the Palais de Chaillot and as the assembly strove vainly to wind up its meeting.

Until the time the final vote was counted, British delegates said the issue remained in doubt. When Dr. Herbert V. Evatt of Australia, president of the assembly, announced the result the crowded hall rang with applause. The confusion was so great Evatt had to pound his gavel to restore order.

Those who voted against creating the commission were: Afghanistan, Cuba and Pakistan, plus the Arab states—Egypt, Syria, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, Iraq and Yemen; and the six Slav bloc nations—Russia, Poland, Czechovakia, Yugoslavia, White Russia and the Soviet Ukraine.

THREE STEPS TAKEN

By its vote, the assembly—

1. Established a three-member conciliation commission which will have its headquarters in Jerusalem.

2. Knocked out all references in the conciliation scheme to the U. N. partition plan which was approved Nov. 29, 1947, and to the report drafted by the late Palestine mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte, proposing modifications of the partition plan.

3. Instructed the commission to take over the job of Acting Mediator Ralph Bunche and, if the security council asks it to, the truce machinery in the Holy Land.

The Russian bloc voted for partition in the final moments of the 1947 assembly but opposed the conciliation plan because it left out any reference to that plan and because it asked the five big powers to select the three countries which will comprise the commission instead of making it a five-nation commission chosen by the assembly.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky led a powerful opposition group as the big western powers and Russia tangled in heated debate before the vote.

Galion Man Chosen For State Post

Moulton Named Commerce Director

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Robert L. Moulton of Galion, was designated director of commerce late yesterday to serve under Governor-elect Frank J. Lausche.

Lausche announced the appointment by saying:

"Robert L. Moulton of Galion, Ohio, has been asked and has consented to serve as director of commerce in my cabinet."

Moulton served as commerce director during part of Lausche's previous term as governor. He was named by Lausche to the post after the governor had appointed James W. Huffman to serve in the U.S. Senate.

The Galion man became one of the outstanding Democratic leaders in the Ohio general assembly during his three consecutive terms in the lower house.

He resigned as minority floor leader in October, 1945, to accept the $6,500 cabinet position as state commerce director. He was 38.

His predecessor was named to the U.S. Senate post left vacant by the elevation of Senator Harold H. Burton to the U.S. Supreme court.

Moulton held the job during the balance of the Lausche administration. He had direct supervision over the state banking division, the division of insurance, the division of building and loans and the division of securities.

He is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan university, a former instructor in American history in Galion public schools and a former president of the Crawford County Bar association.

In the legislature he was a member of the salary study commission.

Hoaxer Phones Radio Winners

ST. LOUIS —(AP)— A practical joker sent two housewives rushing to an airlines office Friday with dreams of free flights to Hollywood and Honolulu—prizes in radio programs that don't exist.

The caller promised the first woman a trip to Hollywood for identifying Amelia Earhart as the first woman aviator, and another was to go to Honolulu because her telephone number proved to be "the right combination."

Air Raiders Show Power

Twelve planes and 13 men from Mansfield's 321st Bomb Group are joining air reserve groups from four other cities this morning for a simulated bombing mission over northcentral Ohio. The mission is scheduled to begin at 10:55 a. m. and will set an example of Ohio's air power.

All the paraphernalia of a real bombing run will be used including situation maps, and reconnaissance photos of primary, secondary, and "last resort" targets. Major H. E. Odell, intelligence officer with the 321st Air Reserve, said the only things lacking will be bombs.

Simulated interference from the Cleveland Reserve unit is anticipated on the mission, Major Odell said.

Primary targets for the sham attack will be the Wheeling air base and the railway bridge at Steubenville. As they near Steubenville the Mansfield and Toledo groups will break away from the main formation and attack the air base, while the Akron and Columbus groups will continue 'til they reach the bridge.

Program to Mix Instruction, Entertainment

C. of C. Schedules 'Dixie Capers' for Annual Dinner Program

A stream-lined program, packed with fast-moving entertainment, has been arranged for the 37th annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce—the banquet event often referred to as the "city's biggest dinner party."

Headlined by the appearance of Eugene C. Pulliam, nationally known publisher of the Indianapolis Star-News and four other newspapers in the middle west, the banquet program will be staged on Friday, Jan. 14, at the Coliseum. A crowd ranging between 1,500 and 2,000 is expected. Tickets go on sale Monday at the C. of C. offices.

With Pulliam's address on the subject, "The World Today," forming the serious side of the banquet program, other features planned embrace many elements of a circus sideshow. Some of these were revealed yesterday by R. F. Bisbee, chairman of the entertainment committee.

Clowns and acrobats, a 30-minute vaudeville show, "Dixie Capers" with a cast of 33 persons, and a laugh sensation, called "Mystery In Bubbles," with a cast of 12 form the major amusement features, Bisbee said. A harp solo by Mrs. Joy Herbert with Violinist Sue Walters accompanying and the appearance of the 50 mixed voice Mansfield Choral society will return the program to the more serious side as final numbers.

There will be 112 participants in the entire program which began to take form in early November. Rehearsals will begin this week, Bisbee said. Several of the numbers will take place on an elevated ramp that will be installed lengthwise in the Coliseum.

Pulliam is considered one of the outstanding speakers in the middle west. Several Mansfield Chamber of Commerce members heard him talk at the Ohio C. of C. annual meeting in Cincinnati. They were so impressed that steps were taken immediately to obtain him for the Mansfield meeting.

The banquet date was moved ahead one month in order to give Mansfield the privilege of hearing him on Jan. 14, the speaker's only open date.

Besides his prominence as a newspaper publisher and as the operator of two radio stations, Pulliam is a world traveler. Last year he visited 22 European and Mediterranean countries, talking with Europe's most important personages as well as the "man on the street."

During the course of his rise to national prominence, he carried papers as a boy, sold newspapers on trains, was a cub reporter, a police reporter and has even operated a newspaper press.

The ticket sale opening tomorrow is earlier this year since there are indications that the banquet may be another record breaker for attendance. More than 1,700 attended last year's dinner and several hundred others had to be turned away in the final days before the meeting date.

Australian Area Burned By Drought

Dryness Ruins Grazing Lands

BRISBANE — (AP) — A great drought is scorching some of Australia's richest grazing country.

It has caused the biggest mass migration of sheep and cattle in this dominion's history. At least 2,000,000 sheep and 500,000 cattle have been moved to places where they can find grass to eat and water to drink.

The parched country is nearly half of Queensland state's 670,000 square miles. In a triangular area as large as Texas, the cattle and sheep population has been reduced about nine-tenths.

The drought area stretches from Longreach in the central west to Winton and beyond in the north, and to within 100 miles of the Pacific at Rockhampton.

In this area sheep men are driving up to 100 miles each week to buy their meat supplies from town butchers. They don't have any sheep left on their properties to kill. The butchers are carting their meat hundreds of miles from the lush coastal fringe.

Even the birds have deserted this dry country.

No useful rain has fallen in the area for two years, but the present situation is the culmination of a series of poor seasons before 1947.

Even artesian wells are cutting out. This is because there has not been sufficient rain to replenish the natural water reservoir that has been tapped in many parts of western Queensland.

Sheep and cattle losses, however, are not as great as in previous droughts of less severity.

ENTIRE FLOCKS SOLD

High export prices for Australia's chief exports—wool and meat—have enabled graziers (ranchers) to sell their entire flocks and herds to dealers. The dealers have then moved them 1,000 miles and more to the southwest of Queensland, or to northern New South Wales.

There has been good rain in those areas, and feed and water is plentiful.

No attempt has yet been made to assess full losses, but it is known that many thousand sheep and cattle have died from hunger or thirst

Most of the sheep and cattle that could be moved are now out of the area. They have traveled south by rail, road and on the hoof.

Only a few thousand breeder animals remain on the vast properties of 60,000 to 1,000,000 acres. These are being hand fed.

Water is carried by rail to many dry areas. At present water trains are moving 116,000 gallons a day on routes totaling 1,000 miles. This huge job will become even bigger if the dry spell continues.

Monsoon rains are due in February, but the sheep and cattle men of west Australia realize that banking on rains is a precarious gamble.

Heavy rain will start the grass growing, but it will turn the ground into a bog. Weak sheep and cattle will perish in this heavy going.

Adder's Two Heads Just Can't Agree

STOCKHOLM—(AP)—An adder with one wicked and one gentle head is living on the dole in the Stockholm Forestry Institute.

Without human assistance the monster could not exist as the two heads are unable to cooperate. The right head strives to the right and the left head to the right. Meeting an obstacle on their path the right head will go around it to the right and the left to the left with the result that the rest of the adder is hopelessly caught

The snake was just a babe when it was found in September and its protector Dr. Goesta Notini fears that it will die in spite of careful nursing If it survives it will be an interesting object of study for animal psychologists

The two heads react very differently. The right head attacks quickly and fiercely when teased, but the left one tries to escape. Both heads have fully developed poison fangs.

Here Today—Gone Tomorrow

Cheery Yule Cards Meet Unhappy Fate

NEW YORK — (AP) — One of the minor laments of the Yuletide season is the fate of the Christmas card which has delivered its message and served its purpose.

Breathes there a housewife with soul so dead that she feels no pang as she dumps all those lovely cards into a wastebasket?

Ah, woe, the artistic and poetic inspiration that went into them — not to mention the sender's time spent picking them out!

True, many used cards may be passed along to amuse youngsters in hospital and shelter homes. But with Americans buying an estimated one and one-half billion cards this Christmas, the supply for this purpose is too overwhelming.

Back in 1946, a charitable organization known as the save the Children Federation pleaded for ten million cards to brighten the lives of underprivileged children The response was staggering —"easily a hundred million," said one official, "so many that they're still sticking out of our ears two years later."

The greeting card people, of course, like to emphasize that many a card is tucked away and cherished, or finds its way into a scrapbook, or is made into a lampshade.

But what of all the rest?

Well, if it's any consolation, a good portion of those cards of yours may be around for a long, long time after you've dumped them out.

You won't recognize them, but they may turn up as part of a Valentine you get Feb. 14. Or they may come out part of an easter candy box. Or, more likely, they'll become wallboard for somebody's long-awaited new home

That is, provided they fall into the eager hands of America's big wastepaper industry. For Christmas cards, usually printed or engraved on a high-grade paper sized for color reproduction, make desirable wastepaper.

This is boom season for the $200,000,000 -a -year wastepaper business. Mills are stocking up before bad weather cuts collections. And imagine for yourself the amount of corrugated packaging materials moving these days from wholesalers to retailers, the tons and tons of tissue, gift boxes and wrapping paper pouring out of deartment stores into ost offices and then to living room floors under the Christmas trees December is a busy month for wastepaper sorters and balers

Last year, 7,845,000 tons of wastepaper were consumed in this country for a new yearly record

Trailer Law Digest Out

WASHINGTON — Publication of a completely new digest of house trailer laws by the National Highway Users Conference was announced by Director Arthur C. Butler. Titled "State Motor Vehicle Laws Affecting House Trailers," the booklet is available by writing to the Conference at 938 National Press Building, Washington 4, D. C.

The survey shows trailer coach owners exactly what registration, taxation, equipment, size, speed and license requirements must be met in each state this year.

It covers all present state laws and taxes affecting ownership and use of trailer coaches as vehicles upon the highway, and contains the model safety equipment requirements recommended by American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators.

By OLIVE GRESMER, News-Journal Society Editor

The gala holiday season is swinging into high. Thanksgiving over, thoughts are turning to festive dances, cocktail parties and the many brilliant events held in an atmosphere of holly and Santa Claus.

Taking the spotlight this past week was the gay dinner dance given by the Central Ohio Traffic club at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. This yuletide party was arranged by Dwight McCullough, general chairman, and his committee.

It has been the custom of the organization, composed of representatives from the various transportation companies and manufacturers, to hold a Christmas party for the members and their wives each year.

This year's party was really tops. The spirited and frolicsome group of 300 was served a bountiful turkey dinner with all the trimmin's and at each place were noise makers, paper hats and paper streamers. The dinner was opened with invocation given by Rev. C. P. Mitchell, pastor of the First English Lutheran church. Music was furnished by the Staff-Writers barbershop quartet.

Later in the evening following the introduction of officers and guests, dancing was enjoyed in the ballroom with music played by Nels Blocker and his orchestra. At a late hour Santa Claus arrived and distributed more than 50 gifts, which were donated by the transportation companies and manufacturers.

The role of Santa Claus was played by James McEntee of Cleveland, who is first vice president of the club. Decorations were in keeping with the Christmas theme.

Officers of the organization are Oscar Schaller, of Mansfield, president; McEntee, first vice president; Fred Mull of Mansfield, second vice president; Howard Johnson, of Mansfield, secretary-treasurer.

The club was organized in 1921 and for more than 25 years the Christmas party has been a highlight of their activities.

Assisting Mr. McCullough Thursday evening were Lloyd Pfahler of Shelby, decorations; Donald Sowers, of Mansfield, gifts; Mr. McEntee, of Cleveland; Fred Mull, Mansfield, Howard Johnson and Tom Dorsey, of Mansfield; Kenneth Swank, of Shelby; Anton Breinich and Mr. Schaller, of Mansfield; E. Lee Connell, of Cleveland; John Bissman, of Mansfield, and Erwin Wegner, of Cleveland.

Flower girls, who presented each lady with an orchid, were Miss Mary Edwards and Miss Martha LaRue, both of Mansfield.

'Make-Them-Yourself' Decorations Cut Costs at Christmas

Novel Ideas Ease Job of Homemaker

Rooms Given Yuletide Touch

By MARGUERITE MILLER

A slender, vivacious brunette who turns corks and clothes hangers into glistening Christmas "trees" is Mrs. Vern Hoffman, 176 Fairlawn avenue—truly a woman of ingenuity.

It's no trick at all for Mrs. Hoffman (she's the wife of the Senior high basketball coach) to turn out a centerpiece for a dinner in an hour.

"Anyone can do it," she says with her bright smile.

And the way she explains it, it sounds easy—especially if you have the flair for decorations that Mrs. Hoffman possesses.

The majority of her creations are a la Hoffman, although she confesses she has swiped a couple of ideas from books. The originals, however, are the favorites of her friends who scramble to "borrow" the finished products to use for their parties.

Practicality is another of Mrs. Hoffman's virtues. She takes pride in how pleasing an effect she can get with least expenditure. And the cost in most instances is surprisingly low.

The only decoration which Mrs. Hoffman terms as "expensive" is her lovely Christmas-ball Christmas trees:

"They are the easiest things I make, but the most expensive if you haven't the balls and must buy them," she says.

She admits her tree is not exactly original in effect but it is her own arranging.

"I saw a Christmas ball tree in one of the stores. They had pasted the balls together so that they were built up in rings around a darning needle.

"I thought there should be some way to make the tree without ruining the balls, so I came back home and started experimenting."

BEGINS EXPERIMENTING

The experimentation resulted in a cork fitted snugly in a low candle holder. Then, as a substitute for the needle, Mrs. Hoffman snipped off the rung of a wire clothes hanger and fitted the stout wire into the cork. Beginning with that basis, she quickly assembled her tree by slipping the largest balls over the wire to the bottom and gradually working in smaller and smaller balls until she reached the top. At the top she inverted one brilliant ball.

Two of these gleaming trees now decorate the mantle in the Hoffman home.

For the inexpensive decorations, Mrs. Hoffman is especially fond of her "gum drop tree" and her "drinking straw tree."

All the Christmas decorator needs for the former is an artistically formed branch of barberry, heavy starch, a package of artificial snow and a dime's worth of multi-colored gum drops.

The heavy starch is brushed over the branch of barberry and the snow sprinkled on while the starch is wet. This is easily done by putting the snow in a paper bag and shaking the branch vigorously in the bag, stirring up the snow and "gilding" the tree in one operation.

"The thorns are natural on the barberry," Mrs. Hoffman explained, "so you just stick on the gum drops and fit the branch into a glass frog used for flower arrangements."

The effect is a light, airy table decoration that is as colorful as Christmas itself.

For 15 to 20 cents Mrs. Hoffman made her "drinking straw tree" a colorful, eye-appealing decoration for her buffet.

This time a branch from a smooth-barked tree was used. A coat of paint (wall sizing also can be used) was applied to the branch which was fitted into another candle holder.

The only cash expenditure was for cellophane drinking straws. Each straw was neatly severed in the middle and small bunches tied with stout string until they sprang apart like small stiff flowers. The glistening bunches were then again tied to various positions on the branches to achieve the wanted effect.

Variations in the color scheme can be employed in the drinking straw tree, Mrs. Hoffman pointed out. Red and green straws may be used for a cheery, typical Yuletide color combination. On the other hand, silver and blue straws or red and silver combinations make a more modernistic, decorative tree.

If you want to spend a couple of hours on your decorations, Mrs. Hoffman prescribes the snow men and snow ladies, a pair of which stand on the Hoffman dining table.

Basis for these are the husband's old undershirts, stuffed with rags and tied with string to make the head, chest and lower portion of the doll. The undershirt is then sewed together at the top of the head and arms are made separately, stuffed and sewed on. Here again, heavy starch is used to coat the undershirt doll and artificial snow sprinkled on.

Next are the buttons for the eyes and nose, a bit of yarn for hair and mouth. You can use your imagination for any other details on the decorations.

Mrs. Hoffman topped her snowman with a red cellophane hat, stuck a sucker stick into a cork painted both red for a pipe, and used broken broom straws tied on a small stick for his broom.

DO IT YOURSELF—That's what Mrs. Vern Hoffman, 176 Fairlawn avenue, advises for the homemaker with a few spare moments and a little imagination. Friend hubby can lend a hand, too.

Mrs. R. A. LeFevre, 914 Maumee avenue, and Mrs. Warren Lewis, 785 Arlington avenue, are pictured above looking at several of the attractively wrapped packages Mrs. Paulsen has made. A snow man and girl made of cotton are seen on the right. Mrs. LeFevre and Mrs. Lewis are both members of the Agnes Paulsen Garden club.

City Home's Like Winter Wonderland

Creations Bring Fame to Maker

Walking in a winter wonderland—" it's really a winter wonderland at 524 Beechwood drive, the home of Mrs. Henry Paulsen.

Mrs. Paulsen is one of Mansfield's most talented women. When the winter season arrives and Christmas is in the air, Mrs. Paulsen begins her work of making decorations and arrangements for the holiday time.

She makes everything from miniature reindeer to angels.

Mrs. Paulsen has been called on to speak all over the country. Her talks, up to this time, have been confined to Mansfield and several surrounding towns. With the difficulty of transporting her pieces of art work from one place to another, she finds it impossible to accept many engagements for demonstrations.

"Miss Winter and her gentleman friend" are Mrs. Paulsen's original creations. These dolls are made from cotton and each year something different is added or the expressions are changed to fit the mode of the time.

"I can tell what year each doll was made in," said Mrs. Paulsen, adding, "this year I have wigs for dolls, sequins and felt hats. During the war it was hard to obtain some needed materials for the dolls."

These dolls have quite a story connected with them. The idea first dawned when Mrs. Paulsen's sister requested her to make something "different" for each side of a fireplace, when she was giving a party. A milk bottle was the first base used for the dolls, which were then crude in their first appearance. The size has decreased and they are now reaching the stage a craftsman works for, that of perfection.

Mrs. Paulsen has worked with floral arrangements and dabbled in this sort of work for over twenty-five years. In all those twenty-five years, she has sold only three of her dolls.

Something new has been used this year for her novelty decorations. Mrs. Paulsen now carves the objects from styro foam.

Styro foam is another of science's odd discoveries. The product was run upon by accident when a scientest was in the process of looking for something new. At first they saw no use for the material, but then they discovered that it was easy to carve.

This product can be washed and dyed any color a person wishes so that it will match the rest of the decorative scheme.

Aside from making decorations, Mrs. Paulsen thinks of new ways to wrap packages. All of her gifts are lined with another color of paper which matches the trim on the box.

"I do this because it makes the package interesting when a person opens the box and finds another colored wrapping paper," said Mrs. Paulsen.

Mrs. Paulsen has always been interested in creative art work. She has attended several art schools and studied in this field most of her life.

This lady is active in the Linneaus Garden club and is the originator of the Herb Garden now being made in Mansfield.

It's easy to see that Mrs. Paulsen can be placed on the list of Mansfield's busiest ladies.

17 Seniors Take Tests

Seventeen high school seniors in this area, including six from Mansfield Senior high school, yesterday took a three-hour Navy examination that might lead to a college education and a commission in the Navy.

The tests, furnished by the Navy, were given at Mansfield Senior high school by the principal, Glenn G. Rohleder.

Those who pass the examination and then pass a physical, may go to any college of their choice having a Naval Reserve Officers Training corps, with the Navy paying for the tuition and living costs.

Rohleder said the test is a general knowledge examination. For three of the four years in college the student must take a summer cruise. He may go to college for four years or for two years and then go into training for the last two years.

On graduation he is commissioned an officer in the Navy and goes on active duty for two years. Seniors taking the examination besides those from Mansfield included some from Mt. Vernon, Ashland, Gambier, Bucyrus, Pavonia, Galion and Shelby.

World Faith Talk Given

Mrs. Clarence Ullrich of Chicago spoke on "The Distinguishing Features of the Baha'i World Faith," at a meeting of the Mansfield chapter in the Mansfield-Leland hotel Friday evening.

In her talk, Mrs. Ullrich pointed out "the world of humanity is walking in darkness because it is out of touch with the world of God." She said that through the teachings of Baha'i, it has become possible to unite all the religions of the world and to eradicate religious prejudice."

The chapter is planning a tea reception for next Sunday, at which a Cleveland woman will preside.

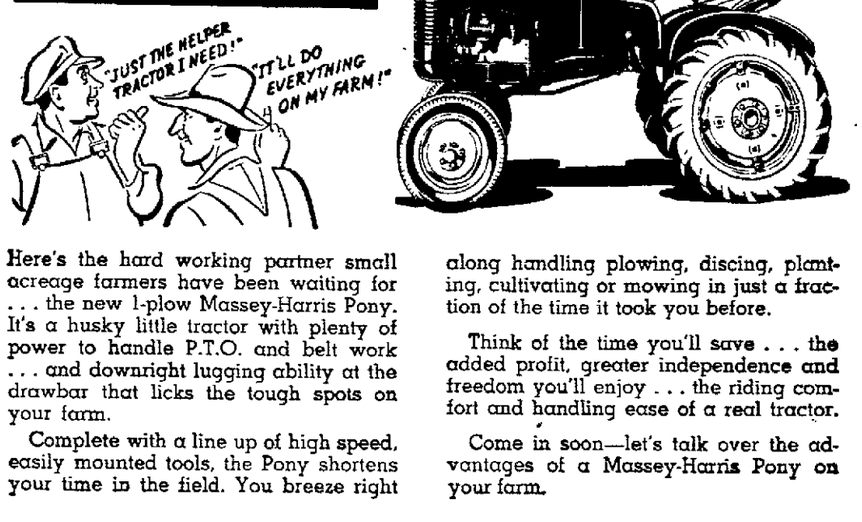
THE NEW MASSEY-HARRIS Pony



Here's the hard working partner small acreage farmers have been waiting for . . . the new 1-plow Massey-Harris Pony. It's a husky little tractor with plenty of power to handle P.T.O. and belt work . . . and downright lugging ability at the drawbar that licks the tough spots on your farm.

Complete with a line up of high speed, easily mounted tools, the Pony shortens your time in the field. You breeze right along handling plowing, discing, planting, cultivating or mowing in just a fraction of the time it took you before.

Think of the time you'll save . . . the added profit, greater independence and freedom you'll enjoy . . . the riding comfort and handling ease of a real tractor.

Come in soon—let's talk over the advantages of a Massey-Harris Pony on your farm.

Bank of England Governor Youngest In Past 101 Years

LONDON, — (AP) — Cameron Fromanteel Cobbold at age 44 is the youngest governor of the Bank of England selected in 101 years.

Next March 1 when he takes formal charge he will direct the British government's own bank with 6,600 employes, its nine branches in England, and its banker-depositors all over the world.

He will be a power in the City London's financial district where the bank stands solidly on the narrow street from which it gets its fond nickname—the Old Lady of Threadneedle street.

And, finally, this young man will be confidential adviser to the labor government's key planner, Sir Stafford Cripps, who as chancellor of the exchequer is head of Britain's treasury and as minister of economic affairs is boss of the vital dollar-export drive.

In the bank's 255 year history, Cobbold is the third youngest governor.

He was 44 Sept. 14. Two other men were 43 when they got the job—John Rudge in 1713 and William Robinson in 1847.

The outgoing governor, Scottish Lord Catto, when he retires next Feb. 28 will be only two weeks short of 70, customary retirement age. The forthcoming deputy governor, Dallas Gerald Mercer Bernard, is 60.

Hollywood would be disappointed in Cobbold. He neither looks like a bank president nor lives like one.

He's a hefty, athletic six feet two and seems even younger than he is. He has black hair instead of white, smokes cigarettes instead of cigars and grows no mustache.

His dress is careless and there's no flower in his lapel. He lives in a small apartment and often rides the subway to work. He sometimes plays cricket with the bank help.

Week ends he usually goes up into Hertfordshire to look at the family's cows or hunt partridge and pheasant.

His wife, Lady Hermione, 43, inherited a country estate up there from her father, the Earl of Lytton. She's a grand-daughter of the Bulwer-Lytton who wrote "The Last Days of Pompeii." The Cobbolds have a daughter 15 and sons 11 and four.

GO SOUTH

FORT WORTH, Tex. — (CP) — Travel south of the border, down Mexico way, has kept honorary consuls busy here the past summer. Walter H. Strong, Guatemalan honorary consul, estimated he signed some 400 tourist travel cards since Jan. 1. The Mexican consul, Sproesser Wynn, averaged about 100 monthly.

Two Games Scheduled Before Holidays

By ANN DIDICHER

Well, kids, just two more basketball games before Christmas vacation. Tuesday night we play Lexington here and Friday night finds us home again playing Akron South. Coach Dowler is giving the boys a stiff work-out that they may uphold the reputation left to them by last year's graduating team.

Under the direction of Mrs. Paul Daugherty and Mr. Lewis Wendlemoot the Junior class play entitled "Out of This World" went over with flying colors. The cast included Dave Davies, Ann Didicher, Nancy Moore, Sue McElvain, Chester Sprague, Russell Glenn, Ann Dyson, Joyce Elliott, Marylin Daugherty, Charles Frye, Bruce Armstrong, and Mary Jo Hunter.

The committees include Miss Evalyn Wiseman, faculty business manager; Norman Hughes, student business manager; Stanley Day, stage manager; Bill Remy, Tim Nedrow, Gene Aungst, Kenneth Rice, Pedro Pryor, stage crew; Ralph Minich, electrician; Dorothy Sabo, Bonnie Mottayaw, prompters; Tommy Ciraulo, Eloise Scheier, make-up; Gloria Stahl, Mildred Petrovic, Elinor Blandi, Bonnie Cox, Beverly Hunt, and Erma Keefer, ushers.

Between acts a girls' ensemble consisting of Ann Dyson, Mary Jo Hunter, Dorothy Sabo, Bonnie Mottayaw, Marylin Daugherty, and Joyce Elliott sang two Christmas songs. Assisting at the piano was Beverly Hunt. Loretta Pascute and Erma Keefer played several selections on their accordions. Mary Lou Lorentz played "Star of the Sea" on her vibra-harp.

Next week, there will be a noon show called "Keys of the Kingdom" starring Gregory Peck, Thomas Mitchell, and Roddy McDowall.

The girls' volleyball honor team was invited to participate in the Loudonville girls' Play Day. Other guests were the girls from Wooster. The team from Madison included Jo Ciraulo, Dorothy Estep, Joanne Brook, Betty Riggenbach, Lydia Gross, Reba Stoffer, Doris Baumberger, Marilyn Snyder, Eleanor Stevens, Margaret Welsh, Mary Banks, and Joanne Beer.

A few of the steady couples seen in the halls are Mary Jo Hunter and Don Morris, Ed Chelski and Clara Dill, Jim Gatton and Mary Banks, Tom Morris and Dorothy Sabo.

Next week the new members of GAA will be initiated into the club. The GAA board members will have charge of the initiation. They include Dorothy Estep, Doris Baumberger, Jo Ciraulo, Tommy Ciraulo, Angella Lalli, Erma Keefer, Muriel Beer, Janet Hamilton, and Annabelle Kragick.

While checking up on what our last year's seniors are doing we find that Shirley Christiansen is working in the office at the Westinghouse; Lois Miller is working at Walter's Sulfur Baths; Herbie Eldridge is attending the Unisity of Toledo; at Bowling Green we find Benny Kaylor, Bob Wilson, Tiny Sauder, and Dorothy Hulit; Ed Thomas is at Ohio Weslyan university and Dick Ernsberger is at the University of Tennessee.

See you all next week.

Canyon Scene Of 3 Killings

RIVERSIDE, Calif—(AP)—A killing rampage by a crazed, elderly man left three men dead yesterday in remote Whitewater canyon in the Coachella Valley desert, police reported.

Deputy Coroner Seymer Cash and Sheriff's Investigator M. L. Vivian identified the victims as Maxwell Charles Salter, 72, and Murray A. Reigle, 71, residents of the canyon, and Henry Tolton, 70, a cabin caretaker.

Officers said Tolton shot himself after setting his cabin afire. He was a former Seattle, Wash., lumberjack.

Cash and Vivian said neighbors told them Tolton, partially crippled with arthritis, apparently had brooded about possibly losing his caretaker job to his assistant, Salter. Salter formerly was a Klondike gold prospector.

Income Up To Record In October

Report Reveals Consumer Gain

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Consumer incomes smashed through to another record high in October, the commerce department said Saturday. Also, a report on employment in November gave indication that total earnings are continuing at high tide.

The commerce department's business economics office said consumer incomes attained an annual rate of $215,600,000,000 in October—a $900,000,000 rise over the previous records of August and September.

A census bureau report, meanwhile, put November employment at a record total of 59,893,00 for that month, topping November of last year by 1,298,000.

TWO FACTORS

These showings of a heavy flow of cash to consumers made the November and early December lag in department store sales below last year's records seem strange indeed—unless.

(1) Price resistance by American shoppers has become the strongest influence in the sales picture—or (2) shoppers are going back this year to the prewar habit of buying at the "last minute."

A pickup in Christmas buying in the latest reported period—the first half of this week—pushed sales then up to about last year's level. This may indicate a weakening in buyer resistance that will continue in the 11 shopping days remaining.

Whether or not living costs were so high as to cut down ability to buy Christmas gifts, the tingle of money flowing to consumers was loud and clear. There was some shifting in the kinds of consumers it was going to, however.

As compared to average rates for the first 10 months of this year, the October income figures showed farmers in particular were getting less of it. So were landlords and persons owning their own business, though their income increased, too, in October.

SLOWDOWN NOTED

On the other hand, wage and salary workers—particularly factory and construction workers and miners—were getting more, as were stock and bond owners. Veterans' bonus receipts from state governments were down. So were compensation payments to the unemployed enough money for food and a minimum of clothes?

Dreary Time Ahead for 2

One Mansfield family is asking for just one Christmas gift—a home in which to spend the holidays. They have had a lot of bad luck. Their 12-year-old daughter is now in the hospital undergoing tests to determine the nature of an illness which has hospitalized her six times in the past four years.

The youngest child, an 18-month-old boy, is just beginning to show improvement from a siege of double pneumonia which has sent him to the hospital three times in the past year. There is another child, a two-and-a-half year old daughter.

Their landlady has served them with an eviction notice for their tiny three-room apartment, which they must vacate by Dec. 20, just five days before Christmas. This will be just about the time doctors expect to have the older daughter's illness diagnosed, and she will be ready for dismissal.

This family is not in need of financial assistance, but if there were a home in which they could observe their Christmas together, there would be cause for much celebration The father has been employed by the same company steadily in Mansfield for the past five years, since moving here from a neighboring state.

If you can help any of these families, call Mrs Margaret Mattox at The News-Journal office, 4251-6, daily except Sundays, from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.

OTTAWA —(AP)— Canada and Newfoundland signed a pact yesterday setting forth terms under which Newfoundland will become Canada's tenth province.

Newfoundland is Britain's oldest colony and sometimes is called the Gibraltar of The North because of its strategic position at the mouth of the St. Lawrence river.

The union of Newfoundland and Canada will become effective March 31, 1949, after formal approval of the terms by the Newfoundland government and the Canadian parliament and confirmation by the British parliament.

Job Rumors Heard Here

when E. P. Long moves in Jan 1, he is expected to make a number of changes in his official staff

Mrs Walter Underwood may go back as sheriff's clerk in the office in the courthouse, it is reported. She formerly held the job which has been filled by Carroll during Sheriff Robinson's tenure.

Harold Lutz, newly-elected prosecutor, said his appointments would not be released until after Christmas but rumor has it that Attorney James J. Mayer of Shelby, will become an assistant prosecutor under Lutz.

Lutz made a good showing in Shelby, home town of Theodore Lutz, the present prosecutor, in the November election.

Mentioned as superintendent of the Richland county office of the state highway department was Clarence Tugend, who formerly held the job.

There are reports that Howard Sword and Boyd Wierman, former Richland county engineers, are angling for the Ashland division highway engineer's job. The division post is one of the juciest political plums in the area.

The division engineer is appointed by the state highway director who has not been announced.

City Faces Pay Problem

then the pay increase issue would die, at least temporarily.

But it probably would crop up again at the next election. One member of the police department who was on the committee that steered the ordinance through to passage said if the ordinance is repealed, it would be brought up again next year.

If, on the other hand, Garrison revises the payroll, council appropriates enough funds to pay the increase for the remainder of this year and makes provisions for paying it next year, another problem will arise.

Other city employes are dissatisfied with their present salaries and want substantial increases.

One councilman, who declined to be quoted, said a new salary ordinance for city employes is being drawn up. He would not say whether it includes the police and firemen.

The big problem will be to find the funds for the increases. Money for them will be available in 1949 by curtailing some construction work and other department expenditures.

But by 1950 or 1951, if revenue remains at the present level, the possibility of a payroll or income tax to meet added expenses looms on the legislative horizon.

Coal Stockpile Termed Large

NEW YORK—(AP)—The New York Times says soft coal production is so far ahead of demand that mine operators would not care if miners take an extended "holiday."

In a dispatch from Washington by Joseph A. Loftus, the Times said stockpiles of soft coal were reported at 69 000,000 tons Nov. 1, the highest since before the war.

Police Watch 'Lifter' Depart

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — (AP) — Chief of Detectives John Lard mused Saturday about the strange ways of shoplifters.

Two officers on an anti-shoplifting detail reported to him they followed a woman who was seen stealing a pound of butter from a store. But she escaped them—roaring away in her new car which carried a list price of $3.000 .

Pledge of Allegiance to Flag

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Let Chinese Use Own Money First

WHILE every courtesy has been extended to Mme. Chiang Kai-shek since her arrival in Washington, including a conference with President Truman, it is quite apparent that her appeal for further substantial aid to China has been coolly received, with little likelihood that additional billions of American money will be poured into that maelstrom of internal dissension and never-ending conflict.

In addition to revelations of corruption in government and misuse of funds and equipment already sent to China in an effort to bolster the Nationalist forces of Chiang Kai-shek, there is a growing feeling that much Chinese wealth is being withheld from the war effort, despite pleas for more help from the United States.

An illuminating comment on this phase of the Chinese situation is found in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, which says that well above $500,000,000 in bank accounts, currency, gold and securities is in hiding in this country, with an unestimated additional amount cached in other parts of the world.

Claim is made that around $80,000,000 is on deposit in the United States in the names of prominent people in China, and it is rightly contended that the fortunes of Chinese themselves should be expended before the taxpayers of the United States are called upon for more financial help.

When it is taken into account that around $3,600,000,000 has already been milked from the United States to "aid China," where conditions seem worse than even during the Japanese invasion, common sense dictates that there be no more such foolish waste of money which government draws from American taxpayers.

Memorial Project Taking Form

JUST THIRTY YEARS AGO what was known as the Richland County Memorial Society was organized for the purpose of constructing a memorial to soldiers from this county. That was soon after the armistice had ended the fighting in World War I.

Since then there has been another World war; a new generation has grown up, and many changes have come about locally and in the nation and world.

The memorial project that was looked toward thirty years ago did not progress to the point of accomplishment, as has been the case with some other worthy local endeavors.

Now the subject is being revived by the Richland County Joint Veterans' Commission, which is in the early stages of plans for a combined auditorium-field house of sufficient capacity to meet what has long been recognized as a community need.

Preliminaries will include development of ideas as to facilities that should be provided in such a structure; probable costs and the likelihood of financing the project through public contributions.

Reference is made to the unsuccessful effort along the same line thirty years ago merely to emphasize the need for careful planning and active work by a large group of enthusiastic supporters to bring success to such a commendable enterprise. Here's hoping that it can be done.

Improvement of Comic Books Advised

AGITATION for improvement of the so-called comic books has led to a report listing specific recommendations. It was prepared by a committee of three New York educators, at the request of a group of publishers of comics. If their suggestions should be adopted by the industry, the comics would undergo a considerable change.

The committee recommended better language, based on study of the language levels of the intended readers. It said the comics should stick to accurate representation of facts. They should take advantage of their opportunities for constructive education and public service: they should discourage discrimination and seek to improve relations among all peoples. The general appearance and artistic standards of the comic publications should be raised, and other studies should be made. These points are the gist of recommendations.

There is no apparent reason why comic books could not follow these recommendations, and still have powerful appeal for young readers. The best and most enduring literature has always been that which has a high purpose, and which deals with the facts of the world as it is, in terms of hopes for what it might become.

Troublesome Question of Spain

CONGRESSMAN Paul W. Shafer of Michigan, who has been visiting Spain, says the United States should restore diplomatic relations with the Franco government. He suggests we should help to reorganize the Spanish army, which Mr. Shafer frankly admits "needs everything"—which is the truth.

The Spanish-American war showed Americans how feeble was Spain's once great military might. Nor did the loss of the war shock the Spaniards into doing anything to improve it. In the 1920's they were utterly unable to put down the guerrilla revolt of Abd el-Krim in Morocco, and had to beg the French to do it for them.

The notion that Spain might be of military assistance in the event of a new war in Europe is fantastic. Military people do see possible value, however, in the strategic position of Spain, sheltered from the continent by the Pyrenees, and controlling the gateway to the Mediterranean. But it is doubtful whether this possible value is great enough to offset the waste of sending aid to the Franco government, and the loss of good name we would suffer in alignment with a regime of such character.

Wage Increases Influence Food Prices

By LOUIS BROMFIELD

OUT of the rosy picture of the immediate future given us both by politicians and economists, two proverbial clouds no bigger than a man's hand have appeared on the horizon. One is the drop in agricultural prices and the other is the astronomical budget demanded by the department of defense. Both could indicate eventual disaster. The immediate overall drop in food prices is a good omen of leveling off unless—and this is a big unless—the unions begin another round of wage demands. But a continued fall of agricultural prices plus higher wages and higher costs for what the farmer buys would set off again the same cycle which has repeated itself in every depression since the War Between the States.

BROMFIELD

It would mean that the farmer began to stop buying and when the farmer cannot go to town to buy a tractor, a tire, a gallon of gas or whatever industrial commodity you wish to name, it means that men are out of work in the factories and that inventories begin to crowd the shelves.

When the farmer cannot buy, he can at least dig in and survive but when the industrial worker is out of work, he not only ceases to buy the very commodities he was engaged in manufacturing but in a short time is likely to be on relief paid by taxpayers.

These taxpayers, in turn, find taxes cutting deeply into their purchasing power, thus throwing more workers out of jobs and throttling their purchasing power in turn for both agricultural and industrial commodities. That was the exact pattern of the Great Depression.

* * *

Purchasing Power Vital.

FEW PEOPLE realize that perhaps as much as 50 per cent of our population draws its employment and purchasing power from agricultural sources.

Not more than 20 per cent of the populations is engaged in agriculture but at least 80 per cent of our small towns and villages—up to and including cities as large as Omaha, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Des Moines and many others - find their incomes and purchasing power largely or wholly dependent upon agricultural income.

Beyond that lies the whole of the huge agricultural machinery business, the food - processing plants, and as much as a third to a fourth of the steel, oil, rubber and other industries.

When a farmer cannot go to town and buy commodities or services, it is the beginning of disaster for everybody.

A great deal has been made in the press about the number of farmers who have grown rich in the war years. Usually these articles quote national gross agricultural income but when and if the editor chooses to make sense and quote net income, the picture is quite different.

For a tractor or an automobile or any other commodity necessary to agriculture, the farmer is forced to pay upwards of 100% increase in price over 1940. Moreover, he is subject to income tax and the more he makes the less net profit he has left, down to as little as a sixth of his income in the case of the great wheat and cattle ranchers.

* * *

Farmer Paid for Production.

IN THE case of the industrial worker, the increase in the number of dollars received in wages has more than compensated for the rise in prices. This does not happen with the farmer.

An industrial worker may be lazy or incompetent but he receives the same pay as the competent and energetic workman at the next bench, and usually it is the lazy and incompetent workmen who yells loudest for a wage increase.

A lazy or incompetent farmer is not compensated to the same degree as the skillful and productive farmer. His income is in exact ratio to his skill and productive efficiency. Nevertheless his purchasing power is of great importance to the nation.

In a sense parity and price supports take the place of the leveling-off process in income versus outgo which the unions have achieved by organization and united action.

The union guarantees that the lazy and incompetent workman shall be recompensed on the same basis of the skilled and efficient one, even up to the ridiculous principle of seniority by which promotion is determined by the length of time a man has been working at a given job.

In the case of agriculture, the government provides the same security to the lazy or incompetent farmer. Both in turn serve to guarantee an income which in turn can be spent on purchasing commodities from fellow workers all the way from butter to automobiles.

Parity guarantees are very little understood by the average citizen. Put very simply, parity is the principle that a farmer must be guaranteed a price for his commodities in ratio with the price of the commodities he buys.

Since wage raises increase prices the parity supports of farm prices have been steadily increased, since parity legislation was enacted, a factor which many economists have overlooked. It is no longer simply the operation of economic law; it has become an arbitrary and fundamental system guaranteed by government. It is certainly one factor which organized labor has overlooked either through ignorance or through hypocrisy.

In the long run of course, the farmer has the advantage because when he ceases to receive a profit, however small, on his commodities, he ceases to produce and the city people and the industrial worker either pays higher prices because of shortage of high protein foods or taxes in subsidies or goes on a pretty slim diet.

Even Russia by taking out her productive farmers and exiling or shooting them has not been able to solve that one.

* * *

Supply and Demand.

THERE is under our noses at the moment, one excellent example of the operation of the inexorable law of supply and demand. With an abundance of corn selling at a less than half the price of a year ago, the superficial thinkers jumped to the conclusion that we would have cheaper beefsteak almost immediately.

No such thing has happened. Beefsteak today is higher in price than it was a year ago. Why?

Because there is not enough beefsteak and because there are three people bidding for every beefsteak with money to pay for the best, and so the relation of corn prices has nothing whatever to do with the price of beefsteak.

If the government sought to control the price of beef and bring it into ratio with the price of corn two things would happen at once (1) black markets, (2) an even greater shortage of beef.

Today's supply of beef is 10 per cent below the supply of a year ago and the shortage is a hand-over from the government price regulation of the war years. Ranchers and feeders cut down their production at that time and one does not grow a beefsteak in six weeks or six months.

If the government intervened again today, beef production would be curtailed still further until conceivably the only beef available would be in the black market at prices which limited its purchase entirely to the high income group.

Very likely all of this sounds like "Alice in Wonderland" and to a great extent it is, but it is merely a brief analysis of what happens when pressure groups, whether farm or labor, theorists and others begin to monkey with the incredibly complex economy under which we live.

And now the defense department has asked for the incredible sum of $24 billion dollars while at the same time, on the word of Secretary Forrestal himself, it refuses to coordinate or unify the activities of the Army, Navy and Air Forces or to make any reforms in the direction of economy and efficiency.

That means taking $24 billion dollars out of the taxpayers' pockets or borrowing it from him as bonds and turning it back into the hands of millions of less competent or provident citizens who will spend it again faster than it comes in on beer parlors and instalment buying.

You might well say "Riddle me this one!" As Dr. Nourse, the President's chief economic advisor has just said, "I do not expect an immediate recession but if it comes it will be man made."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Gen. Clay Anticipates No Shooting War

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Sodium fluorine, the magic chemical that helps prevent tooth decay in children, now is in general use throughout the country, President Truman was informed this week by officials of the American Dental association. Virtually all dentists are using it to various extents, chiefly on school children. "I'm mighty glad to hear that progress is being made." the President told a delegation led by Dr. Clyde M. Minges of Rocky Mount, S. C., president of the American Dental association. "I've been very interested in sodium fluorine since the Public Health Service first revealed its amazing qualities."

PEARSON

Then the President added with a smile:

"It would be a wonderful thing if we could shed our teeth when they start bothering us and grow a brand new set."

Truman promised to give "serious thought" to a proposal by Dr. Minges and his colleagues that he proclaim a National Children's Dental Health Day next February to stimulate greater interest in the care of teeth by school children and their parents.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round on March 5 first reported the amazing progress of the Public Health Service in using sodium fluorine to preserve children's teeth, and gave credit to Congressman Frank Keefe, Wisconsin Republican, for helping the Public Health Service. It was reported that sodium fluorine would save about 50 per cent of children's teeth from decay.

At that time, the American Dental Association's Journal was critical both of this column and the Public Health Service for publishing this claim, but ADA officials now admit that painting children's teeth with sodium fluorine at proper intervals when under the age of 13 will preserve them in about 40 per cent of the cases.

"No War"—Clay.

GEN. LUCIUS CLAY expects the Russians to intensify the cold war, but to stop short of a shooting war.

Talking privately to visiting congressmen from the House armed services committee, Clay predicted that the Russians would haunt Europe with the spectre of war, but would not fight their cause on the open battlefield. Their game is to stir up chaos and fear, as a breeding ground for communism.

The general admitted, however, that a misfire in this delicate battle of nerves could easily precipitate a war.

Greatest factor holding Russia back is American air power, Clay said, despite the fact that he is a ground soldier.

"The Russians have more respect for our air power than some of us at home have," he declared.

The constant droning of the Berlin airlift in Russian ears has only increased that respect, he added, and, at the same time, impressed the rest of Europe.

It is Clay's belief that Russia wants to test whether the airlift can survive the winter before backing down from the Berlin blockade.

Clay told the congressmen that the communists are going from door to door in Berlin as systematically as magazine-subscription statesmen, trying to scare individuals into the communist camp. At night their threats are backed up with kidnapings and acts of terror, hundreds of individuals having disappeared forever behind the Iron Curtain.

Forgive the Dixiecrats?

CHATTING with Rep. Albert Thomas of Texas the other day, President Truman hinted that he might be willing to let bygones be bygones as far as the Dixiecrats and certain Democratic campaign prodigals are concerned.

Without mentioning the Dixiecrats or anyone by name, Truman told the tall Texas congressman: "There's been a lot of newspaper talk and speculation about how I'm going to get even with individual Democrats and groups who were against me before the election.

"Well, it's not true," he added. "I'm not mad at anyone and I don't want to punish any individuals or groups within the party. And I'm not mad at any states that went against me.

"I just want to weld the Democratic party back together again into the solid organization it used to be in the old days. I'm going to keep right on working toward that end."

Note—Says Ernest Cuneo re Truman's cheek-turning toward the Dixiecrats: "He's like a man whom you tell, 'I've just shot your two brothers in the back,' and he says, 'That's fine, let's all be friends'."

Rebuilding Ruhr.

ACTING Secretary of State Lovett held some important backstage meetings with the joint congressional "watchdog" committee last week that weren't supposed to get into the press.

They were on the vital question of rebuilding the Ruhr. The "watchdog" committee, dominated by Old Guard Republicans, demands that the state department ignore the wishes of the French and begin rebuilding the Ruhr.

In fact, the "watchdog" committee is so determined on rebuilding the Ruhr that—believe it or not—they demanded that the state department and Marshall Plan Administrator Paul Hoffman immediately serve notice on the French that unless they go along with rebuilding German industry, all Marshall Plan aid to France will be cut off.

Assignment: America

Could It Happen Again?

By KENNETH L. DIXON

CHI CHEEN ITSA, Yucatan, Mexico — You get an eerie feeling, standing here in the midst of the crumbling ruins which now seem lost in the smothering greenness of the Central American jungle.

It's a strange feeling, the kind of thing that comes to you sometimes when you meet someone you think you've met before, or pass down a street you think you've walked before, or go through a scene you feel sure somehow you've acted out in exact detail some time in the past.

Pretty soon you shake your head and wonder—and if you don't have a firm grip on yourself, you tremble a bit . . .

This was a great civilization, once upon a time, this complex ancient life which now seems marked only by a pyramid, a ball stadium and a handful of huge buildings built of stone.

This was an entire intricate way of life. This was a city, one of many cities, and each of them was founded upon the solid background of an extended, well organized community.

Today, the wise men say the whole civilization was built upon the basis of a single farm product—corn. They say the sum and total of the early Mayan culture was founded on that capacity for burning off segments of the jungle and planting the ground to corn. And, though the only implements of the time were pointed sticks and the like, it may well be that they were right.

* * *

Conquered the Jungle.

BUT, as you stand here, it doesn't seem important. The frightening thing is that here a complicated civilization once flourished, and now the ever-present jungle reaches out in a constant effort to cover its remains.

The whole business frightens you as you wander among the ruins, because there is no denying that here a way of life as complex as our own once held forth—and now it is gone.

Here the farmers prospered. They built cities, meeting halls and temples. Their organized, socialized labor (one-third of what you produce you can keep yourself; the rest goes to the state) laid mammoth stone upon stone, and cities reared their heads out of the wilderness.

Here, with a fine sensitiveness, all the inevitable sidelights of a civilization were developed. There was art in all its forms. Engraved in painstaking detail on stone there were written records. Some of them we have interpreted today; others remain inexplicable. But no one questions that they all have a definite, specific meaning—if only we could read the handwriting in the stone.

* * *

Socialism In Action.

HERE, a complex religion was perfected, and a class society. And out of the combination came a credo which sacrificed, not all the nation's young manhood and womanhood, but only a chosen few—and the sacrifice served to satisfy the gods of that religion and the belligerent leaders of each class in that society.

Here, there were priests, average citizens and slaves. Here, there were engineers and architects. Here, there were hunters and hewers of wood and drawers of water. Here there was, in its final form, one of the harshest, most gruelling, forms of socialism.

Here, for a time before its eventual fall, civilization seemed to have come a full cycle—and therein lies the frightening aspect.

For, unquestionably, the Mayan scientists outran their time. There are stone monuments today to prove they solved the secrets of the sun, the seasons and the star.

You can find a calendar which is more accurate than the one we use today.

The frightening thing, of course, is not that such a civilization existed here in America some two thousand years ago. The frightening thing is that it crumbled, and the jungle crept back in to cover its remains.

that, mind you, was before the days of the atom bomb.

Is America 'Smart?'

By ELSIE ROBINSON

SO YOU think America is a highly progressive nation, huh? You sneer at the illiterate people who come to us from other countries. And you ride across our rich, abundant land and point with pride at our many handsome schools.

"We're the best educated people on earth!" you say with pride.

Guess again, pardner. We're not the best educated nor even the second best, per capita.

THE GRIM TRUTH IS THAT OUT OF OUR 140,000,000 CITIZENS—NOTE THIS WELL: 10,000,000 CANNOT READ OR WRITE.

And those ten million are not composed of the infantile or senile. They are husky, healthy workers who had neither time nor opportunity for schooling in their early years and who find even less opportunity in our scholarless rural communities.

Does that shock you? It should. And here's more of the same dynamite. Even those Americans who received "book larnin" are often illiterate in their use of it.

Ask any average graduate of high school or even college to read aloud the news from a daily newspaper or any book you choose and you will find that he cannot read save in the stuttering monotone of a third grade child.

Nor can he figure.

Nor can he compose a simple essay on any current subject or write a letter worth mailing.

* * *

WE ARE born speaking English in this country but we are not educated until we can use that English in its various forms from slang to sonnet. And a Cherokee would be ashamed of the jargon that most of us speak.

Nor is this the fault of our schools or teachers. It is the direct and shameful fault of you and me and all the other taxpayers. It is the direct result of the miserly wage which most of our states pay their educators. No bricklayer on earth would work for an American teacher's salary . . . no plasterer . . . no stevedore.

Our teachers' salaries in most states are so low that many are forced to do piece work on the side or choose some alien craft rather than the one for which they are equipped and to which their hearts are given.

Educators in North Dakota are so scarce that Catholic nuns have gone into the schools to save children from becoming actual morons. To do this they were forced to relinquish their habits and wear civilian dress.

Though the taxpayers could raise a fuss about a dress, they couldn't come across with enough to pay an educator. And though I am not a Catholic, I wish those brave women well with all my heart and my deepest gratitude . . . and cry shame on a state and nation which permits such extremity.

We have shown that we can do great things in any emergency of war. We have conquered the wilderness, subdued savage tribes, bridled floods and forest fires. Yes, we're a lusty lot when it comes to showing off, but when it comes to educating our American born children in the American way of life, the most illiterate "foreigner" can sneer at us. And does.

I figure a lot of folks who were laughing off the House committee on un-American activities may have laughed too soon. Anyhow, the debut of the pumpkin in the proceedings would seem to answer whether the inquiry is vegetable or mineral.

* * *

It's amazing how the framed-up divorce scandal in New York is being defended on the theme that "when two people don't love each other, it's a shame not to make divorce easier." An excuse for the collusion, dirty work and law defiance is found in this claim.

* * *

It's bunk. Most people find marriage has its tough spots and that the first year or two are the toughest. "You don't love me any more" is heard all over the neighborhood the first month. But most folks go on with enough give and take to make the marriage work and give love a break. Which ain't a bad idea, no matter what lawyers think.

As Others See It

Painting as a Hobby.

Winston Churchill relates that he turned to painting as a pastime and as a means of avoiding worry. We cannot recommend it as a method for general use. Most people would be terribly worried if they tried to paint anything more than a barn or a kitchen chair.—Kansas City Star.

Daily Bible Thought

Commune with thine own heart upon your bed, and be still.—Ps. 4:4.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On December 12, 1882, the Bijou theater in Boston became the first theater in the United States to be lighted by electricity.

It Says Here:

—By KEN WOODMAN

WHILE we would not go so far as to say that the congressional spy probe is just an old red fish that has been lying around Washington since 1939, we do say the public would be more interested in knowing what is going on in the state department right now.

* * *

There have been rumors that this venerable division of our government now has so many employes that engineers may have to fill in the tidal basin to provide a site for a building big enough to store the names and addresses of the diplomats and their assistants.

* * *

If even a few of these people are raising pumpkins in Maryland, it'll take until 2049 to get them all investigated, so we'd better get started.

New World Brought To Helpless Shut-Ins

Ceiling Projector, Filmed Books Gifts of Shelby Units

By JOHN E. PATRICK
(N-J State Correspondent)

SHELBY — Through the efforts of the Gold Star Families, the American Legion and the Legion Auxiliary a new world will be brought to the helpless shut-ins in this community.

Wednesday evening a committee representing the three groups formally presented a ceiling projector and 29 microfilmed books to the chairman of the board of directors of the Shelby Memorial Library in an initial effort to provide reading and entertainment for those in this area who are physically handicapped in such a way the use of ordinary reading materials is either very difficult or impossible.

COMMITTEE RESPONSIBLE

A committee headed by M. E. Berkley and consisting of the following members: William Emick, Leonard Waines, Mrs. Russel Crispin, Mrs. Howard Hannafus and Mrs. George Crall, consummated the initial aims of the three groups in the purchase of the machine and its formal presentation by Legion Commander John Echelberry and Auxiliary President Mrs. Ray Laser to Gerald Dennis, chairman of the library Board of Directors and Miss Elsie Kopal, librarian.

Originally developed for the use of personnel in military hospitals, this equipment was made available to civilian agencies in 1947. The projector is simple to use. As the roll of microfilm is run through a vertical projector, each page is clearly shown on the ceiling above the user's bed. Pages are advanced or reversed by means of a conveniently located remote control switch. This switch may be operated by the flick of a finger, the pressure of a toe or the nod of the head.

By this means the dull hours no longer exist for these bedridden, handicapped persons. Because they can operate the projector by a simple push of the switch and a button in a plastic box, and because they need no one to help them, they regain confidence in themselves and feel less dependent on others.

AN EXHIBIT NOW

For the time being the machine will be on exhibition at the Memorial library until it can be demonstrated at the next meeting of the Shelby doctors at which time a definite plan for the use of the equipment by the bedridden will be adopted. The tentative plan for the loan of the machine is upon doctors recommendation, however, the length of time for its loan and other particulars will be adopted at the time of the meeting.

The American Legion also has subscribed to the Book of the Month for a one-year term. By this means all the best sellers will be available to the physically handicapped on microfilm.

Additional books may be purchased at a lower cost than the average price of the original books themselves. It is anticipated civic-minded groups and individuals will add to the present library of books on films from the 500-odd titles now available to set up a well-rounded library.

It is interesting to note the projector and books are purchased on a non-profit basis and from a non-profit organization and with only one thought in mind, that of bringing new life and enjoyment into dreary hours of helpless shut-ins.

Marion Credit Association Plans $120,000 Stock Sale

TIRO—The sale of $120,000 worth of stock in the Marion Production Credit association soon will be offered to its 1,288 members, it was announced by H. I. Swalley, of Galion, who heads the organization.

Five sectional meetings last month found members voting unanimously for the stock sale to retire money supplied by the Production Credit corporation. The move will make the Marion concern a completely co-operatively owned association.

It serves Crawford, Morrow, Marion, Wyandot and Hardin counties and at present members own $201,000 in reserves and stock. The stock will be sold members on a proportional basis of a 1-3 ratio. No member can purchase more than $1,000 in stock.

Jack Grierson, credit examiner for the intermediate credit bank for Ohio, discussed the stock sale at recent meetings in Sulphur Springs, Mt. Gilead, Kenton and Upper Sandusky with directors and members of the unit.

The association re-elected two directors in addition to voting for the stock issue. H. I. Swalley, of Crawford county, and Wesley Gregg, of Wyandot county were retained to continue serving with Harley Batchelder, of Morrow county, Harley Myers, of Marion county, and Paul Durksin, of Hardin county.

Pianist Janis Began Career On Xylophone

NEW YORK — (AP) — Pianist Byron Janis, who began his musical career on a xylophone and at 20 has just earned columnlong reviews packed with praises from New York critics, was christened Janis by radio.

The first name, Byron, was his parents' choice. His father's last name is Banks; When 10-year-old Banks broadcast, the announcer decided he wanted something more euphonious, and on the spot he picked Janis.

But a precedent for such a change had already been set in his family. Banks itself is a sharp abbreviation of the original Russian name, and Byron's father has five brothers who also changed to other names, every one different. Janis is the seventh different last name in the family.

The xylopgone was a Christmas gift which the youngster took to kindergarten. On it he picked out "Jingle Bells" after his teacher played the piece on the piano; Then he picked it out on the piano. Shortly after, he was sent home with a note pinned to his shirt. He expected it meant a spanking, but it proved to be a recommendation that he study music seriously.

He has done little else since. He studied first with his sister's teacher; Then, after a hearing from Josef Lhevinne, with Adele Marcus in New York; Nowadays, for special problems, with Horowitz. He has given about 100 concerts in this country and South America, some with major orchestras. He has reversed the usual custom of a New York debut first and then barnstorming; He barnstormed first, and made his Carnegie Hall debut last month.

Dealers Hit Officer's Zeal In Plymouth

PLYMOUTH—The over-zealous enforcement of speed laws by Marshal Robert Meisner has brought protests from merchants here. They claim his drive against traffic violators is scaring trade away from Plymouth.

Meisner succeeded Clay Hulbert as head of the police department after Hulbert resigned under pressure from Mayor Carroll Robinson, who charged inefficiency.

The biggest complaint of downtown merchants has been the large number of arrests made of motorists traveling only a few miles an hour over the speed limit.

"No one seems to be able to drive a car on the streets to suit the marshall," one merchant declared.

Between 1776 and 1820, a quarter of a million Europeans immigrated to the United States, half the number which poured in each year between 1890 and 1900.

Badly Needed Building Assured In Ashland

Library Board Lets $153,795 In Awards For Construction

By VIRGINIA LEED
(N-J State Correspondent)

ASHLAND—Ashland public library board played Santa Claus to the citizens of Ashland Friday with the promise of a new and badly needed library building for 1949.

The board president, Charles Sharrock, announced contracts have been awarded for construction of the library on Claremont avenue, two north of the American Legion home. The lot was purchased several years ago by the board.

Cost of the building is estimated at $153,795, the cost to be covered with the $125,000 bond issue approved in 1944 plus other money from bequests and gifts. This sum will cover cost of the building alone, not including equipment, landscaping, surfacing of drives or sidewalks. The board is hoping that friends of the library will finance these expenditures, according to Sharrock.

Construction is expected to start shortly with Aug. 1, 1949 as the goal for completion.

Plans for the building were drawn by Hahn and Hayes, Toledo architects. Contracts were awarded as follows: General contract, Mosser Construction Company, Fremont, $116,900; electrical, Dudley H. Seltzer, Shelby, $3,368; heating and plumbing, T. O. Murphy, Oberlin, $16,152. Architects fees total approximately $9,000.

FIRST HOME OF OWN

The Georgian type building, constructed of brick, will give the local library the first home of its own. Organized in 1892, the library has been housed in the now antiquated Opera House building's second floor since 1889. Nearly all the rest of the Opera House has been condemned for public use but the library has stayed on in its shabby second floor quarters, crowded and entirely inadequate for present-day use.

In 1944 the $125,000 bond issue for construction of a new library, larger than the one now planned, passed by a large majority. Immediately building costs soared and the board delayed construction awaiting lower prices.

ARCHITECT'S SKETCH OF PROPOSED LIBRARY

Now the Opera House is subject of a major local controversy as city council attempts to sell it and groups of citizens oppose the sale. If eventually acquired by a private owner, it is expected the building would be razed and the library would have no home.

Facing a possible eviction, the board has settled for a new building smaller than that originally planned, in order to keep within the allotted funds.

TWO-SEORY BUILDING

The building will measure 98 by 60 feet, with two stories and a basement. The main floor will house reading rooms, reference room, work room and an office. The basement will have an auditorium, space for a record library, storage rooms, boiler room and toilet facilities. On the second floor will be work rooms and staff rooms.

The building will serve as a memorial for World War dead with a bronze plaque containing names of Ashland county war dead.

Bucyrus Pastors Elect Officials

BUCYRUS—Bucyrus Ministerial association members chose Dr. D. L. Custis, pastor of Epworth Methodist church, as president for the coming year at the annual election of officers held last week. Dr. Custis will succeed Rev. J. P. Cordero, First Methodist pastor.

Rev. John Hough of Brokensword Evangelical-United Brethren church, was elected vice president and Rev. Mahlon D. Wenger, pastor of Woodlawn Evangelical-United Brethren church, was named secretary-treasurer.

The association announced preliminary plans for the annual week of prayer services, Jan. 2-7, in Bucyrus churches.

The annual Christmas party for members and their wives will be held Monday night, Dec. 20, in Epworth Methodist church basement at which time the new officers will be in charge.

Evangelist Sets Week of Services

ASHLAND — Evangelical services will be held this week in St. Peters Evangelical and Reformed church by Rev. S. S. Davis, former pastor of the Evangelical United Brethren church here for eight years and who also served Canton and Butler congregations.

The church is a landmark known as "the old German church" and is located on Route 13 five miles south of Mansfield. Its pastor, Rev. James R. Davis is son of the evangelist.

Services will be held daily at 7:30 p. m. with the exception of Saturday. One is scheduled there next Sunday evening. The wife of the evangelist will assist with the services and offer solo work. Special musical programs will be featured daily.

European Labor Unions Combat Communism

Leaders Attempting To Break Red Grip

Italians Waging Fierce Struggle

ROME — (AP) — A great struggle, marked by violence, is being waged in Italy to shape the future of the country's labor movement.

Two veteran labor leaders head the opposing forces: Communist Giuseppe di Vittorio, secretary of the Italian General Confederation of Labor (CGIL), and Christian Democrat Giulio Pastore, secretary of the Free Italian Confederation of Labor (LGCIL).

Di Vittorio is fighting to hold together his split and dwindling ranks.

Pastore and his followers are fighting to extend their new organization, founded after the CGIL called a national general strike last July to protest the shooting of Communist Chief Palmiro Togliatti.

That strike, Pastore charges, was politically motivated and destroyed Italian workers' faith in union organization. He says the aim of his new group is to restore that faith. Ranks of the free confederation are open to members of all political parties.

Already there has been violence. Last month one of the free confederation's provincial organizers was clubbed and stabbed to death in the strongly communist Bologna area.

Pastore promptly called upon Interior Minister Mario Scelba. He claimed the attack was part of a "vast attempt at intimidation."

In labor circles there is fear violence will increase as the Free Confederation is extended. Its power already has been felt in averting (by agreeing to negotiate) a strike of short haul railroad men.

Pastore, a squat little man not unlike the late Fiorello La Guardia in stature and action, declined in an interview to give an estimate of the size of the new confederation, but claimed it already has cut deeply into the once claimed 7,000,000 membership of the CGIL.

Although the Free Confederation's constituent assembly voted against connection with either state or church, it has moral support from the government and active, official support from church organizations.

Italian Catholic Action—the 4,000,000 strong shock troops of the Catholic church in Italy—announced in November it would support the Free Confederation.

Pastore himself, who once represented the minority opposition in the communist-dominated CGIL, has surrendered leadership of Italian Workmen of Catholic Action (ACLI).

One essential difference between the opposed labor groups is their stand on the European reconstruction program. The free confederation is all out for it. Di Vittorio's organization grudgingly agreed to accept United States aid, but has constantly attacked the reconstruction program as an assault on Italian labor.

"Membership in the CGIL," Pastore said at his busy temporary headquarters, "never reached the seven million claimed by Di Vittorio, and I do not believe its 1948 registration hit four million.

British Forming New Federation

LONDON, — (AP) — British labor leaders have formed the nucleus of a new trade union federation to counter the communist-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions (WFTU).

They're hoping to avoid a split in the WFTU with its 70,000,000 members in 50 countries, but they're going to be ready for one if it comes.

Its like a father disowning his son. The anti-communist British Trade Union Congress (TUC) was one of the principal organizers of the WFTU in 1945.

The WFTU was to be the principal liaison agent for world labor, a clearing house for all matters of interest to labor and a unifying agent. But, says the TUC, it has split labor over the issue of communism.

TUC leaders say the WFTU is working against the European recovery program which the TUC is supporting, and generally is "carrying on communist activities and propaganda which British labor refuses to put up with."

The TUC has asked the WFTU to suspend for a year—"we feel we probably could purge the communists from the leadership in 12 months," says one TUC official.

If the WFTU refuses to suspend—and it is generally accepted in London and Paris that it will—the TUC will withdraw its membership. Formal action is expected when the WFTU executive bureau meets in Paris in January.

Later in 1949 the TUC would announce, according to plans, that a new world federation of labor has been organized. It would act as a coordinating agent for member unions in the United States, in all the 16 countries, in South America, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and British dominions; an organization of probably 40,000,000, to 50,000,000 members, including the TUC's 8,000,000 in 180 unions.

The nucleus for this new organization was set up here last February during confidential discussions of labor leaders from all the ERP countries.

The Congress of Industrial Organizations (CIO) in the United States, one of the key organizations of the WFTU, also is expected to withdraw from the WFTU and other western bloc nations are expected to follow.

(Last month the CIO national convention in Portland, Ore., authorized its executive board to take any action considered necessary concerning its relationship with the WFTU. The American Federation of Labor is not affiliated with the WFTU).

"We want solidarity in the trade union movement, a unified drive of all trade union members for betterment of the workers' condition," said Herbert Tracy, an official of the TUC. "We know now that we'll never achieve it working through the WFTU as long as that organization is dominated by communists.

"The communists insist that the leaders of the WFTU be the masters, not the servants, of organized labor, that the executive bureau of the WFTU have powers to override any national federations. We here in Britain, in the United States, and in many other ERP countries feel that any world union headquarters has to be subordinate to its individual members."

300 Bosses Agree on Plan Of Lively Blonde Decorator

NEW ORLEANS — (AP) — Businessmen of many countries swing large deals here in a setting made attractive by the lively blonde mother of two teenage children.

Mrs. Alma B. Rawlinson, chief decorator of the swank New Orleans International Trade mart, has provided a background of murals and bright color for their transactions.

"It's really like a country general store," said Mrs. Rawlinson, explaining her work. "My job is to keep it from looking like one."

Actually, the mart is a 27-country store with 300 wholesale offices representing 26 foreign countries and 500 American firms.

In the offices are displayed wares ranging from tractors to baby buggies and from pharmaceuticals to pet and poultry supplies. Visiting buyers can examine the wares and place their orders, avoiding long trips to many states or to other countries.

Working for 300 bosses all at once wasn't easy—but Mrs. Rawlinson says she enjoyed decorating the mart, dedicated Nov. 30.

The bosses—managers of the firms which rent the offices—had their own ideas about decor.

Some thought conventional green steel desks and filing cabinets and wire baskets and swivel chairs would do fine.

But, Mrs. Rawlinson, a voluble blonde with fire in her eye, held out for a continuing pattern of modern design with flourishes of color.

So the mart, although it stands on a traditional New Orleans foundation of cypress pilings, became as modern as a Dali print.

The interior is a fantasy of color and curving lines. The corridors, which cut catty-corner through the building, are of monotones so that the shops stand out prettily in clear yellows, bright reds, pale greens and mauves.

Furniture for all the offices and show rooms is blonde, lightweight and modern, interchangeable for use anywhere. Many of the private offices have comfortable divans and chairs in rich, colorful leathers.

Mrs. Rawlinson believes comfort and beauty in working condition pay big dividends.

Funds Raised for Fireman's Widow

Mansfield's firemen are raising a fund to aid the family of William Kettner, Fremont fireman who was killed fighting the costly fire in that city Tuesday.

Fire Chief L. J. Steele said the public can make contributions to the fund by calling at the Central fire station at the city building before Wednesday.

He said that all firemen had already contributed or pledged to contribute to the fund for the widowed mother and two children.

In its original unbroken, unmelted form, every snowflake has its structure and shape built in units of six. These take on an almost endless variation of design.

Puerto Rico Under U. S. Fifty Years

Island Observes Its Anniversary

SAN JUAN, P. R. — (AP) — On its 50th birthday as a territory of the United States, Puerto Rico now finds itself far more prosperous, independent, healthy and literate than it was a half century ago under Spanish rule.

Puerto Ricans, however, generally agree that much remains to be done in the way of improvement.

It was on Dec. 10, 1898 that Spain signed away its claim to the island in the Paris treaty which ended the spanish-American war. The treaty wasnt ratified by the U. S. Senate until Feb. 6, 1899, and then by only one vote more than was necessary. But the island's government actually had changed hands the previous Oct. 18 when the Stars and Stripes was raised for the first time.

From 1493, when Columbus discovered the island, to 1898, Puerto Rico's destiny was generally in the hands of a captain-general, appointed by the Spanish throne, who reigned supreme in military affairs and practically so in civil affairs.

Since 1898, the island has been coming closer and closer to autonomy,

Last month, it elected its own governor, Luis Munoz Marin, for the first time. All previous 19 governors under American rule were appointed by the President and the last one was the first Puerto Rican to be so honored.

Puerto Rico's first executive council had six American-born members. Now they are all Puerto Ricans. Most of the government department heads used to be appointed by the President with the consent of the senate. Henceforth the island's governor will appoint his own cabinet, except the auditor.

Wheat Acreage Outlook Good

WASHINGTON — The agricultural department said Saturday that ample rainfall and mild temperatures are favoring growth of the new wheat crop and that most of it stands a good chance to survive the winter.

The first official estimate of total acreage and production for 1949 is scheduled for Dec. 20. It is generally assumed that farmers will plant about 80 millions acres of wheat for harvest next year.

This year's wheat crop, the second largest of record, was produced on about 77 and one-half million acres.

Money Pours Into 'Gratitude' Fund

FREMONT—The campaign to raise $4,000 for the completion of a home for the family of a fireman killed while fighting a department store fire here Monday night has brought in nearly $6,000 and additional contributions are coming in, firemen reported Saturday.

George Kettner, father of two, had his home half completed when he plunged to his death while fighting the fire that destroyed the Joseph department store here.

DAMAGE SUIT FILED

CLEVELAND —(AP)— A florist shop, Hine & Company, has sued Eastern Air lines and the Railway Express agency for $2,442.62, claiming orchids flown in from Venezuela were damaged by high altitudes.

Salvation Army "Rings the Bell"

Hats off to the lads and lassies who each year stand on icy sidewalks and windy corners, tinkling bells to remind us that dimes or dollars are needed for a worthy cause. Theirs is the true spirit of Christmas. They make it live. Yes, they are as much a part of Christmas as Santa himself.

By sincere, unselfish service, the Salvation Army workers bring warmth, good cheer, and happiness to many thousands, to homeless, but not-forgotten men. To weary women, worn by toil and drudgery. To eager, wide-eyed children whose only hope for a visit from Santa Claus comes through the never-failing zeal of these tireless workers.

Let's give cheerfully to the Salvation Army! Let's be extra generous this year! Our own Christmas will be merrier—our own New Year happier—if we have done our part in the great work through which the Salvation Army truly "rings the bell" at this time of year.

Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to all my Mansfield friends.

Carols Among Earliest Form Of Music Known to Mankind

Carols, dear to everyone at Christmas time because of the simple emotions they evoke, are among the oldest forms of music. The first of them was the carol of the Heavenly Host over the plains of Bethlehem (Luke 11.13-14) but the earliest manuscript of a carol is found in the British Museum in London executed in the thirteenth century.

The carol is perhaps the earliest form of the song and dance known to man, the derivation of the word itself being somewhat uncertain.

The more accepted derivatives are cantare, the Latin word for "to sing," and rola which is a joyous interjection. Some musicologists, however, find a different interpretation and contend that the word stems from the early word for chorus. Even more intriguing is the belief by some students that there is a relationship between druidical rites at Stonehenge in England, that mystic ring of monoliths. Carol is seen to be a vulgarization of Koroll, a circle, which came to mean a ring dance. Early records contain references to Stonehenge as "the carol."

The first book of carols was "auctorissed by my lord of London" in 1562 and bore the title page "Christenmasse Carowles." Some of these were legendary and were drawn from the Coventry Mystery Play "Joseph Was an Old Man," also from some of the English folk tunes, used as the vehicle for words relating to the Christ Child.

There seems little doubt that there is a pagan throwback to the carols carried into the Christian church. Religious dances were of record in Spain in the fifth century when the choir boys equipped with castanets capered, singing, around the lectern.

Carolling reached its musical height during the days of the Tudors although there is an historic reference in 1528 to the fact that when Henry VIII lay very ill he forbade "carols, bells and merrymaking."

The Puritans endeavored to do away with carols, holding that they had no religious significance and the Scottish people at an even earlier date had tried to suppress the lighter carols considering them "popish" and "pernicious."

As time went along, there was a tendency to widen the horizon of the carol and some of the good old drinking tunes were employed for the sacred words denoting the birth of Christ—no irreverence being intended, since carols were usually regarded as festive music.

The custom of singing carols from door to door is almost as old as the carols themselves. The first form was that of the watch maintained in nearly all English mediaeval cities. The men of the watch would sing carols accompanied by a flageolet and they would collect pence from the gentry. In the West Riding of Yorkshire today children parade from house to house with "milly" boxes (milady boxes) in which there is a crib and a recumbent babe and into which the money offered them is placed.

Rated among the most famous Christmas carols is "While Shepherds Watch Their Flocks by Night" written by Nahum Tate in 1703.

Charles Wesley in the eighteenth century wrote "Hark, How All the Welkin Rings," later paraphrased to "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing." "Good King Wenceslas" which denotes the Christmas charity of the Bohemian monarch, also ranks high. The repertoire increased as the carol custom spread through Europe to become known as Noels in France, and Wiegenlied in Germany.

The average barometric pressure at 5,000 feet altitude is 24.89 inches of mercury.

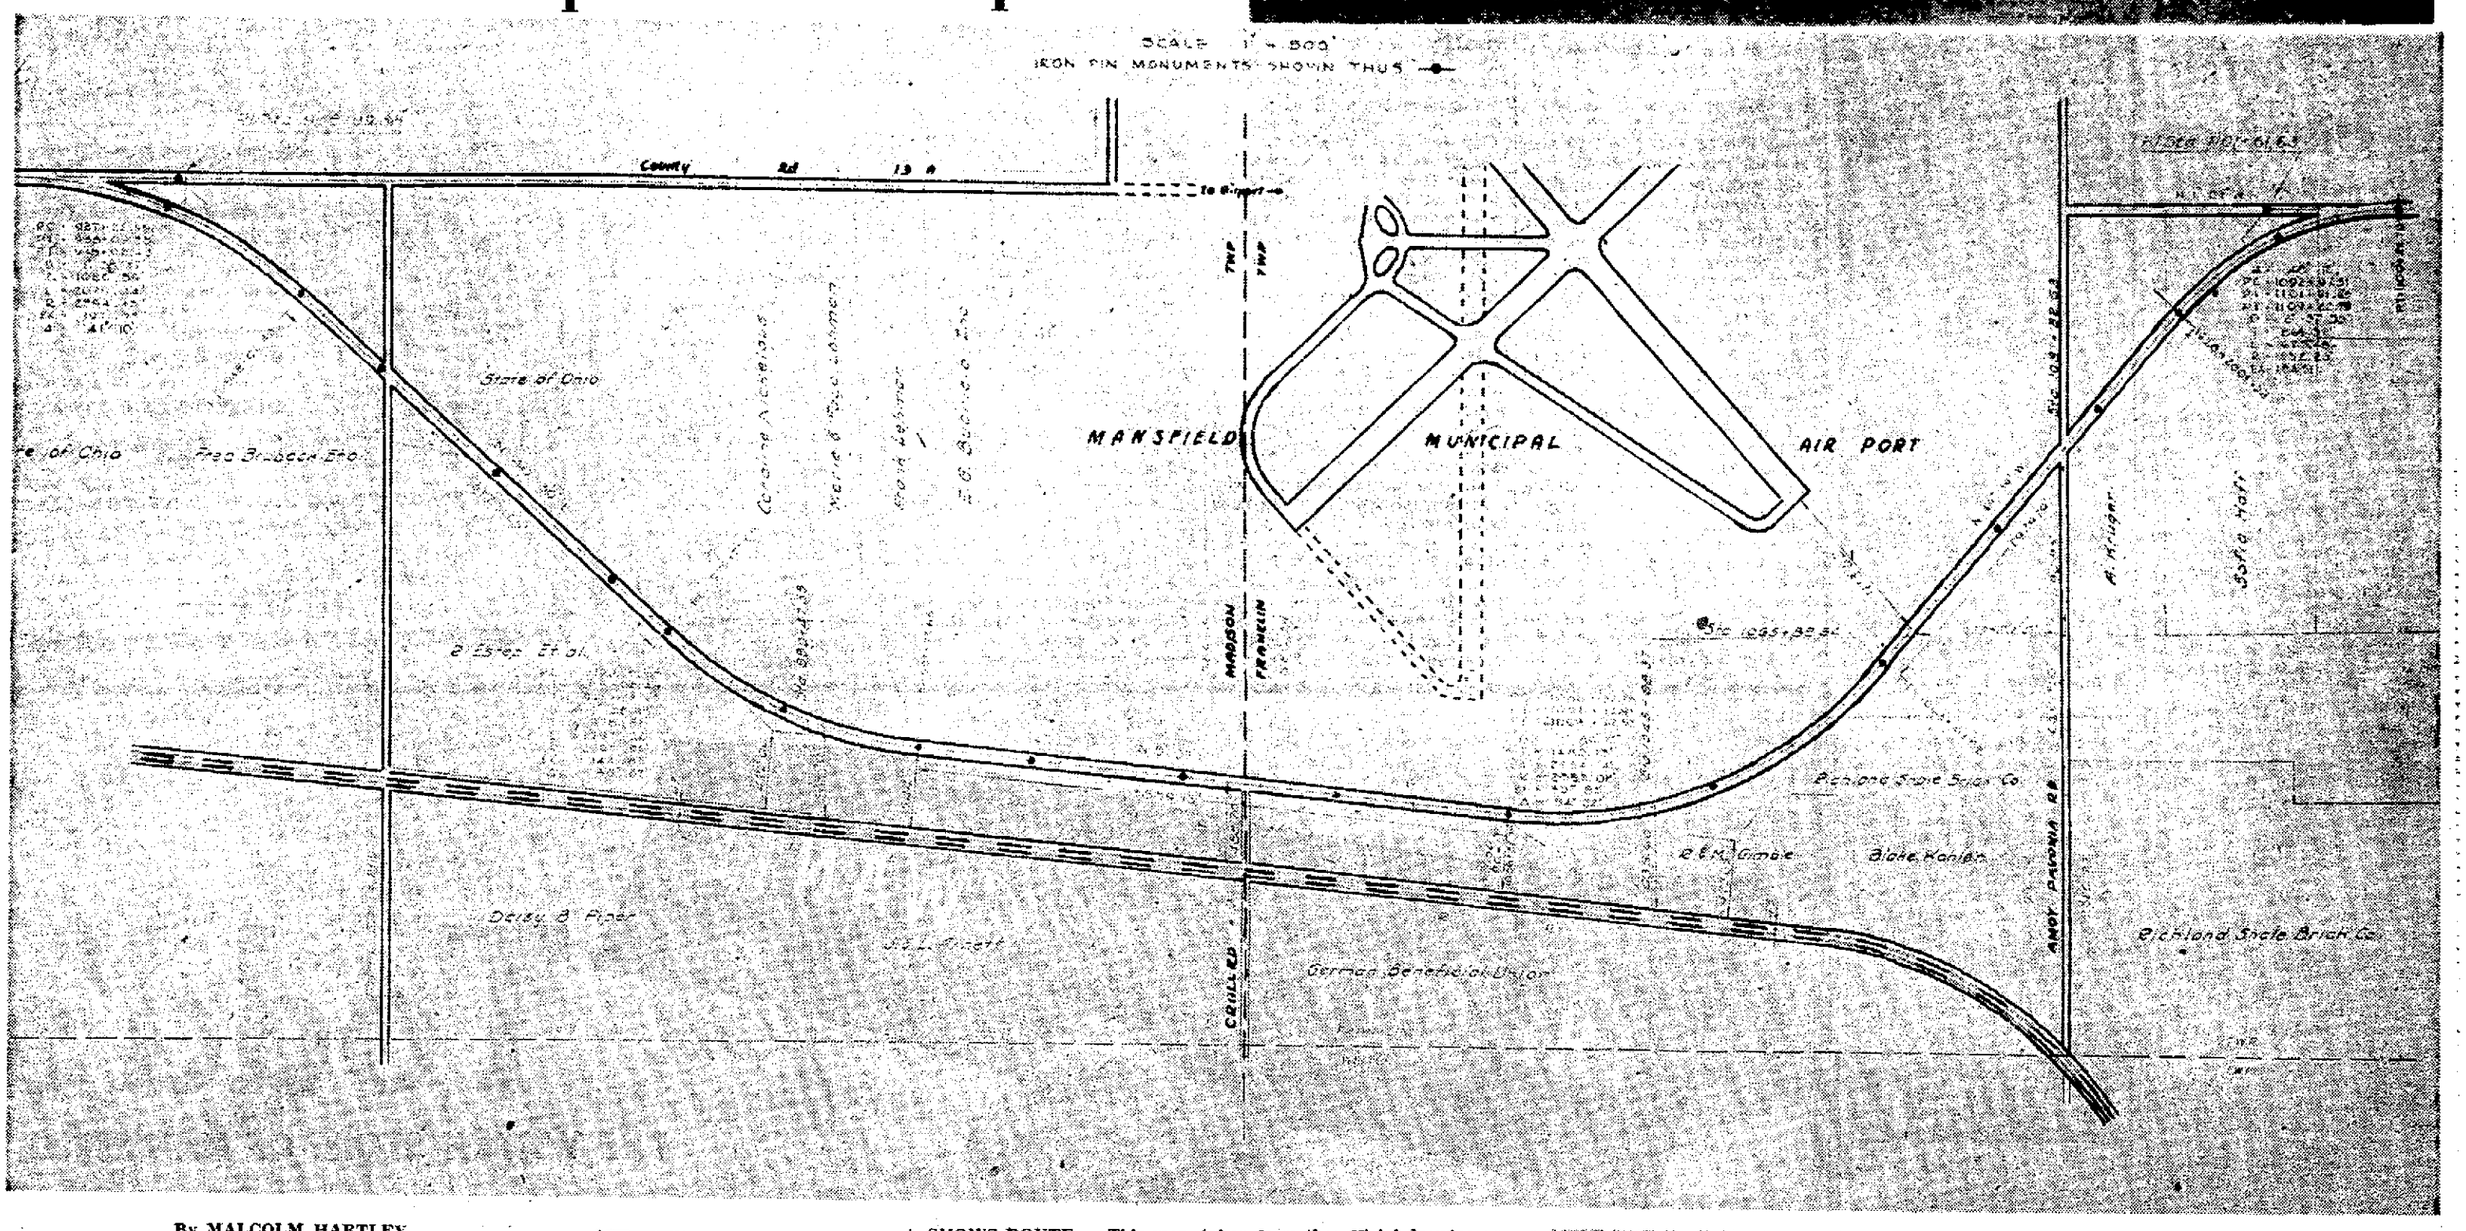
Construction of Highway Around Airport Comes as Final Chapter In Development



SHOWS ROUTE — This map, taken from the official drawing prepared in the office of County Engineer Walter Rusk, shows location of the new section of highway around Mansfield Municipal Airport which will restore an abandoned section of State Route 13 to the Ohio highway system

By MALCOLM HARTLEY

Work has been started on a new three-mile section of highway swinging east of the Mansfield Municipal airport. When the job is completed next fall, a missing link in State Route 13 will be restored.

How the north-south highway leading across the state came to be broken for a distance of nine miles in Richland county is a chapter in the story of the airport's development.

Back in 1942, city and county officials and civic leaders began pushing for the establishment here of one of the three "super-ports" which the Civil Aeronautics authority was planning for Ohio.

"We felt that a modern airport would be of more permanent good to the community than a war plant," explained John Routzon, Chamber of Commerce secretary, in recounting the history of the development.

The present modern airport offers conclusive evidence that the effort met with success. Yet one phase of the development has remained unfinished—and a thorn in the sides of airport backers who had pledged that it would be completed.

This was the highway improvement which is now in progress. When CAA engineers selected an airport site in 1943, the location was astraddle State Route 13. To overcome the difficulty, the state highway department was induced to abandon a nine-mile section of the highway, leading from Mansfield to the Shelby-Ashland road.

ACTION OPPOSED

Residents in the airport area opposed the action. They were promised a road would be built to serve the area, and that the highway would eventually be restored.

The state abandoned the section of highway in March, 1944, and it became a county road. The county took over the maintenance job, and built a detour around the west side of the airport which connected the two loose ends of the highway. The detour has been gradually improved, and now has an all-weather black-top surface.

In an effort to bring about restoration of the state route, County Engineer Walter Rusk had two surveys run on highway locations around the airport, one on the west, the other on the east side of the port.

In a public hearing it was determined the easterly route would be preferable for two reasons; first, that airport expansion would have to be to the west; second, that construction of a highway parallel to the Erie railroad would provide sites for industrial development between the highway and railroad.

Finally, on Oct. 4, 1948, a contract was drawn between the county commissioners and the state highway department for construction of the newly-located section. The agreement reached was not one which relieved the county of all responsibility. The commissioners and county engineer were required to provide the survey and to secure the right-of-way. In addition the county authorized payment of $50,000 toward the construction cost, this being in compensation for the state's loss in abandoning the portion of the highway which led through the airport.

MAINTAINED BY COUNTY

Until the new section is completed, the county will maintain the present road from Mansfield to Route 178. The state will take over the section south of Route 178 to the Ashland-Shelby road, a distance of three miles, approximately.

The new section of highway now under construction will swing northeast from the present airport highway at a point near the Ohio State Reformatory barns. It will swing around the airport, making connection with the present highway at Timmerman road.

Preliminary work has been started by the contractor, A. J. Baltes of Norwalk. Winter work will consist chiefly of tile laying, draining and clearing of the right-of-way, Rusk stated.

To those who pushed the airport project to success, the highway construction represents the final step in a long program.

History of the airport development is already known, and will be mentioned here only briefly. The city purchased 1,000 acres of land adjoining the original airport of 189 acres at an average cost of $104 an acre. The land was acquired in a period of 30 days without court action under the direction of Neil Robinson, who was employed by the Mansfield council for this purpose.

Work on the airport began in July of 1944. In a two-year period workmen moved 3,000,000 cubic yards of earth and laid more than 8,000,000 square yards of paved runways and taxi strips. It was a $2,000,000 project, completed at a cost to the city and county of $200,000. Formal dedication of the port was held July 20 and 21, 1946.

The airport is now served by TWA, one of the nation's major airlines, is headquarters for the 164th Fighter Squadron of the Air National Guard, and has the weather station formerly located at Hayesville. Airport backers anticipate continued growth in the future, plus development of an industrial area made possible by the new highway—an area which will be served by railroad, highway and air transportation.

Santa Claus Always Visits Belgian Youngsters First

BRUSSELS—Belgian children, unlike their counterparts the world over, are not awaiting the coming of Santa Claus. They already welcomed him on Dec. 6.

This date is the name-day of St. Nicholas, patron saint of children, from whose name the Anglo-Saxon words "Santa Claus" are derived. The sixth, in Belgium, is purely for children. Adults have little to do except finance the good man.

In Belgium, the shops start very early with decorations and other signs of the times. From the beginning of November, the big chain stores devote most of their window-space to the legendary figure in his bishop's hat, staff and long flowing red cloak.

Every shop pays tribute to the "bonhomme" according to its class of business. Pastry shops are full of traditional sugar pigs, chocolate santas and chocolate donkeys carrying sacks of sweets. One department store this year devoted much of its window-space to a panorama of the "Enchanted Forest" where good, represented by St. Nicholas, fights evil, represented by a witch. The "good" part of the forest was full of dancing fairies and frolicking mechanical animals. The witch's domain featured such niceties as children-eating trees, dragons, and a most life-like snake.

Another large store devoted itself to the "Nursery of 2000 A.D." In this piece of mechanical ingenuity, one nurse, herself a robot, operates a switch panel which controls the washing, feeding, spanking, teaching and even "diapering" of dozens of little dolls. Every store has a Santa Claus. Some indeed have several.

In the schools, teachers are telling and retelling the story of Saint Nicholas. The children learn how the bad butcher captured the three little boys and turned them into bacon. How the all-knowing saint got to know of it, and pretending to be a customer visited the butcher. The latter, the story goes on, realized who his customer was and prayed for forgiveness. Santa forgave him saying his conscience would punish him enough. All over Belgium little faces light up when by a miracle the good man restores the three boys to life and happiness, thus proving that good will always triumph over evil.

However, the big night for grown-ups in Belgium is still New Year. Greeting cards and presents are exchanged and everyone is on holiday. After a meal which may last for hours, Belgians get down to their traditional beer-drinking which they intersperse with dancing, singing and parlor games till the morning.

Distribution Problems Create 'Spotty' Cement Shortages

Big Demand Also Factor In Situation

Production Hits All-Time Record

NEW YORK, — (AP) — Unprecedented demand coupled with distribution difficulties has caused a widespread shortage of cement throughout the country despite the highest production in the history of the industry.

The demand stems from the heavy volume of public and private construction dammed up by the war. Distribution difficulties arise from the change some six months ago to F. O. B. prices from the basing point method of quoting prices.

The shortage is peculiar. Statistics show the nationwide lack of cement in the difference between production and consumption. But the shortage is not evenly distributed. You might get cement in one town and not be able to get it in the next.

Production this year probably will hit 205,000,000 barrels of 380 pounds each, an all-time high record. Last year the output was 187,000,000 barrels, the previous record, and before that 1942 held the championship.

Demand has been steady for housing, public building, highways, big construction projects like dams, and for rural areas. Like everything else, the big demand pent up during the war hit the cement industry like a ton of concrete. Lumber was high. It was cheaper to build homes of concrete blocks. Steel was scarce. It was easier to build with reinforced concrete than with structural steel.

Governmental income, on down to the local level, was high, and money was easy. Long-deferred construction projects were pushed. Farmers had a lot of cash money. They built out-buildings, laid concrete barnyards, built silos.

And to top everything this year, the building season continued far into the fall because of favorable weather. When the demand for cement was supposed to taper off, it didn't. The usual stock-piling period for spring demand turned into a straight shipping season. Stock-piling had to come later.

Why not increase production capacity? There are two main reasons. One is that construction costs are still high—double or more pre-war. Cement men are not anxious to load themselves down with high cost production facilities to meet a demand that never again may be so high.

The other is basing point. That's complicated. Last May the Supreme Court upheld an order by the federal trade commission forbidding cement makers to quote fixed prices as of some city selected as a basing point. Producers, regardless of the location of their plant, quoted the same price at the basing point, paying the freight themselves.

The ruling meant they had to quote prices F. O. B. at their plant with customer paying the freight.

Other industries, notably steel abandoned their own basing point price systems and started selling F. O. B.

Right now the whole problem is being reviewed by a special congressional committee and the federal trade commission with the likelihood that Congress will be asked to legislate business out of the tangle.

So—point two—cement makers don't want to build plants until they find out the best place to build them from the standpoint of transportation and prices.

The uncertainty has added to local shortages. Cement makers are taking care of their oldest and nearest customers first. When the insistant pressure of shortage is over, they want an established market of satisfied users. Distant customers suffer.

If a local mill can't supply local demand, two things usually happen. The customer buys all he can locally, and then goes to a distant mill and pays higher freight charges for the remainder. Or the local mill raises its price to a point just below the price plus freight of its nearest competitor.

That makes it tough on the contractor bidding on a job without knowing exactly what his cement cost might be. And some contractors report cement makers with a virtual local monopoly sometimes get pretty sticky about delivery terms.

Consequently a lot of people are buying cement whenever they can get it at a good price regardless of their immediate need. That in turn makes it hard on the cement producer who would like to see an equitable distribution among users.

How long will the shortage last? Some say a year, some say six months, some shake their heads. Peak construction is forecast for all of 1949, no sharp drop in farm income is seen, the steel shortage is still acute. On the other hand, home building is sliding, lower grade lumber is cheaper, and some of the large industries are completing their expansion programs.

And the ultimate effect of any congressional legislation remains to be seen.

Development of Television Now World-Wide In Scope

NEW YORK — (AP) — The United States has a long lead in television but by no means a monopoly.

The British have had television since 1936, three years longer than the United States. The French have regular television operations and the Russian also have some television with plans for early expansion.

The big Phillips company—one of the world's largest radio manufacturers—has a station in operation at Eindhoven, the Netherlands.

Neighboring Canada has plans for an early start in television and a number of receiving sets are in operation within range of American stations close to the border. Plans also have been made for stations in Cuba, Australia, Brazil, Argentina, Denmark and several other countries.

However, Britain is the only other country that has television on a sizeable scale and operations there are much more limited than those in this country

Britain has only one station, in north London's Alexandra palace, with another under construction at Coldfield for the Birmingham area. They will be connected by a radio relay system now being built.

The latest available figures for August showed 61,700 television receiving sets licensed by the British government. At present production rates, that means the number now is still less than 75,000.

By comparison, there are 45 stations in operation in the United States and probably 700,000 set in use.

Secure Bleachers for City Carol Program

Senior High Pupils Take Leading Role

Date of 'Sing' Set for Dec. 19

When Senior high school students lead the second annual Christmas carol sing in Central park Sunday night, Dec. 19, they will do so from bleachers erected for the purpose in one corner of the park.

Learning from the experience of the first city-wide carol sing, established last year as a Mansfield tradition, that more than a half dozen carolers will be necessary to direct the singing of several thousand people in Central park, the committee this year decided on the bleacher project.

A. Lemoine Derr, supervisor of vocal music in Senior high school has offered to procure bleachers for the festival and is training his senior and junior choir groups in the singing of Christmas carols.

The half hour program will be directed by Dick Butts, Senior class member and one of the student musicians in the school.

In preparation for the city-wide songfest, letters have been sent out by the committee to all church and young people's groups asking them to join in the singing march to Central park, Dick VanVoorhis, general chairman, said yesterday.

These various groups, some costumed in capes and carrying lanterns, others wearing bright plaid shirts and tassel caps, will start at various points of the city and converge on the park about 9:45 p. m.

Two Mansfield business firms have each contributed $5 toward any expenses that the Seniors may have in carrying through the carol sing, VanVoorhis said.

Butter Price Brings Grocer Good Return

CHICAGO—(AP)—The number of customers in Walter Meder's meat and dairy products store was not very large. But he solved that problem in a hurry.

Friday, Meder sold butter at 39 cents a pound.

Saturday, Meder said his profit from sales of other items almost offset his butter deficit. "And I think I built up some good will," he said.

Daily weather reports are issued by 390 U. S. Weather Bureau stations.

Virgin Islands Making Bid For U. S. Divorce Business

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Island — (AP) — The Virgin islands has its collective shingle out for divorce business.

If United States couples agree to disagree, say the tourist trade conscious islanders, then why don't they come to these palm-fronded Caribbean islands to settle their differences?

Not that this U. S. dependency is any real threat to Reno —yet. But it does point to the fact that the number of divorce cases handled here has increased five-fold in the last four years.

The increase stems from passage of bill No. 14 by the eighth legislative assembly of the Virgin islands in 1944. That law started something. From about 40 divorce cases annually the figure rose to near 200.

Under the 1944 law, the U. S. district court issues divorce decrees which have the same legal effect as decrees in state courts in the United States.

The most common grounds for petitioners here are incompatibility of temperament and one-year desertion. Virgin islanders point with some pride to the fact that parties seeking a court order are not under a publicity spotlight in the islands and that the seven weeks or longer stay while awaiting court action can be whiled away pleasantly at a cost of around $1,000.

The legal residence qualification is that the plaintiff must be an inhabitant of the district for at least six weeks prior to commencement of the action. Another week may be required for the hearing.

The Virgin island's main business has been the export of rum and sugar since the United States bought them from Denmark for $25,000,000 in 1917.

Bugs Put on Skids In 2,000 Communities

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK—(AP)—For health and comfort, bugs were put on the skids in nearly 2,000 U.S. communities last summer, two surveys show.

The drives were community-wide, waged with new and old insecticides spread through city streets, over marshes and garbage dumps, at resorts and beaches. Some used airplanes, some trucks, jeeps and motorcycles. Some used fog and some sprays of pest-killing chemicals.

Flies and mosquitoes were the main objectives. While methods varied, the bug campaigns now appear to be a new pattern of community health activity.

BACKS DRIVES

The Junior Chamber of Commerce reports that 1,500 of its member branches started or supported city-wide campaigns. Many were directed against flies to reduce dysentery and other fly-spread diseases. A U. S. Public Health service report credits such campaigns with reductions of 30 to 80 per cent in infant diarrhea.

At least 600 cities are using fog machines for war on a variety of insects, according to a survey by the Todd Shipyards corporation, makers of fogging equipment. These range from a Texas town of 500 population to two crowded boroughs in New York City.

Last summer some cites and towns used fogs or sprays to cut down the number of flies during the polio season. Sertain flies can carry the infantile paralysis virus, but there is no evidence yet that the disease is spread to humans by flies.

In a typical campaign, one big city set aside a week in July for its war on mosquitoes and flies. Hand sprayers were used on 120,000 garbage cans, while a helicopter sprayed big dumps. A fog machine covered garbage trucks and spread a fog through residential streets. In some cites, "fly cops" on motorcycles shoot insecticides into sewer catch-basins to kill insects that escape other measures.

Costs vary from a few hundreds to thousands of dollars. Because of costs, summer campaigns usually are planned in advance for best results.

SYSTEMS VARY

Some cities use personnel and vehicles of fire departments or sanitation departments. Some hire airplanes or helicopters, some buy or rent special spraying and fogging equipment. Aerial fogging and spraying can cost from $125 to $250 an hour.

Sometimes residents pay $1 or $2 a month for the control work. Civic clubs and organizations and business men often underwrite part of the costs.

In one Adirondacks resort plagued by pesky black flies, a 4,000-acre territory was covered through use of a helicopter and two ground fogging machines. The town's planning commission reported a 20 per cent increase in business, at a cost of $9,000 for the fly campaign.

Some insecticides can be harmful to animals, fish, and even humans in too strong doses. But so far these adverse effects apparently have been avoided in the city campaigns, a public health official said. Almost all are undertaken with the advice of experts who recommend dosages and methods to suit the situation and to avoid bad effects.

River Basin Development Plans Made

$57,000,000,000 Cost Estimated

WASHINGTON, — (AP) —The nation's planners have blueprinted a $57,000,000,000 program for developing the vast water resources in our river basins

Judging from current progress, and barring any violent economic upheavals, the plan may be completed around the year 2000

It places major emphasis on multi-million dollar hydroelectric power projects, chiefly in the Pacific northwest More than $24,000,000 000 ultimately would be spent on this phase alone

Another $12,800,000,000 would go for a country-wide flood control system such as is now operating along the Mississippi and Ohio river basins.

More than $8,600 000,000 would be spent on irrigation of 16,200,000 acres of western desert and 1,500 000 acres of potential rice lands in southeastern Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas

Another $6,200,000,000 would be spent for navigation improvements on inland waterways, to aid cheap barge transportation of such bulk commodities as coal, ore, grain, gasoline and fertilizers Waterways now carry more than 28,000,000,000 ton-miles of freight annually

These are the other programs outlined by army engineers, who drew up the plan

More than $4,000,000,000 for watershed work, aimed at saving surface soil, improving farm production and reducing floods This would be accomplished by such means as replanting of bare lands, forest management and terracing

$1,365,000,000 for pollution control

$450,000,000 for preservation of fish and wildlife and development of recreational facilities

$375,000,000 for draining 15,300,000 acres of land which could be used for farming Most of this work would be in the Pacific northwest, the gulf southwest and the lower Mississippi valley.

INCLUDES WATER STORAGE

Water storage for cities and industrial users and control of the tidal rush of salt water into portions of some rivers and canals is also included in the general plan

The program as a whoe covers more than 160 separate river basins in the country

Lt Gen. R A Wheeler, chief of army engineers, estimates that in the past 40 years about $4,780,000,000 of the overall program has been completed In the past 10 years other projects which will cost $4,590,000,000 were begun Congress appropriated more than $1,000,000,000 for these projects in the 12 months ending next July 1

Work already done and underway, Wheeler says, is 16 per cent of the long-range program. If equal appropriations continue, he adds, the tremendous job could be finished "within the lives of present generations"

The engineers' program includes $18,980,000,000 of projects "definitely planned," with some already authorized by Congress, for development in the next 20 to 25 years, That would leave some $29,000,000,000 after 1970 or 1975

Wheeler estimates prevention of flood damage and transportation savings would alone save more than $825,000,000 annually. Hydroelectric projects would develop more than 56,000,000 kilowatts of power as planned. Sale of this power would help pay for construction.

But, Wheeler says, there are bigger considerations—including prevention of human suffering caused by floods. A sound program of river basin development, he says, "may be essential to our survival as a nation"

He points out that the land and water of the basins are not "a permanent asset which will renew itself"

"Arid and eroded lands of China and the Middle East," he says, which once were well watered and fertile, point to the long range future that may be anticipated if resources of land and water are not preserved."

Talmadge Plans to 'Run Show' Himself

EUGENE TALMADGE (Deceased)

HERMAN TALMADGE (Georgia governor)

Like father, like son . . Spirit of 'Old Gene' lives on in state capitol.

ATLANTA — (AP) — "My name," said Herman, "is spelled T-a-l-m-a-d-g-e.

"People criticized my father for being stubborn," said the new governor of Georgia. "They said he was so stubborn he wouldn't take advice from anyone

"Now I notice," Talmadge continued, "that if you breed a white-faced bull to a whitefaced cow, you get a white-faced calf"

Talmadge was making it plain that he and nobody else was running the empire state of the south.

During the campaign his opponents had accused him of being a stooge for certain politicans who had been close to his father, former Governor Eugene Talmadge, who was governor-elect when he died

His opponents in and out of the state, predicted, too, that if Herman were elected, Georgia would be on the high road to ruin. But developments have been such that even some of his political enemies are saying that maybe he ought to be given a chance

A young man himslf—he's 35—Talmadge is filling the state capitol with young active and educated men Most of the youngsters have an intense feeling of personal lovalty to Talmadge

Many of them attended the University of Georiga with the governor, some were Sigma Nu fraternity brothers

And why shouldn't they? Asks Benton Odum, the governor's executive secretary and friend

"It's up to them to make or break Herman in the next two years They've got to work and they know it Talmadge is just getting started as a politican and they've tied their political future to his

"If this administration fails," says Odum, "they fail with it Talmadge would be washed up and so would they It is going to work"

Talmadge also expects it to work He says he expects to run again in 1950

Under Georgia law a governor is prohibited from succeeding himself, but since Talmadge was elected to fill an unexpired term—that of his father—he considers himself eligible to run again.

Two of the chief planks in his platform called for a referendum before imposition of new taxes and a 'white supremacy" law

Talmadge says a voter qualification bill will be introduced at the January session of the general assembly. Precisely what form the law will take has yet to be determined.

An aide, though, soft-pedaled the "white-supremacy" angle of the Talmadge platform.

Said the aide, who asked for anonymity: "You know as well as I do that as fast as these laws come into federal court they are knocked out. Sooner or later the negroes are going to vote and there's nothing anybody can do about it.

"Our problem is to follow the transition in public opinion. Eventually," he continued, "the people will have to become reconciled to the idea"

Kids Had Great Times In Good Old Days

By MARGUERITE MILLER

This is for the youngsters of 55 years ago—the "kids" who found the sledding doggone fine on the board sidewalks; who pulled out three-pound fish from Touby's run; and who remember "Coxey's army" and the eccentric spinster, Phoebe Wise.

One of those youngsters is J. C. Schuster, 172 North Mulberry street who's just plain "Jake" to his many friends.

Schuster admits with a grin there were few things he and his gang missed in the old town. And winter sports certainly wasn't one of the few.... ...

"Best two hills in town," Schuster recalls, "were Bowman and Hedges. They were paved and steep. And the really choice place on these hills were the board sidewalks. If they weren't slippery enough, we'd pour water on them and let it freeze over until it was like a mirror."

What did the residents of the streets do when the "sliding season" was in full swing? "Nothing," retorted Schuster. "They just stayed home."

FUN SPOILED ONCE

But he does recall, quite vividly, the time an irate old lady tried to spoil the fun and almost caused an accident which could have resulted in serious consequences. One of the Bowman street residents poured furnace ashes on the sled tracks, causing the speeding sled with its passengers to vere out over a high bank and crash into a pond.

But it took more than that to stop the inveterate funsters.

"We'd start at Fourth street on Bowmand with the bobsled and go across both railroad tracks to Springmill street. "My sled held eight and because I owned the sled, the riders had to pull it up the hills for the chance to ride down again."

He added that he hadn't made the bargain. It was one of those unwritten agreements among the sled owners.

"Our skating place was the old Brooker pond between Fourth and Fifth streets. There were lots of ponds around in those days before the factories moved in and drained the water or the neighborhoods built up and the ground was filled in."

The Brooker neighborhood holds other memories for Schuster. He remembers that the Brooker family "who lived in the big house on the hill" rigged up a trolley and pulley with which the water was pulled up from the spring in the hollow back of West Fifth school.

"I've seen that bucket go down the hill on that trolley many times, dip into the spring and then back to the house. Everyone in the neighborhood used to watch it."

Schuster, who has a storehouse of knowledge about the amusing things that happened in the Mansfield of the late 1800's, recalls the first automobile accident in the area. It was right in front of his house.

"We lived out near the reformatory at the time," he related. "Old Doc Eckey who was the first doctor at the reformatory, came out with the first car. It had wheels like a bicycle's and one cylinder that just chucked along on one lung.

HIT TELEPHONE POLE

"One night the Doc ran into the telephone pole in front of our house. It demolished the car but it didn't hurt the Doc a bit—just his feelings when everyone razed him about his car. That must have been 52 years ago, and it was the first auto accident around here."

Before the reformatory, as Mansfielders know it today, was completed, Schuster recalls how he and his pals would play hide and go seek in the cell blocks.

Being in the immediate neighborhood, Schuster remembers in detail the summer Coxey's "army" camped on the present trailer camp site off Olivesburg road.

"There were about 2,000 of them—mostly bums and unemployed who were just a party to Coxey's political ambitions. I remember the song they sang about the hard times brightening when Coxey's army gets to Washington.

"I don't thing they ever bought a thing. The bakeries would bring out bread to them and their food was furnished. Everything was donated."

While still in knee-breeches, Schuster carried the Mansfield News to Phoebe Wise, object of many a tale in the city's history because of her fondness for solitude.

TAUGHT SCHOOL

"She had taught school at the old school house that used to stand on the reformatory grounds when she was a young woman. I remember her well. She was rather peculiar but she was a good woman. I've helped her cut her wood for winter many a time. I'd be on one end of the crosscut saw and Phoebe on the other.

"I remember going over to her house the night she shot the fellow who tried to get in her house. Phoebe just put on her hat, walked up town and told the authorities what she had done."

Getting back to sports, Schuster told how the fishing season usually started on Easter Sunday.

"We'd go to church first and then walk out to the Blackfork, fish all day, and walk back home. We used to catch two and three pound fish in the run out by North Lake park."

He added with a grin, "We didn't think a thing about walking 10 or 12 miles to fish in those days."

This year, he's celebrating his 30th year with the Charles Schroer company. He came there as an embalmer with 12 years experience when the Schroer mortuary was still in existence.

Decorations Forum Set

WILLIAMSBURG, Va.—An antiques and Decorations forum, the first of its kind to be held in this country, will take place in this center of colonial cultural arts in January, according to an announcement issued today by Colonial Williamsburg.

Scheduled in two five-day sessions, beginning on Jan. 24 and Jan. 31, the forum is jointly sponsored by "The Magazine Antiques" and Colonial Williamsburg, the organization carrying forward the 18th century restoration work here.

The antiques event will be open to the general public and has been designed to provide an opportunity for home-owners and antique collectors to study decorations and furnishings with the authentic 18th century buildings and collections of restored Williamsburg as a laboratory.

Those attending the forum also will be afforded the counsel and guidance of nationally-known experts in the fields of decoration and furnishings.

Senior High School News

West African Visitor Addresses School

By MARGIE GOODMAN

John Akar, a Negro from British West Africa, gave one of the most interesting assemblies of this year His topic was intolerance and its effects that he discovered in the United States He also gave some very instructive suggestions for the abolishment of intolerance in high schools His fine sense of humor predominated the whole lecture and many agreed that even though the students profited by this talk the whole city of Mansfield would have done well to hear some of the incidents he related. The Inter-Racial Youth Forum presented a fine assembly

Here are a few facts I picked up from the last senior executive meeting: it has been definitely decided that the class of '49 will stage another all night prom. That's good news to everyone. Another announcement has been made that we will not be able to have our graduation exercises at Arlin Field due to the bad acoustics. As the saying goes ' The best is yet to come ' and that applies to the square dances too Two more have been scheduled one for January and one for March

MHS s contribution to the needy families at this Yuletide season is again under the direction of Miss Ruth Dunham Two Christmas basket committee representatives have been selected from each homeroom and with the help of the central committee consisting of Martha Snipes general chairman, Barbara Gail Barbara Staples Jean Hathaway Nancy Sorenson Betsy Clark and Pat Sharrock floor chairmen and Harold Leiendecker, Tom Wakeley and Jack Pierce delivery chairmen many Mansfield families will have a much happier holiday season thanks to the baskets of food contributed by high school students

Miss Marjorie Boles head of the girls physical education department has announced members of the varsity volley ball teams They are Billie Bride Virginia Wagner, Mary Nixon, Nancy Sorenson, Shirley Lay Marge Christ Joan Jackson Minnie Bradley, Margaret Walters, Shirley Reep, Pat Harbaugh, Marilyn Fancher Carolyn Cline, Betty Young, Eleanor Larsey Marilyn Forster, Judy Rodey, Barbara Blahnik, Coleen Koppert Jean Smerson, and Beatrice Harding

A sophomore team has also been selected consisting of Shirley Jorliss, Pat Hildebrand, Norma Reader Janice Inscore, Carol Hartnett, Carol Johns, Mary Weller Betty Brown, Barbara Jisa and Barbara Gaston

Flash' Flash' The junior class has finally given itself a name From now on they're the Nifty Fifty Cute, huh?

As a last thought, don't forget the Christmas sing on Sunday, December 19 Groups will be starting from all over town and will be at Central Park at approximately 9 45 p m Everyone is invited, so be sure to come'

Schedules 4 Meetings

Rural Council Sets Up Women's Sessions

The Richland County Home Demonstration council has scheduled four meetings this week for the benefit of women in the county's rural districts.

Three of the meetings will consist of discussions and demonstrations on social matters,—how to get a conversation started, how to meet people, and how to entertain guests.

Miss Mabel Spray, home demonstration agent, said the meetings are a part of the personal development program of the council.

Tuesday, at the home of Mrs. Arthur Beer, Springmill community.

Wednesday, at the home of Mrs. Lewis Collier, Center Grove, in Worthington township.

Thursday, at the home of Mrs. Charles Linker, at Darlington.

On Friday, a class in the making of dress forms will be held at the home of Mrs. Clair Algire, in Worthington township. Miss Spray will be in charge of the meetings.

NEW ART TELLS AGE-OLD STORY—Today the Christmas story is interpreted this way by Fred Nagler, Massachusetts-born artist, who lives in New York in the winter and in the Berkshires in the summer. He likes to make his pictures look real, as for instance a touch of the barn in the manger scene—Madonna and Child No. 2, at right, and The Nativity, below. Few painters in our time have painted so many religious pictures as Nagler. His subjects range from Genesis to Revelation. Some museums may not find him "modernist" enough; some churches may think he's too "modern." But friendly critics see an intensity of Christian fervor in all his canvases.—(AP Newsfeatures)

Dispatches Mention Hitler, Goering Again

VIENNA —(AP)— Adolf Hitler and Hermann Goering made news again Saturday in a roundabout sort of a way.

Rosalia Hoerl, 89, the midwife who officiated at Hitler's birth on April 20, 1889, died at Branau of a heart attack. In Innsbruck, Albert Goering, brother of the late Reichsmarshal, was arrested for hollering at girls.

Saxony Castles To Be Levelled

BERLIN—(AP)—Not a stone will be left standing in Soviet-occupied Saxony to remind Germans of Junker rule.

The Russian-licensed news agency ADN said yesterday the Saxon government will raze 301 castles and 2,155 mansions that once belonged to the rich nobility. Salvaged materials will be used for houses for thousands of farmers who received small parcels of the land when Saxony's great estates were broken up in 1945 on Russian order.

Kenneth R. Armstrong received his private pilot rating from A. C. Tschautz, flight examiner of Richland Aviation, Inc. recently.

Paul I. Berno, commercial pilot student, flew to Fostoria and return last week.

Dave Robinson, Elmer Cash, George Geib and Roy Wittemire flew Richland Aviation's Navion to Bedford, Pa., and Hagerstown, Maryland, where they spent Saturday night. Sunday morning, they flew on to Washington, D. C., Raleigh-Durham Airport, N. C., and returned to Mansfield via Zanesville.

Dr. M. D. Harnly and Col. S. M. Weaver flew to Sandusky and Dayton, Wednesday in Dr. Harnly's plane.

L. W. Flenner, John T. Fisher and R. E. Beal, of Mansfield Aircraft Products Company, flew to Cincinnati Monday on business Beal piloted the ship. Flenner and Beal returned the next day and Fisher went on to St. Louis, Mo., to join Roy Phillips, also of the Mansfield Aircraft Products Company., who had gone out by train on Monday.

BOLD LOOK PREVAILS IN CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR MEN

Don Twining, 58 Marion avenue, is shown displaying the new "Bold Look" shirt and tie to Mrs. Mary Geary, Bellville. The wide spread collar and set back stitching are the important details to be noticed in the shirt, and tie must literally "shout" with color.

By MARIAN WEST

ARE you faced with the problem of what kind of a Christmas gift to buy for that man in your life?

"Give him a yacht," you say to yourself. And then you counter with, "Oh no, that's too commonplace—and besides it costs too much."

How about something to wear? The fact that articles of clothing are the largest selling items to assist in making a man's Christmas merry, according to Mansfield merchants, is a good commentary on their desirability.

"That's fine," you say, "clothing it will be." But nothing ordinary—you're going to specialize in the Bold Look Color, harmony of construction and design are the outstanding features of this new trend in men's wear. And particular attention must be paid to detail—otherwise the Bold Look becomes the Old Look.

Shirts are always a welcome supplement to any wardrobe, but they must have wide—spread collars, set back stitching and french cuffs. Pastel shades are rapidly becoming popular with pink, yellow and orchid in the lead. The material is either oxford cloth or broadcloth.

For the man who prides himself in being somewhat of a Beau Brummel of fashion, the pleated shirt front with hand-stitched initials will make a cherished Christmas offering.

The new cuff links are larger and heavier in appearance. The loop links seem to chain your cuffs together.

"All ornamental items are prominent and heavy," a salesman commented. "Even belt buckles are noticeable, particularly those bearing personalized initials," he continued.

Ties are an important aspect of the Bold Look. Large eye-catching designs and symmetrical patterns overflow the tie racks here in Mansfield. One outstandingly striking design is blocked off in peach and blue with a maroon stencil and maroon knot The solid color windsor knot,, in contrast with the remainder of the tie, is distinctive of the Bold Look.

In shoes bold styling dominates in sole thickness—"wrap-around" crepe soles Slacks have no waistband with a welt seam and hand stitching; pajamas have wide stripes parted by fine stripe groups; scarves are a gold stripe made of rayon jersey knit, and the Bold Look has even descended to the common handkerchief — they must have a wide seam.

Men's evening wear is taking on a Bold Look. The long-standardized monotony of after dark apparel will be relieved by a new shirt style, a new bow tie and a more casual, easier air, observed on society leaders all over the nation.

For the first time, a new bow tie has been designed for comfort as well as style. The bold knight bow, a handsome re-interpretation of the butterfly, has long points on the bottom but short points on the top. The short top points keep the tie from rubbing the neck. The new tie comes in subdued shades of maroon and green as well as the traditional black.

Dress shirts are bolder, too. The Bold Look evening shirt is a soft, collar-attached model in waffle pique. It has the wide-spread command collor, heavily stitched a half-inch in from the edge, a broad center pleat and stitched french cuffs. Studs and cuff links are massive and simple in design with a plain concave gold disc the most popular model.

Satin is replacing the old grosgrain facing on dinner jacket lapels and the trend in cut is toward the broader shoulders, fuller chests and lower waistlines characteristic of the Bold Look. Coordinating with the jacket lapels, the bold knight bow is worn in satin, too.

Colored braces and garters, in the same shades as the ties, add another casual touch to evening clothes for the '48-'49 season.

Mrs. L. H. Hamman, 399 Overlook road, assists Charles Swanger, 77 West Second street, in selecting an outfit in the Bold Look. The belted corduroy jacket with striped jersey scarf and pork-pie with contrasting band and trim are all casually comfortable and good looking.

Covering the Younger Set

Just Ask Ann

If you haven't already made out the Christmas lists for depositing around the house for innocent parents to find, you better get to work. Christmas is just around the corner and time is fast slipping away. . . .

Saturday night Dave Stanton's home was lit up for several couples to have a party. Those present to join in the merriment were Harry Osbun, Pat Jackson, Rudy Knapp, Barbara Bowles, Gene Greisbach, Shirley Hill, Phil Bolin, Gizella Knefely, John Corcoran, Martha Shiplet, Jay Carr, Audrey McCoy, Jim Rubino, Rita Richert, George Cadigan, Pat Knapp, Joe Distl, Pat Ealy, Dave and Shirley Reep. I hear a good time was had by all. . . . Mathilde Endrody is making exciting plans to go to the Rainbow formal with Charles Vrbonic. . . .

Old and new couples seen here and there are Martha Kinkle and Chuck Au, Linda Skelton and Chuck Tuttle, "Corky" Perrine and Kathie Foss, Sam Smith and Wanda May, and Margie Brigham and Wimp Miller. . . . It has been said that Bob Conte and Jim Crunkilton have a nice time crashing girls' parties. What's the matter, do they skip over you when they make out the invitations? . . . Ellen Bromfield has had a busy time introducing Bob Thomas. He's a sailor from Montana, who is staying in town a few days. . . .

* * *

Cliff Hardin called Marion Friend from New Jersey last week before departing for Germany. Cliff was in last year's graduating class. He'll get quite a look at the world now. . . . Rumors have it that Darline Parrott is eyeing a certain senior class ring. . . . When the Navertail twins had a party they didn't have the conventional chaperon. Their little brother filled the job. . . .

The Y was closed last Monday evening because they were painting the gym. It wil be open for dances this Monday though. . . . Word has been received that Hy Fun council is planning a a special dance for the 20th. More details will be handed out later. . . . Junior Blue Tri sponsored the dance after the basketball game. Bill Leicy's orchestra kept the big crowd moving around the floor. . . . A familiar face was seen in the halls again. Betty Erickson was welcomed back after a brief stay at the hospital.

REMARKABLY INTERESTING IS CLUB'S OPEN MEETING

Mrs. J. M. Walter, president of the club, presided at the open meeting of the Tourist club Tuesday afternoon, at the City club, when thirty members and thirty guests composed the audience at the remarkably interesting session. The Misses Geraldine Hoover and Frances Nunmaker accompanied upon the piano by Miss Naomi Wigton, gave a selection that was handsomely received and delightfully rendered. Mrs. W. G. Harrold followed with a splendid review of the interesting autobiography, "From Immigrant to Inventor—Michael Pupin." A group of songs were sung with his usual skill by L. A. Cook, accompanied by David Todd, upon the piano. The Reverend A. M. Hughes then gave a brief talk that was appropriate of the Christmas season. His leading thought was "That we may live more abundantly." "We, too, should wish to enlarge life," Mr. Hughes said. "Only those things survive that have survival value." The delightful program was brought to a close brilliantly with a selection played by David Todd.

COLUMBUS—Mansfield Clubbers, along with thousands of other State students, had their eyes on home and the Christmas holidays this week as they plunged into final exams after burning the midnight oil for several days.

For most of the nearly 200 Richland countians at Ohio State Friday, Dec. 17, marks the end of another quarter, but for some it means commencement and the receiving of a coveted degree.

A holiday highlight for many hometowners on vacation from OSU and other colleges will be the Mansfield club's second annual winter dance, to be held from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m. Dec. 27 at the Richland Recreation center. Music for this semi-formal affair will be furnished by Bill Leicy's orchestra.

Heading the holiday dance committee are Barbara Tingley and club president Bob Mercer, with Jim Sheads, Bob Shill and this correspondent assisting.

Initial plans for the affair were formulated at the club's last campus meeting for this quarter when club officers were elected for the coming year.

New officers chosen at that time included Barbara Tingley as secretary, Pat Tracy as treasurer, and Bob Shill as sergeant-at-arms. Bob Mercer and Larry Murphy were re-elected president and vice-president respectively.

After the business section of the meeting, social chairman Bob Shill introduced George C. Wilkins of Hawaii and Columbus, who gave a tour-talk of the Hawiian islands illustrated with colored slides.

Wilkins' tour-talk described the islands as America's most "misunderstood territory populated by a potpourri of races all living in complete harmony.

"The United Nations could learn a lesson from Hawaii," he declared, "for here is a good example of perfect harmony in international relations."

He added that a new race appears to be emerging from the present combination of several there.

CAMPUS CHATTER: Dolores Thrawl, petitioning for the entire class, for abolishing a final in a special writing course. . . . Dick James, Jim Beal and Dean LeMunyon, all volunteering their services to help make the club's second annual winter dance a huge success. . . . Jim Stevenson regretting missing the pictures and talk on Hawaii due to afterschool work. . . . Andrey Kalish discussing the forthcoming Christmas dance with a fellow Mansfield student. . . . Mansfielders Find Their Sweet Tooth at Christmas

By ANN SCHOENMAN

ON SOME cold winter night when you haven't any place to go or can devote a whole evening to one subject, you should choose candy making. That is one sure way to make the time pass fast and have something good when you are finished. A whole evening can easily be spent with this job.

In case you don't care to venture into this project, you can just drop downtown and stop in a candy shop, and before you know it, you imagine you're in candyland.

Candy making can almost be classed as a sure business. You can always bank on the fact that there will be a booming business around Christmas, Easter and other holidays. The American people definitely have a nice, big sweet tooth.

When it comes to the preference of a holiday for making candy, many of Mansfield's families choose Christmas above all other.

"The colors are so much prettier and you can make so many different kinds of candy for that holiday. You have more of a variety to work with," is a statement made by a local merchant.

As you pick out ribbon candy and canes for the stockings which will be put up on Christmas Eve, stop and think a minute about the work that went into making the tempting sweets. There's more to it than you think!

To begin with, it's better to have a copper kettle for the cooking. Second, add corn syrup and sugar and allow it to boil for 15 to 20 minutes.

While it is bubbling away, take a wet brush and run it around the edges of the kettle. This is done so the sugar doesn't form on the sides. If this is allowed to do this, when you attempt to pour the hot mixture out, it will do one of two things. One, it might turn to sugar, or second, the pieces will be grainy. You won't have a smooth piece.

Pour the taffy like matter on a marble topped table and start turning it over and rolling it all around so it doesn't harden on you.

If you want colors in your candy, add the shade you want to a good amount. After the desired color has been obtained place it in front of an open fire, but don't forget to work it some.

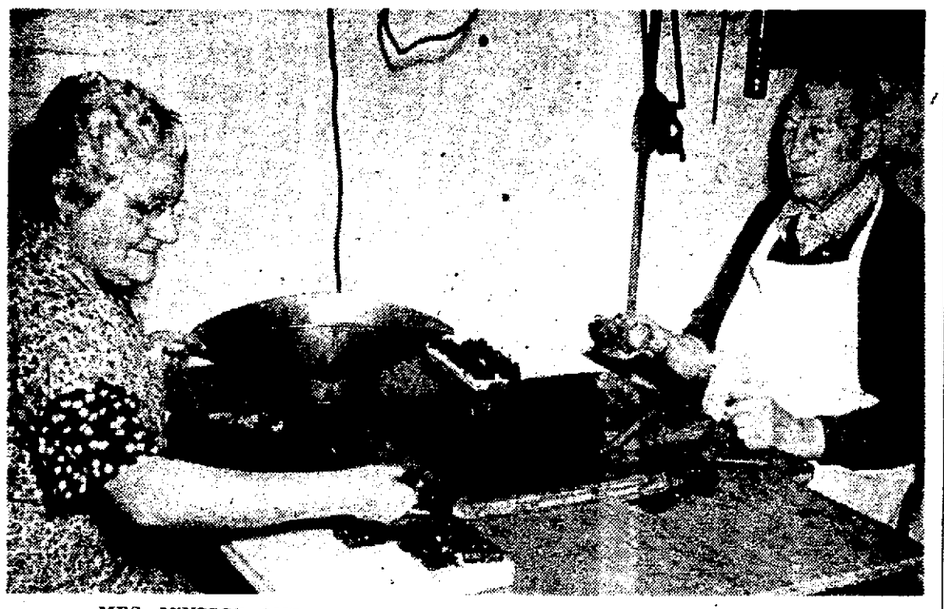
If for some unfortunate reason you don't own an automatic taffy puller, just drive a hook in the wall and start pulling. As you are doing this "salt and pepper to taste." By "salting and peppering to taste" they mean to add the flavor you wish.

The candy should be white when you finish the pulling process.

Take part of the colored pieces and place them in long sections beside the white. Push them close so they stick together and with the colored part left over, flatten that out and fold up around the outside.

Don't forget to keep turning it over and over so it won't harden on you.

Then the work begins! Keep a towel handy when you start to pull and stretch it out flat for the curling. Believe me you can work up a sweat doing this.



MRS. M'NIECE AND MR. KIRSCHBAUM

Mrs. Margaret McNiece and George Kirschbaum are shown dipping chocolates for their Christmas rush. Mrs. McNiece is 70 years of age and Mr. Kirschbaum is 79 years old and still they fill all the orders that come in during the holiday season. Mrs. McNiece is Mr. Kirschbaum's sister-in-law and has been working with him in the candy business for several years.

It's best to have two people curling it or you will be left with just a flat piece. The candy stiffens fast and can be broken like glass.

Ribbon candy varies in pattern like snow flakes. You won't find the lines in any two pieces exactly the same.

Another interesting type of work to watch in the process of being made, is chocolates.

When you become an expert chocolate dipper, it's not hard to dip a hundred pounds or more in a day.

The milk chocolate should reach a certain degree of heat, simple to detect with just a touch by an old hand, before you begin the coating of cream, caramel, or any other filling.

Yes, American people have a big sweet tooth!

"During the war it was nothing to have people come in and order $20 to $30 worth of candy. Now the average order is about $8 to $15, according to the owner of a thriving concern.

Dreams of sugar plums and candy can really dance in children's heads this year for the business is in full swing all over the city.

DAUGHTERS OF AMERICA MARK FIFTIETH YEAR

Guests From Mansfield, Ashland and Galion Councils Honor Shelby Group at Celebration.

SHELBY—The Daughters of America celebrated their 50th anniversary at the regular business meeting of Noble Council No. 88 Tuesday evening with 75 present. There were guests from the Mansfield, Ashland and Galion councils.

Councilor, Mrs. Ernest Stevens, conducted the meeting which opened with the presentation of the Christian flag and Bible. Election of officers was held and plans were made for a Christmas program for the next regular meeting.

During the meeting a bouquet of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums was presented to Noble Council from Lady Garfield council of Mansfield. Their deputy made a few remarks and a member of the Ashland council also spoke.

Mrs. Irving Close, chairman of the program committee, was unable to attend because of illness. The councilor, Mrs. Stevens, served in her place.

The hall was decorated with yellow and white crepe paper streamers and bows. A large chair draped in gold cloth with a white bow was placed near the front of the room under the streamers and Mrs. Clara Dick, the only remaining charter member, was escorted by the councilor to this chair and presented to the council and their guests. Mrs. Sam Vanasdale, committee member presented her with a bouquet of large yellow mums tied with gold ribbon.

Mrs. Carrie Frank of Galion, who helped in the institution of Noble Council, was escorted to a seat of honor beside Mrs. Dick. Mrs. Walter Wilson, the first candidate initiated into the order, was also escorted to a chair of honor. Mrs. Della Hill, a past state councilor, and Mrs. Jennie Clark, one of the older members, were both escorted to seats of honor.

A history of the council was given by Mrs. Joe Burrer. It was organized December 20, 1898, with twenty-seven charter members. The first meeting was held on the second floor of the building now occupied by the Daily Globe. Mrs. Burrer's mother, father, and brother were all charter members and her mother, Mildred Henderson, was the first councilor.

Standing on either side of Mrs. Dick's chair, Mrs. Myrtle Willis and Mrs. Eva Parks sang, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," and "When Your Hair Has Turned to Silver."

The quartet, composed of Mrs. A. V. Fair, Mrs. Chet Willia, Mrs. Lloyd Cleland, and Mrs. Allen Boutwell, with Mrs. Charles Roth at the piano, sang "Jesus Lover of My Soul" and "Whispering Hope."

Mrs. Della Hill, who has been a member for forty-two years, then gave a short talk on the progressiveness of the order. She said, in part, that this should not be a sad time, but rather a happy time and a time for a gala celebration. At the close of her talk she presented Mrs. Dick with a 50-year veterans pin from the council.

The program closed with Mrs Hill singing, "When You Come to the End of a Perfect Day." The standing committee served refreshments and the ice cream had a gold 50 on each brick in honor of the occasion. Every one was presented favors made by Mrs Close. They were white folders with the name of the council and a gold 50 on the cover. The next meeting will be held December 21 at 7:30 p. m.

GALION—Preceded by a chowmien dinner prepared by Irving Chin, Chinese chef of Mansfield, the evening's activities for the December meeting of the Galion Business and Professional Women's club, Thursday night, featured a safety and educational program, initiation, and preparations for Christmas.

The meeting was held at the American Legion home. Arrangements for the dinner and program were in charge of the Health and Safety committee composed of Madge Merle, Sara Beegle, Helen Campeau, Arvilla Emmenegger and Relda Ogi Brandt.

The newly-organized glee club, directed by Mrs. W. W. Koppe, opened the program with Christman carols and the club collect. A United States treasury film, "Power Behind the Nation," sent through the courtesy of the bond division of the State of Ohio, was shown by L. M. McGuire, projectionist. Grace Thomas, secretary of the Galion Automobile club, showed another movie, "Driven to Kill," sent to Galion through the courtesy of the Cleveland Automobile club. Booklets, "The Ohio Drivers Manual," prepared by the Department of Highways, were distributed by Miss Kelley to all members of the club. Narration for the treasury film was given by Mrs. Loren E. Beck.

Eight new members were initiated into the club. During the ritualistic work in charge of Shirley Nichols, membership committee chairman, Mrs. Gerald Bonnar sang.

The remainder of the time was spent in wrapping Christmas gifts for the 21 women and 31 men who live at the Crawford County Home for the Aged. Recordings of Christmas carols were played continuously while the members wrapped the gifts. They will be taken to the Home on Dec. 19 at which time a special program will be given.

Building Costs Reduced By Model Building Code

As much as 15 per cent can be slashed from present building costs in every community that adopts the new model building codes developed after nearly four years of work by the Building Officials Conference of America, it was stated by sponsors of the codes.

Two codes have been prepared by the conference, which is composed of 350 municipal officials representing 80 per cent of the population. The basic code is a huge 445-page document designed for big cities. The other is an abridgement of 114 pages for use in cities under 35,000 population, and applies only to buildings less than 40 feet high.

Construction costs can be cut through use of new codes because they permit new materials and construction techniques barred by many existing regulations.

Excessive and unnecessary requirements for structural strength which add to costs are eliminated; however, the codes do set up minimum strength and fire-resistance requirements that must be met.

Particular attention is given to wall construction in the new codes which state that walls in one-and two-family houses must resist fire for 45 minutes; those in multi-family buildings for 90 minutes.

This requirement can be built into any new or existing wall by filling it with mineral wool insulation, the National Bureau of Standards giving a one-hour fire-resistance rating to a wood-lath plaster wall filled with mineral wool and an hour and a half if the wall is metal lath and plaster.

Although some cities require an outside wall to be 12 inches thick, the model codes state that eight inches is sufficient for homes. The codes permit spacing wall studs as much as four feet apart in some types of construction, instead of the 16 inches now generally required. Use of thinner sheathing is permitted. Where some codes rule out any wall finish except plaster, the model codes allow any type of construction which meets the fire-resistance requirements.

Other cost-saving provisions are: flexible insulated electrical wiring instead of expensive metal conduit; smaller sizes of copper and brass water pipe; elimination of plumbing traps between house and sewer; lighter-weight roofs and floors.

Since the model codes contain performance rather than specification requirements, they would be up-to-date at all times and recognize new materials which are developed to meet the performance standards. This would eliminate costly code revision now necessary to allow new materials to be used.

Home Expert Relates Tips On Plumbing

By HENRY J. WINGATE
(Nationally-Known Architectural Engineer)

The household plumbing includes pipes for distributing hot and cold water, bath and kitchen fixtures, drainage pipes for waste disposal, and necessary fittings. All should be of highest quality, resistant to corrosion and large enough for the family's needs.

Although there should be no compromise on plumbing quality, costs can be pared by careful location of equipment.

Do not put the bath on one side of the house, with kitchen sink or another bath on the opposite side. Use common pipes wherever possible, avoiding the need for excess piping.

Drainage and supply pipes should be provided with readily accessible cleanout plugs. It is poor economy to omit these to save cost. Waste pipes should never be smaller than two inches in diameter.

Most pipes are located inside walls and, unless protected, hot water supply pipes quickly become cold with resulting waste of water and fuel. If the walls are filled with mineral wool insulation, this heat loss will be minimized and there will be no long waits for hot water to reach tub or lavatory.

Before plumbing is installed, the water should be analyzed by a chemist to determine the best pipe for the installation. Generally, copper and brass have longest life and cannot rust. Black iron pipe should not be used for water supply, although it is approved for waste drainage.

Do not mix metals in the water system. Fittings of a metal different than the water tank can cause electrolytic action, weakening one of the metals.

For attractive appearance and easy cleaning, exposed piping should be chromium plated and should pass into the wall with as short a run as possible.

LARGER REFRIGERATORS

Home refrigerators are becoming larger. Before the war, 78 per cent of all home refrigerators sold were of 6 cubic-foot capacity. Last year, 54 per cent were 7 cubic feet. This year, 90 per cent of all new home refrigerators are 7 to 10 cubic feet in size, more than half of these in the 8,9, and 10-foot group.

Lamp Locates Short Circuits

When an electric fuse blows out, the cause can be found by screwing a 15 or 25-watt light bulb into the socket which held the fuse. If the bulb fails to light, it means that too many appliances are on that circuit; rewiring is needed.

If the bulb does light, it indicates a potential short-circuit and fire hazard. With someone watching the bulb in the fuse box, turn on all lights and appliances. Then turn them off one by one. When the bulb goes out, it is safe to replace the fuse. The short-circuit is in the last appliance disconnected. Remove this for repair. If the bulb in the fuse box will not go out, an electrician is needed immediately to find the short-circuit.

NEW CEMENT MIXES

Newly available are four types of ready-mixed cement to which only water need be added. The mixtures contain the right proportion of sand, gravel, lime and cement: one mixture for sidewalks and foundations; another for plastering and tuck pointing; one for stopping leaks in concrete; and a fourth for repairing brick, concrete block or stone walls.

Efficient Home Workshop Slashes Home Repair Costs

A bright, clean, well-ordered home workshop is a fine investment. Savings that result from doing one's own repair work add up to an impressive yearly total, often pay for workroom and tools. For those talented with tools, a well-planned workshop is the most popular room in the house.

Good work calls for good tools and working conditions. Usual location for a workshop is the basement, although it can be placed in attic, garage or even an oversized closet. A corner area of 8 by 10 feet is adequate, even for the largest work, such as doors.

The workshop need cost no more than $100 including tools, workbench and finishing off the basement corner.

LOCATION IMPORTANT

Select a good location for 6x3 workbench such as beneath a window, which is ideal both for light and ventilation. Finish the walls, ceiling and floor in the area.

Paint the walls with a waterproofing compound in a light color. If the ceiling is unfinished, cover the joists with fire-resistant light-colored boards; paint the ceiling white or cream to reflect light. Cover the floor in the area with asphalt tile, using a light color for high visibility if articles are dropped on it.

Because this flooring is resilient it is comfortable to stand on. It cannot be damaged by moisture and alkali that seep up through concrete; is cleaned by ordinary sweeping; adds a note of cheerful color to the work space, and does not originate dust. It is best to install greaseproof tile to avoid floor damage by oil.

The workbench is built of heavy lumber. Three 12" planks, 2" thick and 6' long, make a good top. The boards should fit tightly together. For an absolutely smooth surface, a sheet of heavy plywood can cover the planks.

AVOIDS TOOL DAMAGE

Inexpensive steel legs are available for making one's own workbench. If wooden legs are used they should be 4-by-4-inch material, surmounted by 2x4's to which the top of the bench is bolted. Bolts should be deeply countersunk and holes filled with plastic wood to avoid damage to tools.

Top of the bench should be at least 36" above the floor. This prevents stooping and fatigue; rest is in better work.

Fit the bench tightly against the wall to prevent articles falling down behind it. As most basement floors slope slightly away from the wall, have the front legs of the bench longer than the rear legs to fit this and insure bench being absolutely level.

Fasten 2x4 uprights to the wall at each end of the bench. To these nail boards to form a solid wall panel running the length of the bench and extending 36 inches up the wall. On this panel screw spring clips in various sizes to hold frequently-used tools in easy reach.

Two or more drawers beneath the bench provide storage room for material and additional tools. Compartments in the drawers will keep the contents in orderly condition.

Church Built In 1817 Still Being Used

Although modern buildings have countless refinements and advantages not possessed by those of early America many relatively crude structures erected by hardy pioneers are in excellent condition today.

One such building is the "Old Stone Church," near Finleyville, Pa., said to be the oldest building west of the Alleghenies in continuous use as a place of worship.

The structure was built in 1817 for members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The walls are of stone two to three feet thick. Beams consist of timbers a foot thick.

The interior was remodeled in 1876 and hardwood floors were installed about 20 years ago. Otherwise the church stands in subsequently the same condition as when it was built. In numerous other historic buildings in America such structural features as the original oak flooring remain in a remarkable state of preservation.

4 Draw Fines In Traffic Court

Four traffic law violators paid fines and forfeited bonds totaling $55 in municipal court yesterday.

George Robinson of Kenton forfeited a $25 bond for speeding; Alex Zahara of Bucyrus paid $15 and costs for unsafe operation; Robert G. Sprang, Mansfield, R. D. 4, was fined $10 and costs for passing a school bus while it was discharging passengers, and Robert G. Rule was fined $5 and costs for crossing the yellow line.

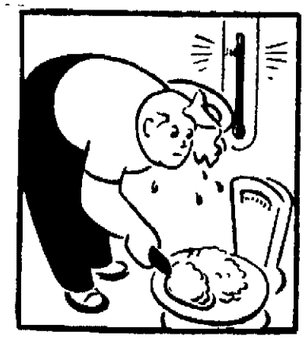
A READING GLASS slipped from a window sill, lodged in an eavestrough and focused the sun's rays on dried shingles. Result: $10,000 in damage. Fish bowls and bottles cause similar fires.

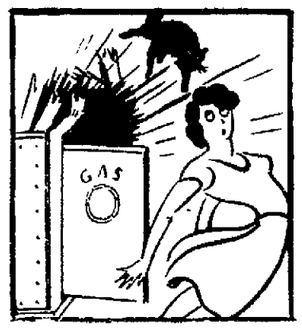


A MAN PERSPIRED while weighing sodium peroxide. A few drops of sweat fell on the explosive chemical used in bleaching textiles. The dye-house, guarded against moistures, went up in flames.

A LIGHTED PIPE in the pocket of a coat in a wooden locker started a fire. Workers tried in vain to open a left-handed fire hydrant. By the time they sounded the alarm, the fire caused $35,000 in damage.

Little Accidents Rank First As Cause of Fire Tragedies

Spectacular fires and fires that take heavy tolls of life and property value get the most public attention. But the National Fire Protection association says the bulk of losses are traced to small fires, due to familiar causes. These are the ones that snuff out a life here and there, but are almost unnoticed except by persons directly connected with the tragedies. Thirty persons are dying every day in fires that attack homes every minute and a half, the association records show. The association points out that matches not kept out of the reach of children, careless smokers, dry cleaning at home, furnaces in need of repair are among causes of 90 per cent of all fires. The accompanying illustrations show how fires can start from unexpected causes.



STATIC ELECTRICITY can cause sparks that set fires. These sparks are visible in the dark when rubbing a cat's fur the wrong way. When a cat was put in a gas chamber the letha gas exploded.

WATER STARTS FIRES sometimes. Workmen left unsla lime on the porch of a two-story home. A sudden shower soaked the lime, which boiled over, set fire to the woodwork, damaged the house.

AN ELECTRIC IRON was left connected and re[illegible] ironing board, while a housewife talked with a neighbor. When she returned, the iron had burned through ironing board and floor.

Home Sizes Reduced To Drop Costs

New Building Trend Develops

In view of a marked slow-down in sales of homes costing above $10,000, builders throughout the country are concentrating on small houses of four rooms to sell for $9,000 or less.

This is revealed in a spot check by the Construction Research Bureau of New York, clearing house for building information, showing that basementless houses with expansion attics are being produced in almost one-third greater volume than a year ago.

These homes contain two bedrooms and an average of 750 square feet of living space.

Although most homes now under construction are small, they are of high quality, containing brass and copper plumbing, mineral wool insulation to reduce heating costs, large picture windows, efficient heating plants, and an unusual amount of closet and built-in cabinet space.

Most of these houses considerably exceed minimum quality requirements demanded by the FHA when insuring loans.

Builders point out that these small homes provide adequate space for young families, comprising the bulk of the buying market today, and that the expansion attics are large enough to be finished later into two good-sized rooms.

Anticipating this, most builders are constructing permanent stairways to the attic. Some are roughing-in plumbing pipes to the attics so future bathrooms can be installed there at minimum cost.

Newlyweds Remodel An Old Deserted House

Homemaking On $25 a Month

By DONALD C. WILLIAMS

DEVON, Pa.—(AP)—The pioneering spirit still lives with John and Jane Goslin.

Just a little more than a year ago they were married—and rented a deserted, dilapidated, 200-year-old stone house to solve their housing problem.

The job cost $300, representing only the price of materials. The owner not only had agreed to lease the place for $25 a month but to apply the first year's rental toward the renovation costs.

The kitchen at ground level has a large fireplace faced with field stone. Jane does her cooking on an old-fashioned coal-burning stove which also heats the room. There is no running water, but the Goslins don't mind pumping.

THE GOSLINS' stone house.

The third floor has been divided into two midget rooms, but the Goslins ripped out another partition and gave themselves a big bedroom, just as it had been in the house's original state. Coal-burning stoves, as well as fireplaces, provide heat in the living and bedrooms. A spare bedroom is in the attic.

The entire house is put together with wooden pegs, and it has its original beams throughout. Stone walls vary from 18-inches to two-feet thick. Random-width floors, as well as walls and woodwork have been restored to their original state by scraping and painting.

JOHN AND JANE read by lantern-light on kitchen hearth.

John receives $105-monthly education allotment under the GI bill of rights. Jane nets $150 as a social worker. But on their total income of $255 a month they are able to manage quite well. They say they expect to save a considerable sum each month.

For a future home? Well, someday, after they have saved enough money, they both say they would like to buy an old, old house to remodel for their very own.

Because 20 to 30 per cent more window area is used in the average home built today than in that of 20 years ago, the modern decorative trend is ored walls.

Darker wall treatment stems from the trend of the popular picture window, which in some homes is 16 feet long and 8 feet high. Picture windows are not confined to the living-room, now being used also in bedroom, kitchen and children's room.

With the trend to darker walls has also come the use of color warm colors and cool colors in the same room instead of a single color for all four walls.

Complimentary colors should be used judiciously. A small dash of vibrant orange counteracts a much larger portion of cool color such as green. Colors should be balanced so that stimulating warm colors do not overpower soothing cool colors.

Kitchen Plan Puts Stress On Adequate Safety Factors

Fortunately, safety can be planned into the kitchen along with comfort, and the two qualities as a matter of fact usually go together, says a Tile Council of America report on kitchen planning.

A definite accident preventive in kitchens is the proper placing of cupboards and shelving, the report points out. Many serious falls result from attempts to reach articles on too-high shelves. Most homemakers can reach a top shelf not more than six feet above the floor, and that maximum is therefore usually recommended

Storage of the stepladder in the basement or utility room is the indirect cause of many kitchen accidents, says the report. If very high shelves are needed, an excellent plan is to provide a definite space in the kitchen itself for the stepladder, so that it will be used instead of a chair or other makeshift climbing support.

Fatigue greatly increases the possibility of accidents. Labor saving equipment, walls finished with such easily cleaned materials and work surfaces at proper heights are therefore definite contributions to kitchen safety, the report points out.

The location of the range plays a major role in safety. It is best placed away from traffic, so that vessels on it will not be accidentally hit or the oven door opened into an area where someone may bump against it.

Finally, adequate lighting is a "must." Lights over the sink and over work surfaces both improve kitchen working conditions and lessen the chance of accidents, says the report.

Pro Football Features Day's Sports Program

Tyger and Ram Cagers Face Busy Week

Two Titles Will Be Decided

All eyes will be on Baltimore and Chicago today where professional football will get off the first of two big Sundays which have championships of the National league and All-American conference at stake.

The Chicago Bears and Chicago Cardinals will go at it before a 57,000 crowd Wrigley Field madhouse for the western division championship of the National league.

Baltimore and Buffalo are scheduled to clash in Baltimore for the eastern AAC title and the right to meet the Cleveland Browns next Sunday in Cleveland's municipal stadium.

Baltimore's workmanlike 35-15 upset of the Bills Sunday left the two teams tied with seven victories and seven defeats apiece. Buffalo had won, 35-17, at Buffalo earlier, giving the Colts a 52 to 50 edge in total points for the series.

SPLIT RECEIPTS

Receipts of the game will be split evenly between the two clubs. The players will receive an additional one-game salary. In case they are tied at the end of the regulation playing time, the game will go into as many extra 15-minute periods as are needed to decide the outcome. The first team to score in the overtime wins.

A different system will be used in the National league where a tie game between the Bears and Cards will result in a playoff contest next Sunday.

Tied for first place with ten victories and one defeat each, the Bears and the Cardinals will be meeting for the 55th time since their series started in 1920. Over the years the Halasmen have won 36 games to 12 for their cross-town rivals, while six games have ended in ties.

BEARS BEAT CARDS

In a previous encounter this season the Bears emerged the victor, 28 to 17. Since then the Cards have won nine successive games. The Bears, whose only loss was to Philadelphia, has captured its last six contests.

Three other games are scheduled for the afternoon with the eastern division champions, the Philadelphia Eagles, engaging Detroit for the first time since 1945 in Shibe park; Washington meeting the New York Giants and Charley Conerly in the Polo Grounds, and Pittsburgh journeying across the country to meet the Los Angeles Rams.

The games today will conclude the 29th season of football in the National league unless the Bears and Cards play a tie. A win for either Chicago team will mean that the championship game will be played in Shibe park, Philadelphia next Sunday.

Wheel-Chair Strategy Brings Edison Victories

By CHARLEY STINE

When final honors for the 1948-49 basketball season are passed out, a little Morrow county school of only 25 boys and a wheelchair coach has a good chance of getting the top listing.

Struck down on Sept. 18 just when he was coming close to realizing his life-time ambition, Goare is nevertheless, not discouraged.

"My legs are slowing coming back to life," he says. In a few weeks I hope to get braces and then I'll be able to get around a little with the aid of crutches."

Meantime Fred spends his time at home until weekday evenings when the players come around to get him for practice. He never misses a single session as the boys carry him to a car, then into the gym where they set up his folding wheel chair.

During practice or a game there is no mercy shown on either side. Fred is the boss and he is a perfectionist for detail as he pushes himself about the floor to correct one boy or another.

PRAISES BOYS

"They're a fine bunch of boys", he says, "and unless something unfortunate happens, they should go a long way. Spirit has a lot to do with it. We have 25 boys in the school and 23 are out for basketball. One of the other two is manager and the other charts shots."

This was to have been the climax of a rebuilding campaign at Edison. The team lost 25 straight basketball games in 1946-47—the year before Fred came. Last year the team won 17 out of 27, and this year the young coach planned for a banner season as all of last year's team is back. He also installed six-man football on the scholastic sports calendar.

"I took the job here in the fall of 1947 because the boys looked big and eager", he related.

Except that his legs are stiff and motionless, the handsome, blond-haired Ohio State man does not resemble a handicapped person. He gives the impression of an athlete, or even a movie star, who just happened to sit down in a wheelchair.

A perpetual smile never leaves his face, and his twinkling blue eyes refuse to reveal concern for anything except zone defenses and double pivots.

He was perhaps too much concerned with sports this fall when he refused to pay any attention to stiff muscles and went right on working with his football team.

"I felt a little stiffening early in the week," he tells the story. "Then I worked pretty hard on Saturday and that night the pain got so bad I went to see a doctor. He told me what I had and Sunday morning I was on my to Children's hospital Columbus. That was Sept. 19. I felt worse then and the next morning when I woke up I was completely paralzed from the waist down. I haven't walked since.

"Seven long weeks at the hospital followed, before they told me I could come home. Meanwhile, a townsman had taken over the football team and the school officials hired William Baker to get basketball practice under way. He has done fine job with them, and I wish you would give him a little credit.

"I couldn't get out to see the first game of the season, so I can't understand just how the boys lost at Lexington, but I've been to two of the three games since, and I'm sure not going to miss any more."

The main cog in the Edison basketball machine is Fred's brother, Maynard Goare, around whom lies another story. Maynard averaged 18.2 points per game and was all-Ohio last year, but yet was according to Fred, the most booed man in the county.

The reason behind this is that the Goares are natives of Chesterville. Fred graduated from Chesterville high, his brother Gordon coached there for a time, and Maynard played there in his freshmen and sophomore years, making all-county in the spring of 1947.

PARENTS MOVED TOO

But when Fred took the Edison coaching job the next fall, his father, mother and Maynard left their farm home near Chesterville and went along. Maynard, of course, had by this time, become a valuable piece of basketball material, and fans around the county were being given a raw deal.

They didn't consider the ill health of the elder Goare, who was soon to die, or of the want of Fred for his mother's home-cooking.

All regulars on the Edison team have at least two years of playing experience behind them and too, in addition to Maynard, stand over the six foot mark. Two of them—Orris Shipman and Norm Worline—made all-county last year, which along with Goare, gives the team three of the county's best five boys back in uniform.

Six starters are maintained with the lineup being changed according to the size and type of offense of the opposition. Harold Jackson, a brilliant little ball handler, Richard Hardman, a six-one center and Bill Graham, another small guard all play one as much as the other.

Edison likely will win the county championship this year. It may win the district or the state. Then again it may be eliminated early. But whenever it is beaten, and whatever is the cause—it won't be lack of courage.

Both Are At Home Tuesday

Mansfield's two high school basketball teams—apparently in for another banner season—will get stiffer tests this week as each has two games on the card.

Madison, particularly, will get a chance to size up its possibilities. Lexington, unbeaten by high school competition, will invade the Ram gym Tuesday night while Friday, the mighty Akron South team will come here.

Senior high is host to Tiffin Columbian Tuesday and travels to Bexley Friday.

LEXINGTON TOUGH

Madison pulled off a pair of upsets in winning its first two games over Shelby and Mt. Vernon and can hardly be rated an underdog Tuesday night. Lexington, however, has been beaten only by its alumni in eight games and must be rated a good chance of ending the Rams' hopes for an undefeated season.

Friday will be the acid test. Akron South always produces good cage squads and only last week beat tough Akron St. Vincent's by 17 points.

The Rams have one thing in their favor—a diversified scoring attack that keeps opposing teams from being able to concentrate on any single player.

Jim Brightbill was the pacesetter in the first game with 15 points and Ed Chelski got 19 Friday. The other three regulars, and even sub Gene Riblet are capable of having a "hot" night at any time.

After Friday's game, Madison will take two weeks off for the holidays while Senior high will play right on through.

PROVING GROUND

Coach Vern Hoffman's Tygers will be using this week's games only as a proving ground before entertaining Alliance Dec. 21, and going to the Lima cage carnival Dec. 29 and 30.

Hoffman has a pleasant problem with which to wrestle during this week's contests. He must decide on two starters from among Forwards Willie Fowler and Ed Schmitt and Guards A. C. Jenkins and Howie Tipper.

Jenkins has started all games, but has scored only two points and committed 14 personal fouls, while Tipper has looked brilliant in relief roles. He racked up ten points Friday night to further his cause.

At the forward slot, Schmitt stepped into the place of the injured Willie Fowler Friday night and scored 13 points, more than Fowler had in the two previous games. Fowler's ankle will be ready for action this week, and now Hoffman must choose between the two for his starter.

Jim Anderson, with 29 points in the two official games, is the leading Tyger score-maker. Points tallied in the Alumni game will not count in the final season tabulations since it was listed only as a practice game and part of the Tyger booster clinic.

A pair of games by both Perrysville and Edison feature area basketball play outside of Richland county this week.

Undefeated Perrysville travels to Jeromesville Friday night and will be at home to Spencer on Saturday. Edison goes to Iberia Tuesday and is host to Sparta Friday.

Other games include: Tuesday, New London at Savannah, and Marion at Shelby. Friday, Iberia at Cardington, Galion at Bucyrus, and Shelby at Upper Sandusky.

Plymouth-Ontario Contest Features County Loop Sked

Richland county league basketball standings appear likely to remain static for the second straight week with first division teams meeting in only one game.

Ontario, winner of three straight league games invades Plymouth for its first real test Friday night. The Ontario team has won by lop-sided scores over the three poorest teams in the county but has not faced top-flight opposition. Plymouth has beaten Shiloh and Butler, but lost to Bellville.

DEFINITE THREAT

Should Coach Dick Casad's team take the measure of Plymouth, it would set itself up as a definite threat to the championship aspirations of Lexington and Bellville.

Other games Friday send Lexing to Lucas, Butler to Bellville, and Union to Shiloh. Two sets of games are scheduled the week before Christmas, one on Tuesday and one Thursday night.

Scoring leader Howard Sunnucks of Ontario was off form Friday and tallied only five points but maintained a comfortable lead over Plymouth's Desmond Donnewirth. Sunnucks now has 90 points against Wonnenwirth's 37. Tom Tupps, Dick Dill and Duncan Wirick of Lexington rank next in line.

Kamen Named Czar, to Hold Tourney Here

Mansfield took another step forward in the sports world today with the announcement that the district softball tournament will be held here, beginning in 1949.

Plans to hold the tournament in this city were revealed simultaneously with the appointment of Stan Kamen, city recreation director, to the position of softball commissioner of district No. 6. State Commissioner Nick J. Barack of Columbus, made the appointment.

MIGHT BRING STATE

Kamen, in taking over the post, said that tentative plans called for the staging of the district joust at Gorman-Rupp field. A slight enlargement of the seating capacity, he indicated, might lead to the holding of the state meet here in 1950.

Kamen succeeds Hal Clawson of Mt. Vernon who resigned after three years service.

A deviation from past years will be the county tournaments which Kamen plans to set up in all counties in the district. Commissioners will be appointed in Richland, Ashland, Knox, Marion, Morrow, Crawford, and Wyandot counties and tournaments set up in each. Winners will then advance to the district here.

Last summer's district joust was held in Bucyrus and the state meet in Youngstown. Gorman-Rupp won the district tourney and lost out in the state finals.

Chick Harbert Hits Record 62 In Miami Joust

MIAMI, Fla. — (AP) — Melvin (Chick) Harbert, Detroit professional, set a course record eight under par 62 in the $10,000 Miami Open Golf Tournament yesterday but Amateur Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, still led the field with 200 for 54 holes.

Harbert, strapping 33-year-old son of a golf pro, blazed around the 6,735-yard par 270 Miami Springs course in intermittent showers with a 30 going out and a 32 coming home.

Stranahan, who posted 66's during the two opening rounds, shot 34-34-68 yesterday. The muscular Ohioan went one over on the par three eighth hole and missed a six foot putt on the 17th to go one over there. Stranahan said the rain bothered him a bit on the 17th when a heavy shower fell.

Harbert's score broke the record 63 set by Henry Picard of Cleveland and tied by Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., last year.

Stuhldreher Resigns as Coach, Remains as Director

MADISON, Wis.— (AP) —Harry Stuhldreher gave up his post as head football coach at the University of Wisconsin yesterday. But the surrender didn't cost him much.

The little general, under heavy fire all season, resigned in a dramatic move but kept his position as athletic director and his $12,000 yearly salary.

"The double job was getting too tough," he said.

Stuhldreher's 1948 team wound up in the big nine cellar with a single conference victory. It won one other game in nine starts. The "good-by Harry" boys, who unfurled their banner in the mid-season Yale game—which favored Wisconsin lost, 17-7—spearheaded a state-wide assault on his position.

His resignation came four days before a student referendum on his status. But, Stuhldreher said, that had nothing to do with his decision, which actually was made last Tuesday Anyway, the vote was called off.

Stuhldreher, who quarterbacked Notre Dame's famed four horsemen, under Knute Rockne, found his 13th season a jinx. It ended the longest current tenure in the conference.

Football coaching, the board said, "has become an increasingly complex and time-consuming occupation. It needs the full-time attention of specialists."

Stuhldreher has the status of a full professor and could be removed only upon determination of the board of regents that such action be "in the best interests of the university."

Names of possible successors mentioned in alumni circles include Paul Brown, coach of the All America conference Cleveland Browns; Lisle Blackbourn sr., present Wisconsin backfield coach; Vince Gavre, former Badger star and freshman coach who now is football coach at Colorado State college; Win O. Brockmeyer, Wausau (Wis.) prep coach who has compiled a phenomenal record.

Tight A League Race Lists Many Good Games

Individual Scoring Paced By Dick Casad

Two weeks of the season have gone by, twelve games have been played, and still five of the eight teams are tied for first place.

Boasting records of two victories and one defeat are Rogers Jewelry, Martin Hardware, Urschel Insurance, Ohio Sport Center and Yuncker Sports. One of the five will drop from the list tomorrow night when Yuncker's meets Martin Hardware, and another may go Friday when Yuncker's plays Ohio Sport Center. Two other games are set for both nights at John Simpson junior high gym.

Dick Casad, the lanky Ontario high coach, who cavorts for Roger's Jewelry continues to lead the "A" league in scoring with 44 points on 14 field goals and 16 free throws.

Five teams remain undefeated in the two "B" leagues but at least two of them will fall in this week's competition. Mansfield Tire and Ideal Billiards will meet at 9 p. m. Monday in Senior high in what will likely be the best "B" game of the week. The Tiremen have won two games and Billiards one against no defeats.

Wednesday's National league feature will pit two unbeaten clubs, the Home Materials Lumberjacks and Mitsch's Corner store in the 9 p. m. game. Both have won one game but Mitsch's—composed of former Madison high players—rates an edge.

Kamen announced yesterday beginning Monday no players would be admitted without showing passes. He said passes had been mailed to all players for whom contracts had been turned in.

He also told 'A' league players that the John Simpson gym would not be open until 6:45 p. m. on game nights.

Official American League Figures Give Williams .369

Becoming the third player in the circuit's history to win the honor four or more years, Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox captured the 1948 American league batting championship with a .369 average, official figures released by the Howe News Bureau revealed today.

By repeating as batting champion — Ted's leading average in 1947 was .343—he joined the exclusive company of Ty Cobb and Harry Heilmann, onetime Detroit greats. Cobb took the batting laurels 12 seasons. Heilmann four.

TOPS IN DOUBLES

The big Red Sox outfielder took a blue ribbon in one other department. His 44 doubles was tops, but he failed to rewin the homer, runs scored and total base laurels he took down in 1947.

Home run king of the circuit was New York's "Yankee Clipper," Joe DiMaggio, with 39 round trippers, seven more than runner-up Joe Gordon of Cleveland. DiMaggio also took total base honors, with 355, while the runs scored leadership was set by Tom Henrich of New York, with 138.

Top man in total hits was Bob Dillinger of the St. Louis Browns with 207, the only other player to hit the 200 mark in safeties being Cleveland's Dale Mitchell, with 204. Dillinger also repeated as stolen base champ, bagging 28 sacks, six under his 1947 total. Henrich led in triples, with 14, while Dob DiMaggio of Boston had the most at bats, 648. Top man in sacrifice hits was Barney McCoskey of Philadelphia, with 22.

LIGHT WINTER?—Walter Meyers of 407 Fifth avenue looks forward to a mild winter in Ohio after nailing this 'bald' coon last week. For some unknown reason, the coon had fur about the head and a brush on the tail. The rest of his body was creamy white in color—and as bare as could be! Maybe it was the lack of added weight which made it so, but Walt claims the odd creature "almost ran the dogs to death!"—(N-J staff photo)

Random Shots . . .

With

Don Miller

If present indications mean anything, several Mansfield area homes are going to have venison for Christmas instead of the usual holiday fare. Several area sportsmen have indicated a desire to set forth tomorrow in quest of elusive deer

★

State officials have predicted a record number of deer hunters will take advantage of the Ohio season but at the same time the number of deer has risen to the extent that no undue pressure will be put on the state's population.

Additional proof (as if any were required) that the youth program in this area has substantial backing came this past week when several sportsmen called the N-J office to express pleasure at the idea.

Between visits to the fish and game farm on the Springmill-Shelby road, special programs related to the outdoors, and a move getting underway whereby each area fisherman would take a youth on as a summer-long fishing partner, the younger element here face a full sporting program for the summer.

Notice is hereby served that any and all moves which will enable the youth of this country to gain a better understanding of the outdoors has our unqualified approval.

Just a little tip to dog lovers in this vicinity—better make up for lost time and attend the next meeting of the county fish and game group The question of sponsoring another dog show for this coming spring will be raised, and additional classes of sporting dogs are expected to be entered.

Louie DeCamp is one of the main wheels in this movement, and fairly sparkles when anyone mentions dogs Come to think of it, there are few sights any prettier than a setter pointer frozen on a covey; a tiny beagle leaping above high weeds to locate the hunter, or a majestic spaniel churning his way through the water with a prized mallard in his mouth

Now that pheasant season has been closed long enough for the hysteria and fever to die away a little, various states are announcing findings pertaining to the raising and releasing of birds

Practically every state bureau declares the released birds have cost about six dollars each by the time they end up in some hunting coat. Those are expensive birds'

As Conservation Commissioner 'Buck' Rider explained to Jim Burkhart, Ohio is more and more coming into line with what Michigan is just beginning to realize Cover and ample food will do more to increase our native bird population than restocking

But this cover and food is not a replacement for the restocking program Instead, it is a supplemental measure In areas which have the large number of hunters we have here in Ohio, Mother Nature can't raise replacement stock rapidly enough to keep up with the annual kill

At the same time, birds which are hand-fed 'babied,' and have complete protection from the raw weather are unable to cope for themselves in the wild This means a high loss from predators before the shooting season ever starts, and means less sport due to half tamed birds

The ideal solution seems to be one containing measures for limiting predators (not wiping them out, they have a definite place in the balance of nature), aiding the birds WHEN THEY NEED SUCH ASSISTANCE, and enforcing the game laws to the point that hen pheasants, chief lifeline in our game supply, will be safer from ruffians who masquerade under the name of 'sportsmen'

The state commission is to be commended for their development of all these ideas

Several fishermen have asked me if the sport is half as good in Arkansas as I pictured it, and luckily I happened to have along a letter I received from an old fishing pal of mine in that state

Just this past week, while we are wondering why snow hasn't blanketed the state, he nailed the limit of squirrels and of crappies inside five hours In addition, he found a spring-fed creek within a short distance of his home where he has been taking the limit of crappies inside one hour'

If any of you want a week or two of real fishing, I can help you plan a trip to this area which will long remain one of the highlights of your sporting life.

For any of you who may be interested in skish (and several skish meets are tentatively planned for this coming spring) the 1949 edition of the national guide is ready and will be mailed on request.

Drop a line to Better Fishing, Inc., 509 S Wabash avenue, Chicago, 5, Illinois, and they'll send you a copy free of charge

New awards are to be issued this year to those who win honors in local meets—but we don't want to spoil it for you A complete roundup of skish news will be printed on the outdoors page next week

★

By the time you get through reading this you'll just be able to grab a sandwich from the kitchen table and dash away to the Ohio Sportsmen's Gun Club

The group is holding a shoot today under the able direction of Chet Beer, president

Pre-Christmas Shoot Slated

A special pre-Christmas turkey and ham shoot has been scheduled for the Ohio Sportsmen Gun club today, according to Chet Beers, president.

The shoot, based along the same lines as the Thanksgiving shoot in which more than 300 hams and turkeys were won, will attract a number of the big names of Ohio trapshooting.

At least 20 cases of canned goods will also be distributed to those attending, Beers said

Spring Fishing Outlook Good

Reservoir's Fish Count Shows Gain

Charles Mill Report Given

"What Charles Mill reservoir needs is more fishermen"

This statement, which should come as music to the ears of fishing fans of the Mansfield area, was made by William Atterholt fish production foreman, district 2, Ohio Division of Conservation and Natural Resources

His comment, made during the course of a recent net check—the final one of the winter—carries the weight of knowledge gained from first-hand investigation. There are more than enough smaller fish in proportion to the larger ones, according to Atterholt, meaning that no harm would be caused by intensive fishing.

Atterholt, after compiling his state report on Charles Mill reservoir supplied a condensed outline of his facts for use on the News-Journal outdoors page The information will give area fishermen a clearer idea of what to expect in results at Charles Mill, and answers some of the questions which have been discussed concerning the present policy with closed seasons and limits.

The report follows

"According to test net results for the years 1947 and 1948, the following are my observations on Charles Mill reservoir pertaining to fish population and growth

"White Crappies, since 1946, have been increasing in number and reducing in average length. The dominant length in the spring of 1948 had reduced to six inches However the situation this fall has improved somewhat, with the dominant length showing at seven to seven and one-half inches, with the population still seemingly on the increase, regardless of liberalized fishing these past few years

"Shore seining this summer yielded good results, indicating a good spring catch of white crappies especially, and large-mouth bass

"Charles Mill is a lake of some 1,350 acres with a turbid silty condition, ideally suited to white crappies, and very favorable to their propagation

CATCH 'EM, COUNT 'EM—John Flynn (standing) of Portage lake fish hatchery, aiding in the final net test of the season at Charles Mill reservoir, extracts fish from net and then gives the information on kind and size to William Atterhold, fish production foreman; district 2 Flynn snips the bladders of useless varieties and throws them back in the lake They sink to the bottom and fertilize the soil. Desirable fish are carefully handled and returned unhurt to the water. The net counts enable the fish management section of the conservation division to keep a check on the fish population in Ohio waters.

"It is my belief that the lake could withstand double the present fishing pressure with no harmful results. In fact, the results might prove beneficial, in view of the fact that a reduction in fish population under normal conditions means an increase in average length.

"For those who are interested, the following species are available to the angler in Charles Mill (listed in the order of their abundance White crappies, bullhead, black crappie, blue gill, channel cat punkinseed sunfish and large-mouth bass Carp and suckers are also fairly abundant but are largely undesirable to the angler

'Prospects for the spring fishing season look reasonably good at this time, probably better than last spring, from what we have been able to determine this fall Of course a lot will depend on the weather during next spring's season But barring inclement weather next spring, our prediction is for at least slightly better fishing"

Hunting and Fishing In Dixie

Dogs 'Flush' Deer In Thick Cane Brakes

Have you ever seen fishing poles growing in their natural state? A practically impenetrable forest of tall green rods covers many southern brakes—and it's here that southern hunters find their deer

The thick cane, dense foliage in the bayou bottoms, and other aspects of the terrain are such that these sportsmen follow a practice condemned in the north. They run deer with hounds.

This will start a brawl, I know but state conservation officials are well aware of the conditions which exist there and have put the O K on the idea Having seen and been in these thickets, I'll back up their judgment

A hunter without a dog in this type of cover is pursuing a useless cause. Forgetting the moral aspects—and they've been argued since time immemorial—the southern deer hunter enjoys as colorful a sport as can be found anywhere.

Deer are plentiful along the Mississippi bottoms, and it's here that nimrods congregate each year to hunt their quarry Twenty-four hours before the season opens an advance guard arrives in a section which seldom sees anyone but a few weather-beaten natives, and sets up a camp By the time the rest of the crew (usually eight men form a camp) arrive the fires are going and a hot session of poker is underway

The poker idea comes in handy, since no true hunter can get a night's sleep with such an event scheduled for the next morning. And the stars are still shining when the camp "cookie" serves the steaming breakfast Bacon, eggs, usually a few fish—just the type meal to cut the edge of a hunter's appetite

With breakfast out of the way, the camp goes into action and a mournful horn sounds as the dogs are cut loose at one end of the brakes Stationed at strategic points along the front of the drive are the lucky ones, those who drew their names from a hat, and who will probably get the first shot at any deer the hounds force up

The lead hound sounds a deep bellow Saddles and gun holsters creaking, the drivers start their work Since the parties are small, many deer are able to stand silent and watch the drivers pass by while others simply melt back through the lines

By the time the drivers meet up with the last men on stands, the day's hunting is finished, the "stand men" climb up behind the drivers, and the three or four horse procession wends its way back to camp. For the lucky ones, there is more work in sight. The slain deer must be hung, photographed, then quartered.

This occupies enough time that the cookie has supper (who ever heard of dinner in the forests?) prepared and the odor of deer liver begins to rise over the camp

For those who hunt in Arkansas, these scenes are repeated twice each year, once in November and again in December Each hunter is allowed two deer per year, one each season Is it any wonder the south is becoming known as the "sportsman's paradise"?

Ruling Hits At Pollution

The long battle by sportsmen to keep industrial firms from polluting public waters got a 'shot in the arm this past week when the state attorney general ruled the state conservation commissioner can obtain an injunction to stop stream pollution from coal slack and dust

The ruling also held that if such material endangers the fish habitat and food supply, action for damages can also be filed against the person polluting the stream

It is believed the move will furnish a strong weapon for fishermen and conservationists in the southern part of the state

Oddendia

Hunters who peep over the rear sight at a fleeing rabbit can't be blamed for thinking the little animal is a furied ball of lightning but think of the plight of the antelope hunter

The common antelope is a pretty fast character in his own right, and had been clocked by automobiles while he was clicking off a merry 70 miles per hour'

Instead his nervous system is so delicately balanced that any sudden shock causes him to lose consciousness

New House Hit By Fire

A fire last night burned the basement and part of the first floor of a house under construction at 618 Yale drive before it was extinguished by firemen from Station No 4

The blaze was caused by an oil heater which had been left burning in the basement to hasten the drying of a new cement floor, firemen said According to firemen the stove became overheated and ignited some tar paper in the basement.

The house belongs to William H Schultz, 26 Gibson avenue a foreman at the Tappan Stove company

The fire was discovered by eight-year-old Tommy Baughman, 633 Yale drive, at 7 p m When firemen arrived the first floor was ablaze, but the flames were soon brought under control

There was no estimate of the amount of damage

'New Look' Poses WAC Problem, Too

CAMP LEE, Va —(AP)—Apparently for woman, in the Army or out, it is the same old story—clothes

What the WACS would like to know is how many wartime short skirts do they have to wear out before they get the new look" in uniforms

The boss WAC Col Mary Hallaren Lowell Mass, has decreed hems 2½ inches below the knee

Tight A League Race Lists Many Good Games

Individual Scoring Paced By Dick Casad

City Recreation Director Stan Kamen's efforts to organize a tight City A league are certainly paying off in early season standings.

Two weeks of the season have gone by, twelve games have been played, and still five of the eight teams are tied for first place.

Boasting records of two victories and one defeat are Rogers Jewelry, Martin Hardware, Urschel Insurance, Ohio Sport Center and Yuncker Sports. One of the five will drop from the list tomorrow night when Yuncker's meets Martin Hardware, and another may go Friday when Yuncker's plays Ohio Sport Center. Two other games are set for both nights at John Simpson junior high gym.

Dick Casad, the lanky Ontario high coach, who cavorts for Roger's Jewelry continues to lead the "A" league in scoring with 44 points on 14 field goals and 16 free throws.

Five teams remain undefeated in the two "B" leagues but at least two of them will fall in this week's competition. Mansfield Tire and Ideal Billiards will meet at 9 p. m. Monday in Senior high in what will likely be the best "B" game of the week. The Tiremen have won two games and Billiards one against no defeats.

Wednesday's National league feature will pit two unbeaten clubs, the Home Materials Lumberjacks and Mitsch's Corner store in the 9 p. m. game. Both have won one game but Mitsch's—composed of former Madison high players—rates an edge.

Kamen announced yesterday beginning Monday no players would be admitted without showing passes. He said passes had been mailed to all players for whom contracts had been turned in.

He also told 'A' league players that the John Simpson gym would not be open until 6:45 p. m. on game nights.

Official American League Figures Give Williams .369

Becoming the third player in the circuit's history to win the honor four or more years, Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox captured the 1948 American league batting championship with a .369 average, official figures released by the Howe News Bureau revealed today.

By repeating as batting champion — Ted's leading average in 1947 was .343—he joined the exclusive company of Ty Cobb and Harry Heilmann, onetime Detroit greats. Cobb took the batting laurels 12 seasons. Heilmann four.

TOPS IN DOUBLES

The big Red Sox outfielder took a blue ribbon in one other department. His 44 doubles was tops, but he failed to rewin the homer, runs scored and total base laurels he took down in 1947.

Home run king of the circuit was New York's "Yankee Clipper," Joe DiMaggio, with 39 round trippers, seven more than runner-up Joe Gordon of Cleveland. DiMaggio also took total base honors, with 355, while the runs scored leadership was set by Tom Henrich of New York, with 138.

Top man in total hits was Bob Dillinger of the St. Louis Browns with 207, the only other player to hit the 200 mark in safeties being Cleveland's Dale Mitchell, with 204. Dillinger also repeated as stolen base champ, bagging 28 sacks, six under his 1947 total. Henrich led in triples, with 14, while Dob DiMaggio of Boston had the most at bats, 648. Top man in sacrifice hits was Barney McCoskey of Philadelphia, with 22.

LIGHT WINTER?—Walter Meyers of 407 Fifth avenue looks forward to a mild winter in Ohio after nailing this 'bald' coon last week. For some unknown reason, the coon had fur about the head and a brush on the tail. The rest of his body was creamy white in color—and as bare as could be! Maybe it was the lack of added weight which made it so, but Walt claims the odd creature "almost ran the dogs to death!"—(N-J staff photo)

If present indications mean anything, several Mansfield area homes are going to have venison for Christmas instead of the usual holiday fare. Several area sportsmen have indicated a desire to set forth tomorrow in quest of elusive deer.

State officials have predicted a record number of deer hunters will take advantage of the Ohio season but at the same time the number of deer has risen to the extent that no undue pressure will be put on the state's population.

Additional proof (as if any were required) that the youth program in this area has substantial backing came this past week when several sportsmen called the N-J office to express pleasure at the idea.

Between visits to the fish and game farm on the Springmill-Shelby road, special programs related to the outdoors, and a move getting underway whereby each area fisherman would take a youth on as a summer-long fishing partner, the younger element here face a full sporting program for the summer.

Notice is hereby served that any and all moves which will enable the youth of this country to gain a better understanding of the outdoors has our unqualified approval.

Just a little tip to dog lovers in this vicinity—better make up for lost time and attend the next meeting of the county fish and game group. The question of sponsoring another dog show for this coming spring will be raised, and additional classes of sporting dogs are expected to be entered.

Louie DeCamp is one of the main wheels in this movement, and fairly sparkles when anyone mentions dogs. Come to think of it, there are few sights any prettier than a setter pointer frozen on a covey; a tiny beagle leaping above high weeds to locate the hunter; or a majestic spaniel churning his way through the water with a prized mallard in his mouth.

That happens to be another movement we'll get behind in any way possible.

Now that pheasant season has been closed long enough for the hysteria and fever to die away a little, various states are announcing findings pertaining to the raising and releasing of birds.

Practically every state bureau declares the released birds have cost about six dollars each by the time they end up in some hunting coat. Those are expensive birds!

As Conservation Commissioner 'Buck' Rider explained to Jim Burkhart, Ohio is more and more coming into line with what Michigan is just beginning to realize. Cover and ample food will do more to increase our native bird population than restocking.

But this cover and food is not a replacement for the restocking program. Instead, it is a supplemental measure. In areas which have the large number of hunters we have here in Ohio, Mother Nature can't raise replacement stock rapidly enough to keep up with the annual kill.

At the same time, birds which are hand-fed, 'babied,' and have complete protection from the raw weather are unable to cope for themselves in the wild. This means a high loss from predators before the shooting season ever starts, and means less sport due to half tamed birds.

The ideal solution seems to be one containing measures for limiting predators (not wiping them out, they have a definite place in the balance of nature), aiding the birds WHEN THEY NEED SUCH ASSISTANCE, and enforcing the game laws to the point that hen pheasants, chief lifeline in our game supply, will be safer from ruffians who masquerade under the name of 'sportsmen.'

The state commission is to be commended for their development of all these ideas.

Several fishermen have asked me if the sport is half as good in Arkansas as I pictured it, and luckily I happened to have along a letter I received from an old fishing pal of mine in that state.

Just this past week, while we are wondering why snow hasn't blanketed the state, he nailed the limit of squirrels and of crappies inside five hours. In addition, he found a spring-fed creek within a short distance of his home where he has been taking the limit of crappies inside one hour!

If any of you want a week or two of real fishing, I can help you plan a trip to this area which will long remain one of the highlights of your sporting life.

For any of you who may be interested in skish (and several skish meets are tentatively planned for this coming spring) the 1949 edition of the national guide is ready and will be mailed on request.

Drop a line to Better Fishing, Inc., 509 S. Wabash avenue, Chicago, 5, Illinois, and they'll send you a copy free of charge.

New awards are to be issued this year to those who win honors in local meets—but we don't want to spoil it for you A complete roundup of skish news will be printed on the outdoors page next week.

Pre-Christmas Shoot Slated

A special pre-Christmas turkey and ham shoot has been scheduled for the Ohio Sportsmen Gun club today, according to Chet Beers, president.

The shoot, based along the same lines as the Thanksgiving shoot in which more than 300 hams and turkeys were won, will attract a number of the big names of Ohio trapshooting.

At least 20 cases of canned goods will also be distributed to those attending, Beers said.

Spring Fishing Outlook Good

Reservoir's Fish Count Shows Gain

Charles Mill Report Given

"What Charles Mill reservoir needs is more fishermen."

This statement, which should come as music to the ears of fishing fans of the Mansfield area, was made by William Atterholt, fish production foreman, district 2, Ohio Division of Conservation and Natural Resources.

His comment, made during the course of a recent net check—the final one of the, winter—carries the weight of knowledge gained from first-hand investigation. There are more than enough smaller fish in proportion to the larger ones, according to Atterholt, meaning that no harm would be caused by intensive fishing.

Atterholt, after compiling his state report on Charles Mill reservoir, supplied a condensed outline of his facts for use on the News-Journal outdoors page. The information will give area fishermen a clearer idea of what to expect in results at Charles Mill, and answers some of the questions which have been discussed concerning the present policy with closed seasons and limits.

The report follows:

"According to test net results for the years 1947 and 1948, the following are my observations on Charles Mill reservoir pertaining to fish population and growth.

"White Crappies, since 1946, have been increasing in number and reducing in average length. The dominant length in the spring of 1948 had reduced to six inches. However, the situation this fall has improved somewhat, with the dominant length showing at seven to seven and one-half inches, with the population still seemingly on the increase, regardless of liberalized fishing these past few years.

"Shore seining this summer yielded good results, indicating a good spring catch of white crappies especially, and large-mouth bass.

"Charles Mill is a lake of some 1,350 acres, with a turbid, silty condition, ideally suited to white crappies, and very favorable to their propagation.

CATCH 'EM, COUNT 'EM—John Flynn (standing) of Portage lake fish hatchery, aiding in the final net test of the season at Charles Mill reservoir, extracts fish from net and then gives the information on kind and size to William Atterholt, fish production foreman; district 2. Flynn snips the bladders of useless varieties and throws them back in the lake. They sink to the bottom and fertilize the soil. Desirable fish are carefully handled and returned unhurt to the water. The net counts enable the fish management section of the conservation division to keep a check on the fish population in Ohio waters.

"It is my belief that the lake could withstand double the present fishing pressure with no harmful results. In fact, the results might prove beneficial, in view of the fact that a reduction in fish population under normal conditions means an increase in average length.

"For those who are interested, the following species are available to the angler in Charles Mill (listed in the order of their abundance: White crappies, bullhead, black crappie, blue gill, channel cat, punkinseed sunfish and large-mouth bass. Carp and suckers are also fairly abundant, but are largely undesirable to the angler.

"Prospects for the spring fishing season look reasonably good at this time, probably better than last spring, from what we have been able to determine this fall. Of course a lot will depend on the weather during next spring's season. But barring inclement weather next spring, our prediction is for at least slightly better fishing."

Hunting and Fishing In Dixie

Dogs 'Flush' Deer In Thick Cane Brakes

Have you ever seen fishing poles growing in their natural state? A practically impenetrable forest of tall green rods covers many southern brakes—and it's here that southern hunters find their deer.

The thick cane, dense foliage in the bayou bottoms, and other aspects of the terrain are such that these sportsmen follow a practice condemned in the north. They run deer with hounds..

This will start a brawl, I know, but state conservation officials are well aware of the conditions which exist there and have put the O. K. on the idea. Having seen and been in these thickets, I'll back up their judgment.

A hunter without a dog in this type of cover is pursuing a useless cause. Forgetting the moral aspects—and they've been argued since time immemorial—the southern deer hunter enjoys as colorful a sport as can be found anywhere.

Deer are plentiful along the Mississippi bottoms, and it's here that nimrods congregate each year to hunt their quarry. Twenty-four hours before the season opens an advance guard arrives in a section which seldom sees anyone but a few weather-beaten natives, and sets up a camp. By the time the rest of the crew (usually eight men form a camp) arrive, the fires are going and a hot session of poker is underway.

The poker idea comes in handy, since no true hunter can get a night's sleep with such an event scheduled for the next morning. And the stars are still shining when the camp "cookie" serves the steaming breakfast. Bacon, eggs, usually a few fish—just the type meal to cut the edge of a hunter's appetite.

With breakfast out of the way, the camp goes into action and a mournful horn sounds as the dogs are cut loose at one end of the brakes. Stationed at strategic points along the front of the drive are the lucky ones, those who drew their names from a hat, and who will probably get the first shot at any deer the hounds force up.

The lead hound sounds a deep bellow. Saddles and gun holsters creaking, the drivers start their work. Since the parties are small, many deer are able to stand silent and watch the drivers pass by while others simply melt back through the lines.

By the time the drivers meet up with the last men on stands, the day's hunting is finished, the "stand men" climb up behind the drivers, and the three or four horse procession wends its way back to camp. For the lucky ones, there is more work in sight. The slain deer must be hung, photographed, then quartered.

This occupies enough time that the cookie has supper (who ever heard of dinner in the forests?) prepared and the odor of deer liver begins to rise over the camp.

For those who hunt in Arkansas, these scenes are repeated twice each year, once in November and again in December. Each hunter is allowed two deer per year, one each season. Is it any wonder the south is becoming known as the "sportsman's paradise"?

—DON MILLER.

Ruling Hits At Pollution

The long battle by sportsmen to keep industrial firms from polluting public waters got a 'shot in the arm' this past week when the state attorney general ruled the state conservation commissioner can obtain an injunction to stop stream pollution from coal slack and dust.

The ruling also held that if such material endangers the fish habitat and food supply, action for damages can also be filed against the person polluting the stream.

It is believed the move will furnish a strong weapon for fishermen and conservationists in the southern part of the state.

COURT UPHOLDS RULING

XENIA —(AP)— The Second District Court of Appeals yesterday upheld a ruling that O'Neill Hall, 58-year-old women's dormitory, is the property of Wilberforce State college.

Oddendia

Hunters who peep over the rear sight at a fleeing rabbit can't be blamed for thinking the little animal is a furred ball of lightning, but think of the plight of the antelope hunter.

The common antelope is a pretty fast character in his own right, and had been clocked by automobiles while he was clicking off a merry 70 miles per hour!

Contrary to general thought, he does not 'play 'possum.'

Instead his nervous system is so delicately balanced that any sudden shock causes him to lose consciousness.

New House Hit By Fire

A fire last night burned the basement and part of the first floor of a house under construction at 618 Yale drive before it was extinguished by firemen from Station No. 4.

The blaze was caused by an oil heater which had been left burning in the basement to hasten the drying of a new cement floor, firemen said. According to firemen the stove became overheated and ignited some tar paper in the basement.

The fire was discovered by eight-year-old Tommy Baughman, 633 Yale drive, at 7 p. m. When firemen arrived the first floor was ablaze, but the flames were soon brought under control.

There was no estimate of the amount of damage.

'New Look' Poses WAC Problem, Too

CAMP LEE, Va.—(AP)—Apparently for woman, in the Army or out, it is the same old story—clothes.

What the WACS would like to know is how many wartime short skirts do they have to wear out before they get the "new look" in uniforms.

Skirt lengths is a problem at this initial postwar WAC training center which this week graduated its first women's regular army basic training company.

The Army quartermaster corps has left over from the last war a supply of khaki skirts. That's fine for the taxpayers—except in those days ladies admittedly had knees.

The boss WAC, Col. Mary Hallaren, Lowell, Mass., has decreed hems 2½ inches below the knee.

Canton Man Raps State Bonus Body

Says Commission 'Asks Too Much'

COLUMBUS — (AP) — A Stark county bonus representative attacked and the state bonus commission defended Saturday the method of obtaining information on which to base payments to veterans.

S. A. Wheeler of Canton said requests for information not mentioned on original Ohio veterans bonus application forms have slowed payments to next-of-kin of deceased veterans to a dribble. Hundreds of applications from living veterans in Stark county alone are being placed in the irregular file, Wheeler said.

Wheeler said a chief difficulty is a ruling that veterans who were under 22 years of age when they entered service must furnish proof their parents were Ohio residents for one year prior to that date—even though the questionnaire asks only for the veteran's residence for that period.

Courtney E. Kirby, assistant director of Ohio's World War II bonus, said the original questionnaire was designed to fit the mass of cases.

"If we had worked out a form that would ask the information necessary in all cases," Kirby said, "we would have an amazingly complex form that would slow processing.

"We have the most simple, easily understood form of any state paying bonuses; we have paid out bonuses at a rate that tops any other state.

"We are interested in doing the greatest good for the greatest number. We think we have done a good job. We have no apologies. We have no hesitancy in particular cases in going back for additional information to substantiate the claim."

Wheeler complained in an interview of a ruling he said means a former serviceman who was a minor at the time of entry into service is not eligible for bonus payment if his parents had their legal residence outside the state. This is true, Wheeler said, even if the veteran had resided in Ohio for the stipulated time.

He cited the case of a Xenia orphan who was refused a claim although he had lived most of his life in an institution there and had as his legal guardian the superintendent of the institution

Kirby said:

"In the first place, we have yet to officially reject that first application for a bonus.

"We have proposed to disallow many where the information available to us indicated the applicant had failed to meet the legal needs. But, any such application will be given a final review before it is rejected."

General Chester W. Goble, director of the Ohio bonus, observed: "We will not defend ourselves in individual cases unless we have all the facts of that case."

Stage Group Tryouts Due

Little Theater Plans Mystery

The nine important roles for "A Murder Has Been Arranged", second in the 1948-49 series of plays to be produced by the Little Theater, will be given out this week when try-outs are held in the common pleas court room.

Announcement of next Wednesday and Thursday as the dates for the try-outs was made yesterday by Earl Heasley, who directs Little Theater productions.

The cast for the mystery plot will include four men and five women, all of whom take major parts.

Sir Jasper's only heir is a nephew whom he has not seen for years. The nephew, like a bad penny, turns up at the party knowing that Sir Jasper has come into a fortune.

The subsequent murder plot and final solution make an exciting, nerve-tingling drama.

"A Murder Has Been Arranged" was written by Emlyn Williams whose "Night Must Fall" was made into a tremendously successful movie. The Mansfield performance will be given on Feb. 23 and 24.

SEARCHERS AGAIN IDLE

Troubles Pile Up for Clevelander

The troubles of Mike Komeranski, of Cleveland, were piling up yesterday. Komeranski, who was sentenced to the workhouse from Cleveland, also is wanted in Mansfield on a non-support charge.

Komeranski, also known as Dennis, received the maximum sentence of six months in the workhouse and a $200 fine on charges of assault and battery in Cleveland municipal court.

After serving that sentence, he will be turned over to Mansfield authorities.

In the Cleveland case, Jack Wagner, 57, testified he met Komeranski and a girl last Oct. 23. He said that after a few drinks they went to an apartment, where Komeranski beat him up, broke his cheek bone and took his wrist watch and $15.

In Cleveland, the Associated Press reported court records show Komeranski had been convicted a number of times of armed robbery, intoxication and highway robbery.

Stocks Get Push After Slow Start

Some Issues Hit Year's Top Price

NEW YORK—(AP)—Demand expanded after a hesitant start in the stock market yesterday and prices advanced fractions to a point or more.

Even slight gains were enough to put some issues at top prices or the year.

Magnavox reached a new high for the year with a gain of around a point and higher prices were paid for Radio corporation, Admiral corporation, Motorola, and Farnsworth Television.

Others higher included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Studebaker, U. S. Rubber, United Aircraft, Boeing, American Telephone, Phelps Dodge, Westinghouse Electric, Owens-Illinois, American Tobacco, Southern Railway, Northern Pacific, Standard Oil (NJ), and Pan-American Airways.

Sales Force Grains Down

CHICAGO —(AP)— Heavy selling forced soybeans, lard and grains lower on the Board of Trade Saturday. Soybeans broke 10 cents a bushel, the limit decline permitted in a single session. Losses in other commodities were less severe.

Brokers said the selling followed news that the Commodity Credit corporation would alter its domestic selling policy on Jan. 1. Under the new policy the CCC may sell agriculture products it owns at lower prices than now, traders said.

Wheat ended 2¾ to 3½ cents lower, corn 1½ to 2⅛ cents lower, soybeans 10 cents lower and lard 37 to 65 cents a hundred pounds lower.

Short Starts Truck Blaze

Firemen from Station No. 4 extinguished a blaze in a truck belonging to the Continental Bakery company at Wayne and Grace streets yesterday afternoon. The fire was confined to the motor and was started by a short circuit in the wiring, firemen said. There was no damage.

Earlier in the day firemen from Central station answered a report that gasoline was escaping from a broken fuel line in a car parked in front of 25 East Fourth street.

Stork Visits Ape Pattern

PASADENA, Calif. —(AP)— This business of Mrs. Rosemarie Edgerton having a baby in an automobile on Pasadena's Fair Oaks avenue is getting almost habitual.

Yesterday her husband, Paul, was driving her from their Los Angeles home to Alta Vista hospital when the stork overtook them. He tossed a coat over his wife and newly born Eleanor Pearl and sped on to the hospital.

In each instance mother and child did nicely, thank you.

The Edgertons have another child, Darlene, three. She was born in, not near, a hospital.

The University of North Carolina, chartered in 1789, claims to be the oldest university in the country.
